Sensations Follow Copper Squeeze.

Firm of Otto Heinze & Co. Suspended from the Stock Exchange.

F. Augustus Heinze Resigns Presidency of Mercantile National Bank.

Two Banks Suspend and Dividends of Copper Companies Are Cut.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Sensations followed each other in rapid succession in the financial district today, as the result of the collapse of the projected corner in United Copper, and the suspension of a prominent brokerage firm yesterday.

The firm of Otto Heinze & Co., was suspended in the Stock Exchange.

F. Augustus Heinze, the Butte copper magnate, resigned the presidency of the Mercantile National Bank of New York.

The Amalgamated Copper Company, at its directors' meeting, cut its quarterly dividend from 2 per cent to 1 per cent.

The directors of the Boston and Montana Copper Company declared a quarterly dividend of $6 in place of a former dividend of $12.

The failure of Haller, Soehle & Co., prominent bankers of Hamburg, Germany, with liabilities that may reach $7,000,000, was announced.

The State Savings Bank of Butte, Mont., of which the Heinzes are the principal stockholders, suspended.

CLEARS ATMOSPHERE.

As a result of these sensations the stock market was halting and irregular, but there was apparent feeling that the break of the attempted corner in United Copper had cleared the atmosphere somewhat, and the market rallied before the close.

The suspension of Otto Heinze & Co., of which firm Max M. Schultze is the stock exchange member, was based on a complaint to the exchange made by Gross & Kleeberg, the stock exchange firm, which failed yesterday.

In a communication to the president of the stock exchange, this firm charged Otto Heinze & Co. with refusing to accept 7211 shares of United Copper said to have been bought on order of the Heinze firm. This action, Gross & Kleeberg state, was responsible for their failure. Attorneys for the firm stated today that the amount owing to the firm by the Heinze firm aggregates $600,000.

TO SIFT OBLIGATIONS.

The Heinze firm announced that it is perfectly solvent, and that all its legal obligations will be met. The attorneys say that the suspension by the stock exchange was accepted by the firm in order to give the latter an opportunity to sift its legal obligations from numerous claims which have been made against it, which, it is alleged, they are not legally obliged to pay.

The resignation of F. Augustus Heinze from the presidency of the Mercantile National Bank, it is said, was decided on at a midnight meeting at the home of C. W. Morse, who is largely interested in the bank.

It was announced this morning, and Mr. Heinze at the same time gave out a statement, in which he said his resignation was due to the fact that he wished to devote all of his time to straightening out the business of his brother's firm. He stated positively that he had not disposed of his holding in the bank, that the control was where it had been, and that he would continue as a director.

William B. Ridgely, at present United States Comptroller of the Currency, has been tendered the office of president of the Mercantile National Bank, but he has not decided whether he will accept it.

RESULT OF DROP IN COPPER.

The low price of refined copper, which dropped even lower today, and the disorganized condition of the metal market is the reason given for the reduction of the dividends of the copper companies. The announcement of the Amalgamated's quarterly dividend of 1 per cent. came as a surprise.

The failure of the Hamburg firm and the Butte bank followed closely on the news of the suspension of the Heinze firm on the stock exchange.

The Butte bank was largely controlled by the Heinze interests, F. Augustus Heinze being the principal stockholder, and news of the Otto Heinze & Co.'s suspension from the Stock Exchange, and the failure of the Hamburg firm, precipitated a run, which immediately caused suspension of the bank.

In a statement issued by the officials, it was declared that the bank is perfectly solvent, and that the suspension is solely for the purpose of obtaining time to arrange the bank's affairs.

A number of meetings were held today in the offices of Otto Heinze & Co., but no statement of any sort was given out.

It is said the claims against the firm, growing principally out of the attempted corner in United Copper, may reach $2,500,000.

OTHERS REPORTED AFFECTED.

HAMBURG BANK GOES TO WALL.

LIABILITIES ESTIMATED AS HIGH AT $7,500,000.

Old Private Firm of Haller, Soehle and Company, Which Had Been in Existence for Seventy Years, Suspends — Many Other Financial Houses Affected.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

HAMBURG, Oct. 17.—The old private banking firm of Haller, Soehle & Co. failed today.

The liabilities of the firm are variously stated, and it was estimated early in the day that they were in the neighborhood of $5,000,000, but the Hamburger Nachrichten says this afternoon it is informed by a banker who is in a position to know that the liabilities will reach $7,500,000. This will make the crash of this firm the biggest bank failure in Germany since the famous break-down of the Liepzeiger Bank in June, 1901.

The assets of the firm have not yet been ascertained, but in banking circles the capital of the partners is declared to be $2,500,000.

Nearly all the joint stock and private banks in Hamburg are affected in various degrees by this failure, but a number of them say the claims are adequately secured. Among the firm's liabilities are acceptances for $3,750,000. The largest amount held by any individual house seems to be $175,000, in the hands of the Vereins Bank.

The difficulty of the firm arose from its connection with a mining company at Teplitz, Bohemia. In addition, the firm had interests in several colonies in Austria, and was concerned in several real estate ventures. Near Vienna it had established a so-called "caumacite works," designed to exploit a device for developing unusually high temperatures in furnaces. In connection with this enterprise was a glass factory.

It is also declared that Haller, Soehle & Co. had put on considerable sums of real estate mortgages. All of these assets are hard to convert quickly into cash without heavy loss, but the bankers holding the paper of the firm believe the liabilities probably can be met if liquidation is not much hurried.

Haller, Soehle & Co had been in existence for seventy years. It has for a long time enjoyed a very high reputation, and its paper was everywhere regarded as gilt-edged, and willingly discounted. Latterly, however, the credit of the house has been on a less assured basis. One of the older members of the firm died within a short time. The present partners are Dr. I. O. Soehle and I. W. Luebers. Both men occupy positions of trust in other financial institutions.

Dr. Soehle is a director of the Weschler Bank, and the Carbonite Explosives Company. It is probable that the position of the firm has been partially weakened through the workings of the heirs of the deceased members. This absorbed considerable capital. It has been known for some time in certain circles of bankers that Haller, Soehle & Co. was in rather a precarious condition, and one of the foremost Hamburg banks instituted an investigation of the financial condition of the firm, with a view of arranging the coalition of banks.

The failure created a panicky condition on the bourse and various sensational rumors were in circulation. According to one report, Soehle & Co. were heavily hit by the falling coppers and affected by the difficulties of Otto Heinze & Co., but this apparently is a mistake.

BERLIN BANKS INVOLVED.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

BERLIN, Oct. 17.—Several Berlin banks are involved in the failure of the Hamburg firm of Haller, Soehle & Co., but for moderate sums only, which are regarded as safe.

The news of the failure created heavy selling on the bourse, bank stocks especially scoring big declines. American shares also were sharply depressed upon reports from New York. It was announced late tonight that the committee of the Reichs Bank had been called to meet tomorrow. This means an advance in the bank rate.

VISIT QUEEN OF THE SEAS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Public interest in the Cunard steamer Lusitania, the Queen of the Seas, which is lying at her dock here, was demonstrated yesterday when between 10,000 and 15,000 persons who had been fortunate enough to secure tickets, were permitted to board and inspect the big ship. So far, the bookings of her Saturday sailing are 340 saloon, 258 second cabin and 600 steerage passengers.

Heney May Try Ford New Way.

Six Jurors Accepted and the Questions Indicate Ruef Will Not Appear.

Masonic Membership of Accused Leads to Bold Line of Challenge.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 17.—Today, the first day of the second bribery trial of Former Atty.-Gen. Tirey L. Ford, chief counsel of the United Railroads, compassed the examination of sixteen veniremen, of whom six were accepted subject to peremptory challenges, and ten were dismissed, mostly for declarations of bias. The following six men retained their places in the box:

Though the day was without sensations, it was not devoid of incident.

Chiefly notable among the questions asked by Asst. Dist.-Atty. Heney, who conducted the examinations for the people, was a query as to whether the venireman was willing to vote for conviction on circumstantial evidence alone, provided it satisfied him of the defendant's guilt.

As it has been made plain that Abe Ruef is the one witness who can transform the Ford case from a purely circumstantial into a direct case, this reiterated question of Heney's may mean that Ruef is not to be called.

The failure to call him in the first Ford trial is thought to have provoked a mistrial.

The defense, conducted alternately by Earl Rogers and A. A. Moore, elaborated a bold line of inquiry started by Heney, when Masons among the panelmen were tested as to whether Ford's membership in that order would influence them in his favor. One thought it would, another declared it would not.

The work of selecting a jury will be resumed tomorrow moning.

The prosecution is entitled to five arbitrary challenges, the defense to ten. None will be exercised until twelve men have passed the statutory qualification tests and the box is full.

MANY FORD JURORS CALLED; FEW CHOSEN.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 17.—When the second bribery case against Tirey L. Ford, general counsel for the United Railroads, was called for trial before Judge Lawlor in the Superior Court this morning, Attorney A. A. Moore of counsel for the defense, interposed a request that Ford's place upon the calendar be given to Patrick Calhoun, as the defense desires that he be next tried.

Judge Lawlor said that was a matter that lay solely with the prosecution. Asst. Dist.-Atty. O'Gara refused the request. He said the prosecution preferred to retry Ford, and that the plan would not be changed. He said that the pending trial of Ford would be on the charge of bribing Supervisor Jennings J. Phillips in the sum of $4000 to vote on the trolley franchise.

After the several bribery cases pending against Patrick Calhoun, Thornwell Mullally, William M. Abbott, Eugene E. Schmitz and Abraham Ruef had been continued for two weeks, considerable time was consumed in straightening out the newly-organized panel of over 130 names, from which is to be selected the jury to try Ford.

Several veniremen had failed to respond to the court's subpoenaes, and Judge Lawlor would not proceed to the work of jury selection until the last of them had given an account of himself.

The first laugh of the trial was raised by Herman Summer, a Jewish retail jeweler, who asked to be dismissed from the panel because service by him would mean the closing of his store.

"But, Your Honor," he added brightly, "I have brought a friend with me who is willing to serve in my place."

"Well, Mr. Summer," said Judge Lawlor, as the amusement of the crowd subsided, under a stern look from the bench, "you are enterprising at least."

Summer, after begging hard, got off, and, followed by his accommodating alternate, left the synagogue.

It was 11:40 o'clock when the calling of the panel was finished. All witnesses were excused until next Monday morning. When twelve veniremen had been called to the box and sworn, Francis J. Heney made a half-minute statement of the gist of indictments, and at once began the examination of jurors.

ANXIOUS ABOUT VOTE.

Harry R. Berg, a Fillmore-street cigar dealer, was the first to be subjected to inquisition. Heney asked him if he supported the candidacy of Frank McGowan, who is William H. Langdon's rival for election to the District Attorneyship.

Earl Rogers objected to this, asserting that the law gave counsel no right to ask a juror how he meant to vote. Judge Lawlor sustained the objection.

Of this Heney complained, saying that, inasmuch as McGowan from the stump, was denouncing the bribery-graft prosecutors for granting immunity to the bribe-taking Supervisors, it

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Miss Helen Miller Gould tonight formally opened the $250,000 Railroad Y. M. C. A. building at Eugenia and Thomas streets, her gift to St. Louis in memory of her father, Jay Gould, who did so much toward the development of St. Louis.

The building is perhaps the finest of its kind in the world. After the building was thrown open tonight, Miss Gould was guest of honor at a banquet to which 200 invitations were issued. The affair was in charge of railroad officials. Miss Gould was entertained at luncheon at the clubhouse of the Young Women's Christian Association and later was driven through the west end residence section.

Two receptions will be given for her tomorrow at the new Y. M. C. A. building, and tomorrow night she will depart for a tour of Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas. On her journey from New York she was accompanied by C. J. Hicks, a member of the international committee of the Y. M. C. A., and his wife, who was Miss Gould's girlhood friend, and E. L. Hamilton, secretary of the international committee.

At the Southern Hotel she occupied the same suite which was used by her father to his numerous visits to St. Louis, when he took an active part in railroad affairs in the Southwest.

TO SKATE TO THE CAPITOL.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Assistant Chief Clerk Thompson, promoter of the scheme for having postal employés skate to work, undertook to demonstrate today, and he arrived at his office much confused and concussed.

This afternoon he was disposed to bark at folk who came in to ask him questions about the roller-skate procession of next Monday. His idea, however, will be taken up in higher circles.

A well-defined movement among leading statesmen is under way for having Senators and Representatives skate to the Capitol, when the session begins. A large number of them have been desirous of skating to work for a long time past, but each has hung back for fear of being thought singular. Now a considerable number have agreed to start the skating movement simultaneously, and a general movement of the Capitol is announced for the first Monday in December.

Speaker Cannon has been enlisted in the movement, and he promises to skate all the way down the avenue on the opening day, with John Sharp Williams, the minority leader. Mr. Williams and Mr. Cannon have been practicing holding each other's hands, and while this has been a little difficult on account of Mr. Cannon's greater speed, they have now got so that they can work together.

CAPTAIN OF FINANCE.

RYAN WARNED TO DROP OUT.

EARLY RETIREMENT OF TRACTION MAGNATE EXPECTED.

Legal Authorities Say He Is in Danger of Being Held Criminally Accountable for Transaction in Which Five Men Cut a Large Financial Melon.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The early retirement of Thomas F. Ryan from the local traction field is a practical certainty, and it is declared that in conference with August Belmont, Anthony N. Brady and others, Ryan has virtually been warned to get out.

It has been pointed out to him by legal authorities that he is in danger of being held criminally accountable for the Wall and Cortland-street ferries transaction.

It is said, there is no chance for Ryan to clear himself on the plea advanced in the case of George W. Perkins that money diverted from the treasury of the New York Life Insurance Company was used to pay a campaign contribution in the interest of the company say the lawyers. In the case of the $965,000 taken of the Metropolitan Securities Company funds, of which $250,000 was used to buy a franchise and the remainder split up between five men, it is predicted that they and others can be held if prosecution is instituted, and might eventually land them in jail.

Those close to Ryan say he will retire voluntarily, and in doing so will lend his influence, so far as he is able, to the solution of the problem which the traction managers are fighting. They add that it has been for some time his intention to withdraw from the management of various enterprises, and it is stated the opinion of his associates in the Interborough-Metropolitan and its allied corporation, that such a withdrawal would be opportune in the present crisis, is understood to coincide with his own.

AERIAL.

M'COY AND CHANDLER TRY FOR LAHM CUP.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] J. C. McCoy of the Aero Club of New York, accompanied by Capt. Charles F. Chandler of the Army Aerostatic Corps, left Second and Rutgers streets at 4:15 p. m. today in a race for the Lahm cup, offered by the Aero Club of America for the longest balloon flight. McCoy will have to sail more than 102 miles to win. He is using the United States Signal Corps balloon No. 10, made by Leo Stevens of New York.

A crowd of American and foreign aeronauts witnessed the start, made under the most auspicious circumstances. The balloon carried 1600 pounds of sand, enough to insure a long flight. Speculation was keen among the air experts as to the probable landing place.

The flight of Alan R. Hawley and Augustus Post in the Leo Stevens No. 11, which followed McCoy at 6:35 p.m., was not made for the Lahm cup, but was purely an experimental run. Their balloon carried only 240 pounds of ballast and the flight was not expected to be long.

Capt. Chandler's balloon raced with a passenger train and interurban car from Mitchell, Ill., to Edwardsville, nine miles, and the balloon went into Edwardsville a quarter of a mile ahead.

The Signal Corps balloon No. 10 is of 77,500 cubic feet capacity, the size of those to be used in the races Monday. The balloon and occupants weighed about 1500 pounds. Food for twenty-four hours was taken, in addition to a barograph for measuring elevations by atmospheric pressure; a statoscope, to register changes in air pressure, and a thermometer.

A similar outfit was taken by Hawley and Post in the Stevens balloon. Practically all the aeronauts in St. Louis to attend the international races were present to witness the ascents, and it was the general belief that McCoy and Chandler might travel far toward Columbus, O.

Hawley and Post, it was thought, would be unable to remain in the air over night, owing to the small size of their balloon and poor quality of gas.

Cromwell Dixon, the fifteen-year-old aeronaut of Columbus, O., reached St. Louis without his machine, a "sky bicycle," but L. D. Dozier has prevailed upon him to exhibit his airship here. It will not be entered in the races, but exhibited independently. Mrs. Dixon accompanied her son to St. Louis.

I. C. CONTEST.

SCANNING PROXIES.

I. C. Directory Vote Is Held Back.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—Until three men who are locked in a room assiduously counting proxies are able to report to the stockholders of the Illinois Central, there will be no election of directors. Twice today the stockholders assembled, only to be told that the proxy inspectors were not prepared to report.

The adjournment was taken at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and carried the meeting over until tomorrow at 2 o'clock.

The attorneys for Harriman, who have all along been anxious to push matters to a speedy conclusion, chafed sorely under the delays imposed by the proxy inspectors.

When it was evident at the morning meeting that the committee would not be able to report, Cromwell went to Judge Edgar Farrar, who represents Fish, with the proposition that all the proxies should be thrown upon a table in the general meeting, and that conflicting proxies should be thrown out. This would have killed all the revocations that have been made.

BOOKS LEFT OPEN.

Before it was definitely announced that the Proxy Committee would not be able to report, the attorneys on both sides were somewhat startled by the suggestion that the transfer books of the company were open.

When the stockholders' meeting was originally called, it was not thought that it would last over one day, and the announcement was made that the books would be open again on October 17.

After a hasty conference, it was decided that there was no way in which the books could be closed today, and it was therefore decided that they should be allowed to remain open until 3 o'clock p.m., when they were again closed until next Tuesday at 11 o'clock a.m.

It was agreed between the attorneys that no effort should be made on either side to purchase stock during the day.

ATTENDANCE DECREASES.

The attendance today was much smaller than yesterday, and only a few persons were present when the final adjournment was taken.

The situation remains unchanged. Both sides say that they expect to control the meeting, and both factions are hunting earnestly for proxies, or for the revocation of proxies recently given.

Harriman is credited with sufficient confidence in the outcome to have offered a directorship to a prominent banker of this city.

A touching illustration of the mutual "confidence" entertained by the warring factions was shown last night when both the Harriman and Fish proxies were placed in one of the vaults in the Illinois Central offices.

Both sides promptly placed watchmen outside the vault, and they remained on duty until the proper committee called for the papers today.

HARRIMAN CERTAIN HE IS GOING TO WIN.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] "It is high time that the Illinois Central should divorce itself from 'Newport society,'" declared E. H. Harriman this afternoon, when he made the admission that if he wins the point in his fight with Fish he proposes to elect four western men to fill the vacancies on the Illinois Central directory.

Incidentally, Harriman feels so morally certain that he is going to win that he has already selected the man he would like to elect to succeed Stuyvesant Fish. The man is J. J. Mitchell, president of the Illinois Trust and Savings Bank.

Mitchell, it is understood, has consented to serve as a director if elected. He is the head of the bank having the largest aggregate of savings deposits in Chicago, if not in the United States. More than $125,000,000 of the savings of the people of Chicago are piled up in the vaults of the Illinois Trust Company.

Harriman said today that he believed a railroad should be officered, managed and directed by men who live in the territory traversed by the line. It was then that he made the remark that "it was high time the Illinois Central be divorced from Newport."

This is the Wall-street wizard's reply to the story that many of the society women of Newport, notably Mrs. "Jack" Astor, had given the proxies for the Illinois Central stock which they hold to Stuyvesant Fish.

Mrs. Astor holds 200 shares of Illinois Central stock, which, it is said, is being voted by Fish in the present struggle, although Astor himself is an adherent of the Harriman forces.

Another feature of the battle is the "gentlemen's agreement" between Harriman and Fish to keep out of Wall street during the day. Without such an agreement, the Illinois Central fight would have developed a chaotic

BRYAN TO COME OUT IN OPEN.

Will Make Formal Statement Within Six Weeks.

Many Prominent Democrats Waiting on Him.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Within six weeks, William J. Bryan will make a formal announcement as to his determination regarding the Presidential nomination. His confidential friends have felt authorized to make this statement and assign the reason for it.

Whether Mr. Bryan will make his attitude known through a letter or through a public speech cannot be stated. On neither of the former occasions when he was nominated for the Presidency did Mr. Bryan make a formal announcement of his candidacy. In 1904 he declared that he would not permit the use of his name before the convention.

An entirely different condition confronts Mr. Bryan for the 1908 campaign. There are perhaps a dozen men in the Democratic party who would aggressively seek the Democratic nomination if it were known that Bryan would not accept. Most of these are supporters of Bryan, who are unwilling to contest with him and who would like to see him make the race again. Several of these have frankly talked with Mr. Bryan about the situation.

Gov. Johnson of Minnesota has publicly declared himself. He thinks Mr. Bryan will take the nomination and, under the circumstances, will not permit his name to be used. Should Mr. Bryan decide not to run, the Minnesota delegation will present the name of its Governor. Senator Culberson of Texas is another who will not permit the use of his name before the convention.

Should Mr. Bryan indicate a willingness to accept the nomination, it is also asserted that ex-Lieut.-Gov. Chanler of New York is unwilling to enter into a personal contest with Mr. Bryan. In view of these facts, it is explained that Mr. Bryan is convinced he must speak out before the Democrats can seriously consider choosing a candidate.

Everything in Democratic political circles has been blocked for months. No progress can be made in urging any candidate for the nomination, and it would be intolerable for the Democrats to be compelled to start into an important session of Congress without knowing where they were drifting. It is believed, of course, that Mr. Bryan will announce his willingness to accept a nomination. Even this would place the party in a far better position than to have the leaders all at sea.

If Mr. Bryan is to be the Democratic candidate once more, he would, of course, be potent in determining Congressional policies. As the leader of the minority in the House, John Sharp Williams, who has never been friendly to Bryan, would feel that he must defer to the national leaders in all matters where party politics are involved. Mr. Williams could pursue no other policy and retain his position as House leader for the minority.

JAPS THOUGHT WE WERE SCARED.

ONE REASON WHY FLEET COMES TO THE PACIFIC.

New Report Circulated as to President's Real Object in Transferring Battleships—Nippon Believed That America Was Afraid of Conflict. Military Activities the Motive Apparent.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Just what particular thing it was that brought about the determination of President Roosevelt to send the Atlantic fleet to the Pacific as a first step of preparation for a possible conflict with Japan, is a matter of much discussion in official circles.

There was plenty of evidence presented to the President that the military activities of the Japanese were extremely significant, and it was upon the basis of this evidence that the general board—the strategy board of the Navy Department—recommended to the President that the fleet be sent to the Pacific. But there is a suspicion here that it did not need this expression of opinion on the part of the naval strategists to induce the President to make his momentous decision.

According to one report, which is understood to come from a source that makes it worthy of credence, the President's determination with reference to the transfer of the fleet was mainly the outcome of a bet on his part that the Japanese had become possessed of the idea that the United States government was afraid of Japan, and would go to almost any extreme to avoid a conflict with the dominant people of the Far East.

This interpretation of the alleged prevailing view in the Japanese minister's circle was based on reports, so it is said here, that Japan had construed th ePresident's special message to Congress on the San Francisco school troubles as an indication of the timidity of the President and his advisers.

The administration was informed—or at least came to the conclusion, from the certain knowledge of this opinion in Japan—that the Japanese government was impressed with the idea that there was a condition of "blue funk" prevailing in Washington over the anti-American agitation in the Far Eastern empire.

A desire to show a resentment of that idea is declared in some quarters to have been the acute underlying motive for the order for the transfer of the battleship fleet to the waters of the Pacific.

However near the truth this story may be, the fact remains that the President found a more logical and defensible reason for issuing the order to the fleet in the presentation of evidence by the general board tending to show that Japan was making strenuous preparations for an armed conflict.

ONE of the intensely interesting articles in next Sunday's Times Magazine will be a description of a naval battle fought on the Pacific Ocean in 1909 between American and Japanese forces.

ACTRESS RECOGNIZED BY HER LOST MOTHER.

Margaret Anglin,
the well-known actress who has been claimed as her daughter by the widow of a millionaire, who says she was separated from the girl ten years ago.

STAGE SECRET.

ACTRESS DAUGHTER OF A MILLIONAIRE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BOSTON, Oct. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] In Margaret Anglin, the actress now playing the leading role in a New York production, Mrs. James Stevenson, widow of a millionaire Boston real estate man, declares she had recognized her daughter whose mysterious disappearance ten years ago caused a sensation and fruitless search all over the world.

Grace Stevenson, which the mother says is Miss Anglin's real name, disappeared from her on the night of April 26, 1897, and for months the newspapers were full of accounts of her parents' frantic search. Two years ago, Mrs. Stevenson saw a picture of Miss Anglin and recognized it. She went to the theater where the actress was playing, and sent in a note signed "Mother," but Miss Anglin, she says, refused to see her, and has persisted in her refusal ever since.

For two years, the mother says, she has kept her knowledge a secret, but now is forced to reveal the secret to settle her husband's will. The estate is still in the courts as a result of the disappearance of her daughter.

Miss Anglin's friends say that Mrs. Stevenson's claim is ridiculous, and point to the actress's biography to prove that she was born in Ottawa, Canada, and that her father was speaker of the Canadian House of Commons.

CHICAGO SOUTH SIDE WOMEN GAMBLE FREELY.

Anonymous Letters Betray Fact That Scores of Society People at Kenwood and Hyde Park Indulge Daily in Poker Craze and Other Games.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Warfare among the promoters of the gambling syndicate monopolizing the play of South Side women has precipitated an anonymous letter campaign that promises not only to disrupt the feminine game trust, but a number of families as well.

Thus far the fight has resulted in disclosing that gambling—wide open and widespread—again flourishes among women on the South Side.

Poker, hand books, card games of all kinds for prizes, either of money or of merchandise easily convertible into cash, usurp the time of scores of society women of Kenwood and Hyde Park, and more particularly of the neighborhood near the Douglas Monument.

Every afternoon and evening card games where women "sit in" for the payment of 35 or 50 cents, are run in the vicinity of Halstead, Cottage Grove avenue and Thirty-fifth street.

A poker game for the select South Side patrons of the game, in the vicinity of Halstead, is run in a house on East Twenty-fourth street by a woman, who is said to make $25 out of the "jack-pot" at each game, for the use of her house for the purpose.

Another poker game may be found in full swing several times a week in the immediate neighborhood of Jackson Park.

So mad for gambling are some of the women who frequent the games that they come early in the afternoon, play through this series of games, then go to the restaurants of the neighborhood for dinner, and return to play until midnight.

Habitues of the place admit that the promoters of the games have taken to quarreling among themselves and have precipitating a scandal.

Sessions of Federal Suit to Dissolve Combine Will Close This Afternoon for Four Weeks, With Assistant Treasurer of the Trust as Final Witness.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—William G. Rockefeller, assistant treasurer of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, will be the last witness called in the hearing of the Federal suit against the oil combine, whose sessions will be adjourned tomorrow afternoon for a period of four weeks.

Rockefeller today telegraphed that he would be in the city tomorrow and would be pepared to take the stand.

Kellogg, the government attorney, is particularly anxious to know about the $32,000,000 loan made by the Standard of New York to interests other than the Standard, during 1906.

Kellogg spent most of the day's session today in endeavoring to learn the identity of the purchaser of the Manhattan Oil Company of Ohio, whose plant was bought and then dismantled by the Standard.

Several witnesses were called during the day and statements, giving costs and freight rates for oil for domestic and foreign shipment, were placed in evidence.

Three of the Men Selected to Try Former Vice-President Gillette of Mutual Life on Charge of Perjury, Tell Court They Were Approached by Unknown Young Man.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The trial of Dr. William R. Gillette, former vice-president of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, on a charge of perjury, was begun before Justice Dowling in the criminal branch of the Supreme Court this morning.

A special panel of 150 talesmen was drawn from which to select the jury. The talesmen filled the courtroom when the work of selecting the jury was begun. Three of the talesmen examined furnished a sensation in court this afternoon, when they declared that they were approached by a young man, who, they asserted, asked them if they were members of any fraternal organizations. Frederick Herzig, a dealer in dolls, who was accepted as a juror in the case, was one member who declared he had been approached by a tall, dark-complexioned young man, who was unknown to him.

Justice Dowling at this point asked Asst. Dist.-Atty Kresel if there was any action he desired to take in the matter. Mr. Kresel replied that he did not wish to do anything at present. He intimated that he had information which might lead to further proceedings. Only two jurymen were obtained before court adjourned.

THE TIMES MAGAZINE the coming Sunday will contain an abundance of good, wholesome, entertaining fiction.

KILLS EDITOR BY MISTAKE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MINET (N. D.) Oct. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mistaking J. L. Neal, editor of the Columbus Register, for a burglar, Mrs. R. C. Rasmussen shot and instantly killed him. When she found whom she had killed she went insane. Editor Neal was at work in his office when he saw a house on fire down the street. On the way to it he stopped for Mr. Rasmussen, who, however, had already gone. Neal attempted to enter the house, and Mrs. Rasmussen, thinking it was a burglar, procured her husband's rifle and fired through the door.

BELOIT (Wis.) Oct. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Alleging that she was robbed by a clairvoyant of diamonds valued at $1000, which she had given him to "charm" so she would never lose them, Mrs. George Williams sought the arrest of the man, who gave the name of Prof. Bishop. The "professor," she says, wrapped the diamonds up in a box, after a few mysterious passes over them, and then gave her the box, with instructions that it was not to be opened for a couple of days. He then took the train for Chicago. Mrs. Williams became suspicious, and opened the box which she thought contained the diamonds, but they were not there.

MEXICAN PLOT.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Emil P. Camp, a son of a wealthy mine owner of Zacatecas and Nazas, State of Durango, Mex., who says he is traveling in the United States in the interest of the laboring classes among his own countrymen, was fired at five times while returning to his room, No. 361 East Ohio street, late last night. He declares he recognized in his assailant a man who a few days ago offered him a bribe of $5000 and threatened him with death if he did not reveal the whereabouts of J. Jaurigui, supposed leader of a Mexican revolutionary society. The Mexican told the police today that until last Saturday he had been rooming with Jaurigui, who, he says, left Mexico with several of his followers after the strike at Cananea.

Counsel Explains How Money Came to Be Given After Second Appointment—One Firm Receives $400,000. Over $1,000,000 Paid in Five Years to Different Attorneys.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Paul D. Cravath, counsel for the Metropolitan Street Railway, was the first witness called this afternoon, before the Public Service Commission.

Cravath was examined in regard to payments made to several lawyers for services of one kind or another rendered for the Metropolitan system.

Reference was made to the payments of $25,000 as a fee to Elihu Root, during the time when he had resumed the practice of law.

Cravath explained that the sum of $25,000 was paid to Mr. Root for services rendered to the Metropolitan between the time when Mr. Root was Secretary of War and the time when he returned to office as Secretary of State.

The sum of $5000 was paid to him after he had become Secretary of State, but this was only a balance for service already rendered.

Cravath said that in five years $1,100,000 had been paid to lawyers. Of this sum his own firm of Guthrie, Cravath & Henderson had received a sum of $400,000.

SWIFT JUSTICE.

TORONTO (Ont.) Oct. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] When a prisoner commenced to serve a four-year sentence within an hour after his arrest this morning, Canadian justice had broken its record for swiftness. Horace Mountain, a mail carrier employed in collecting letters from street boxes, was arrested at 10:45 o'clock this morning, charged with robbing the mails. At 11:10 he was arraigned before the magistrate, pleaded guilty, and within half an hour from the time of his arrest had commenced serving a term of four years.

FRENCH TOWNS FLOODED.

Streets of Many Places in Central and Southern Sections Are Under Water.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

PARIS, Oct. 17.—Dispatches from the Center and Southern France today, all confirmed the worst reports of destruction caused by the floods.

The rivers Loire, Rhone and Saone and their tributaries are raging torrents, and the water in some places is the highest ever recorded. In hundreds of cities and towns there is from two to ten feet of water in the streets. Great disturbance has resulted.

Railroad traffic is utterly disorganized. At all places the roadbeds have been washed away and the stations are under water.

ARRESTS END IN KILLINGS

Two Nevada Officers Slain by Gamblers.

Tragedies Occur but Few Hours Apart.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

RENO, Oct. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Two Nevada constables were shot and killed during the past twenty-four hours by gamblers, who then killed themselves.

Constable Gilbert of Ely was killed by Charles Sanders when he attempted to interfere with Sanders, who was fatally beating his wife. Two shots were fired, felling Gilbert on the spot.

Men attracted by the shooting hurried to the scene and found Sanders behind a trunk, with a bullet through his brain.

Constable Kennedy of Palisade was shot and killed this morning by a man named Brooks, whom he was trying to put under arrest.

Brooks tried to take from a big sum of money away from a woman he had been living with. She refused to give it, and he started to beat her. When Constable Kennedy came on the scene Brooks pulled a gun and shot him through the heart. He then turned the revolver to his own head and fired a bullet through his brain.

OIL NEAR COUNTY LINE.

Experts Visit Eastern End of the Great Tejon Ranch for Surface Indications.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BAKERSFIELD, Oct. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Dr. Stark, chief chemist for the Standard Oil Company; H. Storey and J. F. Eckhert, have returned from a week's trip with Truxtun Beale to the eastern end of the great Tejon ranch, near Lancaster and the Los Angeles county line, where, it is stated, that promising surface indications of oil have been discovered.

Standard men refuse to discuss the value of their find, but, from the fact that their stay extended beyond the first plans, it is judged that in the opinion a new field has been discovered. The land on which the surface indications are present is all the property of Truxton Beale, his father having received it from an old Mexican grant.

It is supposed oil land is on rolling country sloping south and east to the Mojave desert.

IMPERIAL, Oct. 17.—Washout are reported all across the desert from Yuma to Fuma. Train No. 10 is held at Imperial Junction for twenty-four hours. There is no certainty when it will start. Eight-tenths inch of rain fell last night, and more is threatened. The blockade on the Imperial Valley will not be raised before tomorrow morning.

REVENUE FROM NIMRODS.

State of California Pay in Over $100,000 in Licenses, and Much More Expected.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] About 60,000 sportsmen have paid to the State Treasury during the three months over $80,000 for hunting licenses, according to reports made by State Comptroller Nye and the County Clerks of forty-seven of the fifty-eight counties.

It is thought that reports of the remaining counties—eleven in all—will swell the number of persons in the state who are hunters, to be well over 100,000, and that the Fish and Game Commission to which the new law allots 50 per cent of the collections, will have $70,000 or more to its credit.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 17.—The War Department officials and the United States government have instructed A. Taylor, a special commissioner who is now in this city lately, to inquire into the materials that Pacific coast cities can furnish for use on the Panama Canal.

Taylor has sent letters to the Chamber of Commerce of San Francisco, Seattle and Tacoma, in furtherance of the purpose of the War Department made known.

Quartermaster Bristow, in addition to writing to the commercial bodies of the Pacific coast of the idea entertained by the War Department, has sent out a number of carefully prepared questions for the answers to which will indicate the attitude of the business men and the proposition of governmental control in the sea-carrying of provisions, freights, and also will give the department an inside view of trade conditions that have a bearing on canal construction.

EARTHQUAKE IN THE SOUTH.

Shock Registered in the East Was Felt Also and May Be Followed by Tidal Wave.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

BERKELEY, Oct. 17.—Prof. A. O. Leuschner, head of the students' observatory of the University of California, announced today that the center of the earthquake disturbance felt on the Pacific coast Wednesday, and probably also was registered on the seismographs in Washington, D. C., was in the ocean south of Berkeley, in latitude probably between the Hawaiian islands and the south coast of Mexico.

This point is known to scientists as a "deep," and is usually followed by a tidal wave. Reports of the shock will probably be brought in by incoming steamers.

Prof. Leuschner, the inventor of the seismograph, says the earthquake near its center was somewhat of the California, Valparaiso or Mexican

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ELY, Nev., Oct. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Two Nevada constables were killed and killed during the past twenty-four hours by gamblers, who then killed themselves.

Constable Gilbert of Ely was killed by desperadoes when he attempted to arrest with Sanders, who was also beating his wife.

Both shots were fired, killing Gilbert instantly.

Sanders, attracted by the shooting hurried to the scene and found Sanders lying by a trunk, with a bullet through his head.

Constable Kennedy of Palisade was shot and killed this morning by a gambler named Brooks, whom he was trying to put under arrest.

Brooks had tried to take from a big sum of money away from a woman he had been living with. She refused to give it and he started to beat her.

When Constable Kennedy came on the scene Brooks pulled a gun and shot him through the heart. He then took the revolver to his own head and fired a bullet through his brain.

OIL NEAR COUNTY LINE.

Rich Eastern End of the Great Tejon Ranch for Surface Indications.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BAKERSFIELD, Oct. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Dr. Stark, chief chemist for the Standard Oil Company; H. Mooney and J. F. Eckhert, have returned from a week's trip with Truxton to the eastern end of the Tejon ranch, near Lancaster and the Los Angeles county line, where, it is said, that promising surface indications of oil have been discovered.

Several hundred men refuse to discuss the matter of their find, but, from the fact that their stay extended beyond the first plans, it is judged that in addition a new field has been discovered. The land on which the surface indications are present is all the property of Truxton Beale, his father having received it from an old Mexican land grant.

The proposed oil land is on rolling country south and east to the Mojave desert.

Autos and Them Scattered Over the Country Which Lies Between Yuma and Yuma.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

YUMA, Oct. 17.—Washout are reported across the desert from Yuma. Train No. 10 is held at Junction for twenty-four hours. Nine inches is an certainty when it stops. Eight-tenths inch of rain has fallen, and more is threatened. Reports on the Imperial Valley cannot be raised before tomorrow morning.

RETURNS FROM NIMRODS.

Sportsmen of California Pay in Over $45,000 in Licenses, and Much More Expected.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] About 60,000 sportsmen have paid to the State Treasury during the three months over $45,000 for licenses, according to reports received by State Comptroller Nye from the County Clerks of forty-seven of the fifty-eight counties.

It is thought that reports of the remaining—eleven in all—will raise the number of persons in the state who are hunters, to be well over 60,000, and that the Fish and Game Commission, to which the new law allots collections, will have $70,000 or more.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 17.—The War Department officials and the United States Engineers have instructed A. Noble, a special commissioner who is in this city lately, to inquire into the materials that Pacific Coast can furnish for use on the Panama Canal.

Noble sent letters to the Chamber of Commerce of San Francisco, Seattle and Tacoma, in pursuance of the War Department's purpose.

Mr. Ireland, in addition to the commercial bodies of the state of the idea entertained by the department, has sent out a number of carefully prepared questions, the answers to which will give a knowledge of the business men and condition of governmental matters in the sea-carrying of goods, and also will give the government an inside view of trade conditions that have a bearing on canal matters.

BERKELEY, Oct. 17.—Prof. A. O. Leuschner, head of the students' observatory of the University of California, announced today that the center of the disturbance felt on the coast Wednesday, and probably was registered on the instruments in Washington, D. C., was located south of Berkeley, in the channel between the Hawaiian Islands and the south coast of Mexico.

situation that all the wisdom of the big lawyers on both sides could not have unraveled.

The call of the stockholders' meeting contained the usual statement that the books of the company for the transference of stock would be closed until 11 o'clock a.m. today.

At the time the call was issued, it was not dreamed that the stockholders would require more than an afternoon to vote on the four new directors; but the struggle for proxies has been so fierce and so many proxies have been given and revoked—sometimes repeatedly—that two full days have not been enough to enable the experts to decide on the voting lists.

The sudden discovery this morning that the books would be reopened in New York at 11 o'clock brought both factions to a realization of the fact that, unless something was done, each side could go into the market and buy Illinois Central stock and have it transferred.

To have permitted this would have been to throw down the bars and let in confusion worse confounded.

There was a lively skirmish, a hurried consultation, and then Fish and Harriman agreed they would keep out of Wall street all day, and that neither side would buy Illinois Central stock.

A meeting of directors was hurriedly called, and an order agreed upon closing the books again at 3 o'clock this afternoon until 1 o'clock next Tuesday. The order was agreed upon just a few minutes before the New York Stock Exchange opened today.

If any person bought Illinois Central stock in New York today he will not have the privilege of voting it at the present meeting of the stockholders. The "gentlemen's agreement" was not reduced to writing.

PIONEER JUDGE PASSES.

Aged Magistrate of Ukiah Who Crossed Plains in 1849, Dies After Long Illness.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

UKIAH, Oct. 17.—Robert McGarvey, former Superior Judge of Mendocino county, died at an early hour this morning, after a lingering illness, aged 82 years.

In 1849 he crossed the plains from Indiana and located in Stanislaus county, where he was elected County Clerk, and served two terms. In 1861 he moved to this city and practiced law until 1879, when he was elected Superior Judge, and held that position for eighteen years.

SLOPE BRIEFS.

Decision Is Suspended.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 17.—A petition for a writ of prohibition made to the Supreme Court by W. I. Brobeck, Joseph E. Green and G. H. Umbsen, upon which a decision is still awaited, acted as a stay when the charges against these defendants for bribing the Supervisors were called this morning by Judge Dunne. Judge Dunne, who has a motion to set aside the indictments pending before him, will not render a decision until the Supreme Court acts. A continuance of one week was granted.

Editor's Bail Fixed.

SAN JOSE, Oct. 17.—Charles M. Shortridge, ex-State Senator, editor of the daily Times, and former owner of the Mercury, was arrested at noon today on complaint of Congressfan E. A. Hayes on a charge of criminal libel. Shortridge, in a public speech last Wednesday evening, said that he had information that Hayes had burned his former mansion at Edenvale for the insurance, which, with other serious accusations, was published in Shortridge's paper the following morning. Judge Brown fixed Shortridge's bail at $1500.

Killed by Live Wire.

SALINAS, Oct. 17.—W. H. Smith was instantly killed by coming in contact with a live wire, when he stepped on two decayed electric light poles which had fallen during the night. He was about 35 years old, and came here recently from San José.

Accused of Stuffing.

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 17. — William Tobin, a Southern Pacific roadmaster between this city and Benecia, and Luis Choate, his book-keeper, M. Prendiville, and "Buck" Wilson, foreman in charge of working crews, were arrested in this city last night upon a charge of "stuffing" the Southern Pacific Railroad Company's pay roll. It is stated the men raised the roll to the extent of $4000.

Actor Best Coming Back.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 17.—Chief of Police Biggy was notified by wire from Santa Ana that an officer had left the southern city with the necessary papers for the return of George S. Best, the actor, who was arrested here yesterday afternoon on a charge of bigamy.

Park Commissioner Quits.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 17.—Park Commissioner W. J. Dingle yesterday tendered his resignation to the office, to which he was appointed by former Mayor Schmitz. The commissioner assigned as the reason for his resignation that he was unable to attend to the duties because of pressing private business.

Parkside Franchise Granted.

THEY FAVOR TAYLOR.

San Francisco Contractors Cast Almost Solid Straw Vote for Mayor.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] To determine the position of the contractors in the municipal campaign, a straw vote was taken today noon at the Builders' Exchange, with the result that 112 out of 116 members present declared themselves in favor of Taylor for Mayor.

The vote was taken by ballot. A basket was placed on a table in the center of the hall and the members wrote their ballots and placed them in the basket. When the count was announced it appeared that McCarthy and Ryan had each received two votes, while 112 were cast for Taylor.

In view of the claim that has been made by the Union Labor politicians that McCarthy would be able to force the contractors to support him, this is the most significant straw vote which has yet been taken.

After the voting some one secured quarts of Taylor buttons. These were distributed, and the members left, wearing the blue symbol of good government.

LABOR.

RAILWAY WILL TEST 'PHONES.

D. and R. G. Prepares to Supplant Telegraph.

Strike of Operators to Result in Innovation.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

DENVER, Oct. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] It is threatened that before another day has passed the 400 telegraph operators employed on the Denver and Rio Grande Railroad will strike unless the company acquiesces in their demand and reinstates Wire Chief Skeggs, whose dismissal for refusing to test a Western Union wire has caused the differences now existing between the company and operators.

The company has made preparations to operate the trains by use of telephone. If the telephones prove successful on the Denver and Rio Grande, and overcomes the natural difficulties of the mountainous country traversed by its system, Gould will order its adoption on every line throughout the country controlled by him.

This would affect the positions of at least 15,000 or 20,000 telegraphers employed on the Gould lines.

SMALL DEFIES HIS ENEMIES.

TAKES FORCIBLE POSSESSION OF UNION HEADQUARTERS.

Bars Out Members of the National Executive Board With the Aid of Private Detectives and a Policeman and Maintains Position as President of the Organization.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] S. J. Small, deposed head of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union, made an attempt today to regain his lost power in the council of the organization with two private detectives and a city policeman in plain clothes.

The former president of the labor organization entered the headquarters of the union, in the Monadnock building, and forcibly barred out the members of the national executive board from his private office in the suite on the ninth floor of the structure.

Executive board members Konenkamp, Sullivan and Reidy, as well as Secretary Russell, were denied admittance to the rooms when they appeared, shortly after 9 a.m., the detectives preventing their entrance by force.

Former President Small is said to have played a prominent part in the eviction proceedings. Later, the officials succeeded in obtaining legal advice that caused the officers on guard to allow them to take up their tasks for the day.

Mr. Small departed, it was said, for the purpose of getting further legal counsel. He refused to say what were his reasons for employing detectives beyond declaring they were for the purpose of protecting his private papers.

LOOKING FOR JOBS.

OPERATORS SEEK WORK.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Striking telegraphers to the number of twenty-six applied for reinstatement in the western division of the Western Union Company today, according to an official announcement made by the company.

All of the force at Columbia, S. C., asked to be restored to their former positions.

DEER KILLERS' QUEER CASE.

Millionaires Dismissed Because Death of "Fourth Animal" Is Not Proven.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

DENVER, Oct. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Defying the game laws of Colorado and the courts of Routt county, Frank Carnegie, a nephew of Andrew Carnegie, and Harry Whitney and James Benedict, three New York millionaires, are alleged to be slaughtering deer in the Williams Fork country with impunity.

They came out to Colorado two weeks ago to hunt bear and hired two guides, who say that the young men began to kill promiscuously, both for the sport and to bait bear traps.

Deputy Game Warden Bush finally arrested the whole crowd and took them to Pagoda for trial. On the way, Bush says that Alexander Herron, a ranchman, who got in with the sportsmen, offered him $300 if he would drop the prosecution. He spurned the offer.

Bush says that while the trial was in progress the court suddenly adjourned at the request of the Justice of the Peace, Fife, and after twenty minutes the court resumed and suddenly dismissed the case on the ground that the prosecution had not absolutely proven the death of the fourth deer.

Bush today took up the case with State Game Commissioner Farr.

FIGHT FOR LIFE.

MAGILL UNDER SEVERE FIRE.

Banker Is Subjected to Rigid Cross-examination.

Defense Decides Not to Place Fay on Stand.

Expected That Case Will Go to Jury Tonight.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

DECATUR (Ill.) Oct. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] If Fred and Fay Magill are acquitted of the charge of killing McGill's first wife, Pet Gandy Magill, they will owe their freedom to the story of Marguerite, the daughter of the dead woman, and not to the impression made on the stand today by the man on trial.

For an hour and a half Fred Magill was subjected to a withering fire of cross-questions by State's Attorney Redmon. He did not come out unscathed, as did the girl.

While his testimony in the main was unshaken, the effect of his story plainly was not that of a spontaneous utterance, to be expected from a man fighting for his life.

Contrary to the announced programme of the defense, Fay Magill, the young wife, was not placed on the stand. The decision to rest the case came after a fifteen minutes' conference of the Magill attorneys, following Fred's testimony.

MAY GO TO JURY TONIGHT.

Arguments will be heard tomorrow and the case probably will go to the jury about 6 p.m. Three hours of speech-making will be allowed to each side. The State is more hopeful tonight of a verdict against Fred Magill than at any other time during the trial, while the defense is still confident of acquittal. A hung jury will not surprise those who heard the testimony today.

In the cross-examination of Fred, State's Attorney Redmon succeeded in injecting much that was excluded from the record, but that will undoubtedly be made the basis of a closing argument.

One of the remarkable features of Fred's testimony was his inability to remember whether he took Fay Graham home on the night before Pet Magill was found dead. Stress was laid on Fred's alleged gambling and drinking habits during the period he was running through a $60,000 fortune. He admitted he had tended bar for six weeks in 1900.

THROUGH ANOTHER ORDEAL.

Marguerite's testimony was not weakened by a second cross-examination today. With the utmost composure, she again examined the letters alleged to have been written by her dead mother and declared her belief that all were genuine.

Attorney Ingham of the defense read the letters to the jury this morning. For the first time during the trial Fay Magill betrayed marked emotion. As the lawyer, without any attempt at dramatic effect, read that communication charging Fay with the care of Marguerite, the girl-wife pressed her handkerchief to her eyes and her shoulders heaved with emotion. During the rest of the recital she kept her face hidden. When she took down her handkerchief, her eyes were red and her face was flushed.

TELLS OF WIFE'S DEATH.

At the beginning of his testimony, Magill told of his first wife's despondency, and said he saw her propped up in bed with pillows writing letters. He told of the incident testified to yesterday by Marguerite, when a veterarian was called to chloroform a horse, and said that Mrs. Pet Magill said upon the occasion that she wished the chloroform was intended for her instead of the horse. He said Postmaster Davidson of Clinton had told him that Mrs. Magill had told the postmaster that she was taking morphine, and that Davidson had told the witness that he said to her:

"You had better get a gun and kill yourself, instead of taking morphine."

He said that on the night Mrs. Magill said she had requested Marguerite to telephone to Fay Graham not to forget the promise, whatever it was, that Fay had made to Mrs. Magill.

Just before he retired that night the witness said his wife requested him to get her a bottle of beer. He gave her a bottle from the ice chest and then retired. In th morning when he awoke, he said that his wife was not in the room. He made search of the house, and found her in the spare room, lying down with a blanket wrapped tightly around her. He spoke to her, but got no reply, and upon examining her, he found that she was dead. Magill said he detected the odor of chloroform.

Cross-examination brought out that Fred Magill is 38 years old, that he farmed for a while, had been a locomotive fireman and for a year a bookkeeper in a small bank and bartender for six weeks.

DIRECT QUESTIONS.

Asked what in his opinion caused his wife's despondency, he replied:

"Her headaches and the nagging of my mother and sister."

"Yeu never heard her mention any other troubles?"

"I never did."

"Didn't you know people were talking about you running after Fay and Fay running after you, and wasn't your wife worrying about this?"

"She knew people were gossiping about Fay and she was mad about it."

"Were you infatuated with Fay Graham before your wife's death?"

"I was not."

"Were you in love with her?"

"I was not," the witness replied.

"You simply married Fay to carry out your wife's instructions?" the witness was asked.

"I married her to see her protected and because Marguerite urged me to," Magill replied.

"You weren't advised to marry her?"

"I wasn't compelled. I wanted her protected from gossip."

"If your wife had not died you would have got a divorce, wouldn't you?"

"No; divorce was not mentioned."

"You say that the night before she died your wife put her arms around Fay and kissed her?"

"Yes, and told her that if anything happened to her, she must take care of Marguerite."

"There must have been a strong attachment between your wife and Fay?"

"There was."

Magill's cross-examination concluded after the witness had spent four hours upon the stand. His testimony closed the defense's case, and the other defendant, Fay Graham Magill, was not called.

FLASHES FROM WIRES.

AMERICAN RULE IS BENEFICIAL.

Joint Session Held by Philippine Commission.

Gov.-Gen. Smith Reviews History of Islands.

Clash in Assembly—Wood Entertains Taft.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

MANILA, Oct. 17.—A joint session of the Philippine commission and assembly took place this afternoon to hear the message of Gov.-Gen. Smith on the state of the islands.

He reviewed the history of the Philippines and pointed out what had been accomplished by the Americans in comparison with the Spaniards, showing that the American rule had meant improvement, the reduction of taxation and a better distribution among the rich and poor alike of the expense of government, which were less than in any other country in the world having a similar population. He advised spending on schools the money which had hitherto been used in the suppression of disorders.

The Governor-General criticised the Filipino municipalities, for their indifference, neglect and extravagance and advised the adoption of laws for a better administration of municipal affairs. Much of the lack of development of the islands, he said, was due to this maladministration, and especially the failure to maintain in good condition the roads which the government had built. The Governor-General said the assembly would be held strictly to account by the people in connection with the finances of the islands, and he gave the figures for the receipts, expenditures, etc., of the fiscal year of 1906-07.

ROW IN ASSEMBLY.

A clash occurred in the assembly today between the President, Sergio Osmena, Nationalist, and Dominador Gomez, who seconded the President's nomination yesterday in an eloquent speech and who, during the afternoon session yesterday, delivered an address declaring against bringing politics into executive business and asking the delegates to show their patriotism by forsaking party affiliations and legislating for the benefit of the Filipino people. Gomez, whose election is to be contested, but who was formally sworn with the other assemblymen, yesterday, made an appeal to the delegates to disregard politics, but the president stopped Gomez's speech and announced that he would use his authority as president of the assembly to have it stricken from the records.

The delegates were surprised at this early beginning of the fight between the Nationalists, or Conservatives, and the Radicals. The adherents of Gomez, who is leader of the famous Katipunan society and ex-president of the Nationalist party, during the course of the day's proceedings in the assembly defeated a plan to rush through that body a series of special rules or parliamentary procedure, which had been drawn up by the President. The latter, however, managed to secure the temporary adoption of the rules, and it is understood that he will not permit them to be changed.

Petitions against confirmation of the election of the seventeen delegations, including Gomez, Adriatico and Lerma, all of whom are alleged to be unfit to take part in legislation for the islands, were presented today.

WOOD ENTERTAINS TAFT.

Secretary Taft was entertained at luncheon today by Maj.-Gen. Leonard Wood, commander of the military division of the Philippines.

In the afternoon he attended a reception at the Jesuit College and this evening he was present at a reception given in his honor by the officers of the army and navy.

Mr. Taft is not inclined to discuss Philippine issues until after the official banquet, which is to be given him on Monday night, when he will outline the future policy of the government towards the islands. The general impression caused among the Filipinos by the Secretary's speech at the opening of the Assembly yesterday is excellent, but the American papers here call for a prompt announcement of the government's policy towards the islands, declare that Mr. Taft evaded any positive statements on the subject and allege that his speech was a rehash of the addresses which he made here two years ago and which he has since delivered in the United States.

TAFT IS PLEASED.

Secretary Taft toured Manila in an automobile and inspected improvements since his last visit. He said the progress was great and expressed pleasure with the conditions of affairs here and the reports of the Governors of the provinces.

Mr. Taft reiterated his denial that he was disappointed by the result of the recent elections. He expressed confidence that the delegates to the assembly would see the advantage of upholding the present system of government, said he was satisfied with the election of Chief Osmena to the presidency of the assembly, of whose ability he spoke highly, and added that he thought the assembly had made an auspicious beginning which presaged good work in the future. Secretary Taft will spend all his leisure time here in catching up with his correspondence.

GERNOMINO GIVES ADVICE.

Famous Old Apache Chief Tells His People to Adopt the Ways of the White Man.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

COLLINSVILLE (I. T.) Oct. 17.—Leading the way in a huge red automobile to the pow-wow grounds, a half mile east of Collinsville, this afternoon, Geronimo, the old chief of the Apaches, and United States prisoner of war, addressed 1500 Indians, who are attending the big celebration here.

He advised them to adopt the ways of the white man, become educated and study the Christian religion. He spoke in his native tongue, and interpreters translated his address into the language of other Indian tribes and into English.

Lighted by a series of camp fires, with hundreds of Indian braves with feathers and gaudy blankets participating in war dances tonight, a scene is presented like that of the days when the Indian was alone in the wilderness.

MODERN SCHOOLS FOR PEKING.

PEKING, Oct. 17.—Contracts have been awarded for the completion of modern schools on the site of the Peking examination halls, which have long been a curiosity to travelers, consisting of hundreds of small rooms, or cells, for students, and which, since the destruction of the Hamlin College during the seige of Peking, have been the chief Confucion educational relic.

WIRELESS.

DREAM OF MARCONI REALIZED AT LAST.

Wireless Telegraph Stations for Sending Commercial Messages Across the Atlantic Ocean Are Formally Declared Open.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

GLACE BAY (N. S.) Oct. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Wireless telegraphy across the Atlantic for commercial business, the dream of Marconi ever since the day, nearly seven years ago, when the great inventor established wireless communication between St. Catherine's, Isle of Wight, and The Lizard, in Cornwall, a distance of 183 miles, was today realized.

From an experiment made January 25, 1901, over the comparatively short distance between St. Catherine's and The Lizard, proving the principle of the non-interference of the curvature of the earth, which had been anticipated by many scientific men, who had investigated the newly-discovered principle of wireless telegraphy, the idea has extended, step by step, until today the "line" between Glace Bay and Clifden, on the coast of Ireland, was formally declared open for commercial business.

RAPIDLY ADVANCES.

The science of wireless telegraphy has progressed rapidly during the comparatively brief time since Marconi first announced his discovery, which could scarcely be comprehended, even by scientists.

The results of the experiments between St. Catherine's and The Lizard justified Marconi in recommending the erection of a high-power station, with the object of telegraphing wirelessly across the Atlantic. Such a station was erected at Poldhu, in Cornwall, and on December 12, 1901, the first clear and intelligent signals sent across the Atlantic were received from Poldhu at a temporary station located near St. John's, Newfoundland. In commemoration of this event, an official complimentary luncheon was given Marconi by the Governor of Newfoundland, Sir Cavendish Boyle.

IMPORTANT TESTS MADE.

In July, August and September of 1902 Marconi, at the invitation of the Italian government, made a cruise in the warship Carlo Alberto, and during the voyage he carried out important tests in wireless telegraphy.

During these experiments messages transmitted from Poldhu were received across land and water, the first nearly as far as Cronstadt, in the Gulf of Finland, Russia, a distance of 1400 miles, the second at Gibraltar, across the whole of Spain, over a distance of 1000 miles, and the third in the Mediterranean, off the coast of Corsica, over a distnace of 1000 miles, although the whole of France and part of the Alps intervened between the two stations.

Messages in nearly all positions and places visited by the cruiser were received, either on Marconi's receiver, working a tape instrument, or by means of his magnetic receiver. The reports on these tests were signed by Admiral Mirabello, the present head of the Italian navy.

As a result of the success of these tests, the Italian Minister of Marine, at the request of the King of Italy, issued orders that the warship Carlo Alberto should be placed at Marconi's disposal for the purpose of assisting him in the establishment of communication between Canada and England. On October 20, 1902, the Carlo Alberto lef Plymouth and sailed for Sydney, Nova Scotia, and messages were received from Podihu throughout the voyage to Sydney, a distance of 2500 miles.

ACROSS THE ATLANTIC.

After a few weeks' preliminary work at the station, which had, in pursuance of arrangements made between the Canadian government and Marconi, been erected at Glace Bay, Cape Breton, a message was transmitted on December 16, 1902, to the London Times by Dr. Parkin, its own special correspondent, and messages of congratulation were exchanged between King Edward of England, Emperor Victor Emmanuel of Italy and Marconi. Numerous other messages, aggregating several thousand words, were afterward sent from Cape Breton to England.

KING AND PRESIDENT.

Marconi then proceeded to his other high-power station, which had been erected at Cape Cod, in Massachusetts, U.S.A., and early in January, 1903, he sent the following complete wireless telegram across to Poldhu, in Cornwall, England, from the President of the United States to His Majesty, the King of England:

To His Majesty, King Edward VII. In taking advantage of the wonderful triumph of scientific research and ingenuity, which has been achieved in perfecting the system of wireless telegraphy, I extend on behalf of the American people my most cordial greetings and good wishes for you and the people of the British Empire.

[Signed] THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

The following is a copy of King Edward's reply, sent (for reasons previously given) by cable:

To the President, White House, Washington.—I thank you most sincerely for the kind message I have just received from you, through Signor Marconi's trans-Atlantic wireless telegraphy. I sincerely reciprocate, in the name of the British Empire, the cordial greetings and friendly sentiments expressed by you on behalf of the American nation, and I heartily wish you and your country every possible prosperity.

[Signed] EDWARD, R. I.

CONGRATULATIONS ARE SENT TO MARCONI.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

LONDON, Oct. 17.—Several newspapers today received dispatches from the Marconi station at Glace Bay, N. S., and many persons sent congratulatory messages to Marconi, including Lord Mayor Bell, the Duke of Argyll and Lord Strathcona, the Canadian high commissioner.

Several hundred persons attempted to send private messages, but these the company declined.

NOW OPEN FOR BUSINESS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

GLACE BAY (N. S.) Oct. 17.—This morning, the Marconi wireless station here flashed to the station at Clifden, on the coast of Ireland, a message from Sir Wilfred Laurier, premier of Canada, congratulating English people upon the inauguration of trans-Atlantic communication.

The message was addressed to the London Standard, and it was relayed from the English Coast to the British metropolis on the inland lines. Upon the receipt of this message, a dispatch was sent to London through the Marconi stations to the New York Times.

After the first eastward message, England's dispatch to Canada, was received the station was declared formally open for commercial business.

TEXAS BANK CLOSES.

One of Oldest Financial Institutions in Lone Star State Files General Assignment.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

HOUSTON (Tex.) Oct. 17.—One of the oldest banking houses in Texas went to the wall today when T. W. House, banker, filed a general assignment under the State law, W. B. Chew, M. D. Cleveland and J. S. Rice were named as assignees.

It is stated the resources are amply sufficient to pay creditors in full. Inability to realize on securities not readily convertible into cash, is considered the only cause of the assignment. Prior to the assignment, the Houston Clearing House held a prolonged session, but nothing was given out for publication.

The Houston bank was established in 1893 by the father of the present banker. It has weathered successfully every financial storm since that date. It was a private bank, unincorporated, and had never made a statement of any character of its affairs.

It is stated that the bank had deposits of more than $2,000,000.

CASE OF PRESSMEN.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—The application of E. Lawrence Pell, president of the United Typothetae of America, to make permanent the temporary injunction obtained by him forbidding the pressmen and feeders from engaging in strikes and boycotts against the members of the typothetae, in violation of contracts, was argued today before the Supreme Court of Justice McCall. Decision was reserved.

GEN. WILLIAM JACKSON ARMSTRONG'S reminiscences of Gen. Benjamin F. Butler will be a most interesting feature of The Times Magazine the coming Sunday.

STREET SHAKEN.

other firms besides Gross & Kleiburg had suffered heavily through the operations of Otto Heinze & Co. in United Copper. The four were involved, it is said, for about $1,500,000. A statement issued this afternoon by Gross & Kleiberg alleged that Otto Heinze & Co. owed them $600,000.

Max M. Schultze, stock exchange member of Otto Heinze & Co., was indefinitely suspended this afternoon. The official notice said the suspension was "imperative under the rules, inasmuch as he had time and opportunity to notify the exchange of his insolvency and had failed to do so."

United Copper was weak and active on the curb market today. The first sale of the common stock was at $13 as compared with $15 last night. It quickly dropped to $10 and then recovered to $12.50.

TO HELP HIS BROTHER.

F. Augustus Heinze resigned the presidency of the Mercantile National Bank today. He gave out the following statement:

"In view of the difficulties in which my brother's firm finds itself I have determined that I should give liberally all of my time to aid him in straightening out the affairs. In aid of this I have resigned as president, remaining, however, as director."

Otto Heinze & Co. made the following statement at the opening of the Stock Exchange today:

"Arthur P. Heinze is no longer a member of the firm of Otto Heinze & Co. The firm of Otto Heinze & Co. feels itself perfectly solvent, and will meet and pay all its just and legal obligations in full. The firm, however, refuses to pay obligations which it does not consider legal or just until a proper adjustment of the matter has been made. Rather than submit to such unjust demands, it prefers to permit itself to temporarily be suspended from the privileges of the Stock Exchange."

Otto Heinze, it was said, was heavily interested in the corner in United Copper. It was insisted on behalf of F. Augustus Heinze that he himself had nothing to do with the luckless corner.

STARTED WITHOUT CAPITAL.

F. Augustus Heinze is one of the most picturesque and remarkable figures in American financial circles. A graduate of the Columbia School of Mines, he went West without capital, and began the development of copper properties, which brought him into conflict with the great Anaconda company, now a part of the Amalgamated Copper Company. This conflict lasted for years, and was fought out from court to court, until a year or more ago, a compromise was effected. The terms of the peace agreement were not made public, but it was known that Heinze received enough as his share to make him several times a millionaire.

For some time past the situation in the copper shares has been rather unfavorable. For a number of weeks the Amalgamated Copper has been holding down the production of its mines to about half its normal output because of a heavy overproduction of the ore and the refusal of consumers to buy at the prices which had prevailed. Since then, the price of the metal has slowly, but steadily continued to decline.

Following the policy of the American Copper, Clark and Phelps-Dodge interests, the Cerro de Pasco copper mines in Bolivia, South America, it was announced today have reduced their output to 75 per cent. of the normal. The mines have been turning out at the rate of 24,000,000 pounds a year. Their mines are controlled by J. B. Haggin and the Hearst estate.

SUSPENSION.

HEINZE BANK CLOSES DOORS

BUTTE FINANCIAL INSTITUTION SUDDENLY QUITS.

Savings Concern in Which Copper Magnate Is Largest Stockholder and a Director, Suspends Payments, but in Bulletin Issued by Officers Solvency Is Claimed.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

BUTTE (Mont.) Oct. 17.—After having been open only a few minutes the State Savings Bank closed its doors this morning.

A run had been precipitated because of the stories received over private wires that the firm of Otto Heinze & Co. of New York and a large German bank in Hamburg, Germany, had failed. These interests are closely identified with F. Augustus Heinze in his copper mining operations. Heinze is the largest stockholder and a director in the State Savings Bank, which has deposits of about $4,250,000. The following bulletin was posted:

"Because of unsolid conditions and rumors that cannot be verified that may cause unusual demands by depositors, and owing to the shortage of currency and inability to secure additional currency immediately to pay demands which may be made, the management has deemed it advisable in the interest of all depositors to suspend for the time being. The bank is solvent."

A large crowd is gathering in front of the bank, but, considering the circumstances and conditions, they were quite undemonstrative, although there were occasional cries demanding revenge on Heinze and his institutions. The State of Montana is a depositor to the extent of $75,000, but it is amply secured.

Further than the notice, the bank officials made no statement. None of the other banks is affected.

HAS SALT LAKE DEPOSIT.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SALT LAKE CITY (Utah) Oct. 17.—W. S. McCornick, president of the W. S. McCornick Co., one of the most prominent banking concerns in the West, says the embarrassment of the State Savings Bank at Butte will not affect F. Augustus Heinze. Mr. McCornick says that Mr. Heinze has a very large cash deposit in one of the Salt Lake banks. None of the banks here are affected by the Butte bank's troubles.

CORRESPONDENT NOT HIT.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—The Mercantile National Bank of this city, of which F. Augustus Heinze today resigned as president, is a correspondent of the Butte bank, but it is in no way affected by the suspension.

It is stated that Otto Heinze & Co. did not owe the bank a dollar, and F. A. Heinze owes it less than $300,000, which is amply secured. Mr. Larsey, the president, owes it about $7500, and he is able to pay many more times than that amount. The bank holds on hand about $800,000, and its deposits amount to $3,000,000. There are about 4000 depositors, and of this number 575 are commercial deposits, the rest being savings of workingmen.

The directors announced that they will proceed with the building of the new bank, which is nearing completion, and which will cost about $200,000. State Examiner Collins will take charge of the bank tomorrow.

MANY MILLIONS LOST BY MICHIGAN PEOPLE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

HANCOCK (Mich.) Oct. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Upper Michigan people, particularly those of the iron and copper regions, who for years have been heavy traders in mining securities, have been pinched to the extent of millions of dollars in the recent disastrous slump in copper stocks.

Many who held large lines on what a few months ago seemed ample margin have been wiped out entirely. Good-sized fortunes have been lost, business interests have been sacrificed and homes have been mortgaged.

Upper Michigan speculators are consistent bulls, and even when prices began to fall they could see only their favorite side of the market. Now pessimism rules as to the future of the mining stock market, and it is the prevailing sentiment that it will be years before values will get back to their former high level.

James W. Westcott, Brother of Mrs. Tingley, and Wealthy Gambler, Dies of Diabetes.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] James W. Westcott, brother of Mrs. Katherine Tingley, and a widely known and wealthy gambler, died today of diabetes. He was 64 years old.

While at Saratoga, where he owned the Manhattan Club, he contracted pneumonia last month. This reduced his vitality so much he was an easy prey to diabetes, from which he had suffered for years.

Mrs. Tingley had not seen her brother in nearly twenty-five years and she was never reconciled to him.

BIG ORDER FOR RAILS.

Proof Given That Union and Southern Pacific Are Not Planning to Curtail Expenses.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

DENVER (Colo.) Oct. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Enormous orders for rails have been placed with the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company by the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific.

The order was placed through Joseph Chilberg, general sales agent of the Fuel and Iron Company. Chilberg would not state the number of tons, but he said that it was of such magnitude as to set at rest all talk of the Pacific roads curtailing expenses.

He declared it might prove embarrassing to other steel interests to disclose the size of the order.

CELEBRATES GREATEST FIND.

Yesterday evening the Knights of Columbus celebrated the discovery of America by Columbus, 415 years ago. A long programme was given in the large hall in the clubhouse at Figueroa and Twenty-second streets. The attendance was large. The address of welcome was delivered by Paul J. McCormick. A chorus of little Spanish girls sang "El Pabellon Espanol." Miss Marie Aspiroz won applause by the exquisite manner in which she rendered the difficult "La Jota Aragonesa" of Sarasate. Miss Ethel Parker sang Luzzi's "Ave Maria." This was followed by the address of the evening, "The Discovery," by Rev. Juan Caballeria of the Church of Our Lady of Angels. He dwelt on the historical portion of the entertainment and the results of the finding of America. Miss Grace Larieux sang "La Feruiera," and helped dance "El Manzanille" with Mary Vareia. Mrs. Martinez Politte rendered "La Golondrina," and Anthony Schwamm answered the address of Father Caballeria on the part of the Council, and also read a message of regret from Mayor Harper, who was unable to be present. After this the programme was continued in the reception hall and refreshments were served in the dining-room.

Chopping Up Big Diamonds.

Did you ever stop to think that a diamond might be so large as to be without commercial value?

This was what was found out in the case of the famous Excelsior diamond, which was the next to the largest in the world, and as the result it was cut into pieces. About a million dollars was lost in this process, but the million had to be lost in order to obtain the other millions which the fragments were worth. From the big diamond ten gems were cut, ranging from 14 to 68 karats in weight.

Now the famous Premier diamond, the largest in the world, is to suffer a like fate, it is reported. This stone, which was found at the Premier mine in the Transvaal, weighs a little over 1 pound 3 ounces, and measures 4¼ inches in length, 2½ inches in thickness and 1½ inches in breadth. It was sent to England by ordinary registered post, but was insured for $1,250,000. This sum, however, did not represent anything like its value, which, estimated by Tavernier's rule, is about $45,000,000.

No private individual could be found who would pay one-twentieth part of such a sum for any diamond, and in these days governments are not squandering money on crown jewels.

Therefore the owners have now decided to chop it into pieces, and thus the most remarkable of all mineral curiosities appears to be destined to speedy destruction.

Married the Zoo.

A story is told of a Cherokee woman who married six times and has never gotten out of the animal line. When a girl she was known as Mollie Panther. She married an old Indian named Coon, and when that gentleman was transformed to the happy hunting ground she soon became Mrs. Fox. This cunning fellow soon entered the last chase, and the widow married a mild, placid man named Mule, who never had any kick coming till he harnessed up to draw his load over the great divide.

After a period of mourning this much-married woman again entered the realms of matrimonial bliss and became Mrs. Wolf; but his scalp was soon sent to the great Father with his remains, and she became the wife of a man named Tiger, and when Mr. Tiger changed his stripes for a pretty white robe in the great beyond, the widow became Mrs. Hogg.

It is said that, despite the fact that this remarkable woman has lived with all the beasts of the field, she is a woman of refined instincts, a good wife and mother, and in her present surroundings her home is as clean as a pin.—[Carlisle Arrow.

CAPTURE HINDU CONTRABANDS.

TEXAS-MEXICAN BORDER MEN UNEARTH THEIR PLOT.

Hundreds of East India Laborers Now in Southern Republic, Scheming to Enter United States Under Direction of Employment Agency, Which Elicits Money for Advice.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

GALVESTON (Tex.) Oct. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The capture of six Hindus, who were stealing into the United States from Mexico, has given the immigration inspectors of the Texas-Mexican border a clew to a scheme to import this class of Indian laborers.

After a two days' "sweating" process the immigration authorities ejected the information from the prisoners that there are several hundred of their countrymen in Mexico, and more coming, who are headed for the United States.

It is learned that the Hindus are acting upon advice furnished them by some agency acquainted with conditions in the States, and that the aliens are paying money for the information. But under the pretense of not understanding the English language, or customs, the Hindus refuse to disclose the scheme, and immigration agents have been dispatched into Mexico to locate the rendezvous of the foreigners.

The border guard along the Rio Grande River has been increased, and it is said that the six Hindus captured were eight days within sight of the river before they succeeded in crossing it, only to be foiled.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

THE HAGUE, Oct. 17.—The Peace Conference today adopted its final act, which was recorded in the minutes as follows:

"The second International Peace Conference, first proposed by the President of the United States, having been, through the invitation of His Majesty, the Emperor of All the Russias, convoked by Her Majesty, the Queen of the Netherlands, met June 15, with the mission to further develop the humanitarian principles which were the basis of work of the first conference.

"In a series of sittings in which the delegates were constantly animated by a desire to meet the intentions of the initiator of the conference, as well as of those of the governments participating, the following conventions were agreed upon for the signatures of the plenipotentiaries:

"First—The peaceful regulation of international conflicts.

"Second—Providing for an international peace court.

"Third—Regulating the rights and duties of neutrals on lands.

"Fifth—Covering the laying of submarine mines.

"Seventh—The matter of the collection of contractual debts.

"Eighth—The transformation of merchantmen into warships.

"Ninth—The treatment of captured crews.

"Tenth—The inviolability of fishing boats.

"Eleventh—The inviolability of the postal service.

"Twelfth—The application of the Geneva convention and the Red Cross to sea warfare, and,

"Thirteenth—The laws and customs regulating land warfare.

was his right to inquire into the jurors' state of mind in that respect.

Heney was permitted to reframe and reput his question, after laying a foundation, and drew from Berg the statement that he felt no hostility toward the prosecution on any account. He was passed by Heney for cause, and likewise by Rogers.

In redirect examination, Heney asked a question which will frequently be repeated by him before a jury is finally chosen, and which is, perhaps, a hint that in this second trial of Ford the prosecution will not call Abe Ruef to the stand.

The question was:

"Have you any scruples against returning a conviction on circumstantial evidence if that evidence satisfies you that the act complained of was committed as charged?"

Berg answered negatively, and was accepted—subject to peremptory challenge—as probationary juror No. 1.

The eight jurors who in the first trial of Ford voted for acquittal let it be understood afterward that they refused to convict because the evidence was purely circumstantial, the prosecution having failed to keep its promise to call Ruef to the stand. Ruef was to testify, according to the prosecution, that Ford gave him the United Railroads money, which the Supervisors have confessed they accepted in bribes.

JEWELER HAD ONE.

John R. Jenkin, jeweler, said he had formed an opinion of the guilt or innocence of Ford, but could and would set it aside. He would not be influenced against a conviction by the fact that the Supervisors had been granted immunity as the price of their testimony.

Jeweler Jenkin withstood the questionings of both sides, and was accepted tentatively as juror No. 2.

Arthur Brown, architect, qualified as No. 3. George W. Turner, a director of the Bohemian Club, stuck to the assertion that he had an unalterable opinion. He was excused by consent.

James H. Jones, stationer, escaped in a like manner. Over the sixth man in the box, Martin F. Cosgriff, a merchant, the opposing counsel engaged in a lengthy dispute.

Cosgriff said he had a fixed opinion, then seemingly contradicted himself by declaring he could set it aside; yet if no evidence were offered, he would vote the defendant guilty. Rogers challenged, Heney resisted, and Judge Lawlor disallowed the challenge.

Shailer Scott, engaged in the hardware business, had formed and expressed the qualified opinion that "if what the papers say is true, they are all guilty." He was excused on challenge by the prosecution.

Louis Joseph, retired merchant, was excused for having a fixed opinion, as also was Thomas Wilson, a contractor.

Charles W. Withington, a dealer in lime, said that his fellow-membership with Ford in the Masonic order would make it difficult for him to believe the defendant guilty. He doubted if he could do impartial justice as a juror. Heney promptly challenged and Attorney A. A. Moore, for the defense, resisted.

In cross-examination, Moore asked several intimate questions:

"The tenets of the Masonic order do not obligate you to shield any guilty man, do they?"

"No."

"If they did you would regard that order as a menace to the community, would you not?"

"Yes."

"If they did you would regard that order as a menace to the community, would you not?"

"Yes."

"You did not mean to say that the fact that both you and Gen. Ford are Masons would make you negligent in the performance of your sworn duty? You did not mean that you or any other Mason is so taught by the order?"

To this Heney objected, saying that Moore was lecturing the juror to affect him and any other jurors who might happen to be Masons. Moore disavowed it, and amended his question.

Withington declared finally that he had a fixed opinion, and on the strength of that Judge Lawlor sustained Heney's challenge.

BEFORE HER FALL.

Will Executed Two Years Ago by Mrs. Chadwick, Giving Away Over Million Dollars.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

CLEVELAND, Oct. 17.—After Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick's body was lowered into the grave at her childhood home, Woodstock, Ont., there was made public in this city a will she made two years before her strange criminal career was exposed.

There is a remarkable contrast between the pathetic funeral scene in the little Canadian cemetery and the picture of opulence told in the words of the will. Altogether, it is one of the most interesting documents yet found in connection with Mrs. Chadwick's operations. The will disposes of over $1,000,000 worth of property. In that her son, daughter and husband, retinue of servants, relatives in distant cities and friends all share to the extent of hundreds of thousands. Charitable institutions, ten of them, come into the extent of $20,000 to $100,000 each. The Humane Society was to get $50,000. Western Reserve University was bequeathed $100,000 cash, and was to benefit under other generous provisions.

In every case of bequest to an institution, Mrs. Chadwick stipulated that she would receive full credit, ordering that the funds be named "Chadwick Memorial Funds," and that if buildings be erected they be called "Chadwick" buildings.

Chief of One Tribe North of Winnipeg Sentenced to Be Hanged—So-Called "Brave" Confesses Horrible Atrocities Committed by Redskins. Sick Relatives Tortured to Death.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WINNIPEG (Man.) Oct. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] That Indian tribes living within a few hundred miles of Winnipeg have reverted to the most brutal savagery was brought out at the trials of chieftains of the Salteux tribe, just ended at the Hudson Bay Company's fort at Norway.

Sick and helpless members of the tribe were strangled and burned at the stake for no other reason than to relieve their relatives of caring for them.

Chief Joseph Pesequan was convicted of murder, and sentenced to die.

Chief Jack of the "Sucker" band of the same tribe, strangled himself to death in his cell the night before the date set for his trial.

Two brothers named Rae are in jail at Norway House awaiting trial for several murders.

"Eyelids," a brave of the Crane band, gave sensational testimony, specifically describing five strangulations and burnings in which he participated.

In one instance the strangulation was not complete, and the victim was placed on a platform over a huge fire where he was slowly roasted to death.

After the execution of Chief Joseph, "Eyelids" will be sent back to the North to tell his tribesmen what happens to stranglers.

PRINCESS PREDICTS DEATH.

Declares Three Cardinals Will Again Pass Away, but Pope Laughs at Old Tradition.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ROME, Oct. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The popular tradition that the deaths of Cardinals occur in groups of three, and within three months, which was apparently confirmed not long ago when Cardinals Svampa, Macchi and Steinhuber passed away, is again to be confirmed soon, according to Princess D. Antuni, the spiritualist.

The Princess predicts as imminent the death of her uncle, Cardinal Del Drago, and says she is convinced that two other Cardinals are bound to die within the quarter.

Mgr. Gabrinski, the Vatican Master of Ceremonies, who is also related to the Princess, communicated the prediction to the Pope, who smilingly said he believed neither in the tradition nor in the spiritualist's prophecy, both of which he declared were foolish superstitions.

RYAN TO RETIRE.

New York Traction Magnate, It Is Reported, Thinks It Proper Time to Get Out.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Thomas F. Ryan, one of the chief figures in the local traction field, is to retire from further participation in the traction affairs of the city, according to statements published in the Press today.

A recent conference between Mr. Ryan and August Belmont, presumably regarding the pending investigation of traction affairs by the Public Service Commission, have given life to the reports of Mr. Ryan's retirement.

Mr. Ryan, it is said, will retire voluntarily, and in doing so will lend his influence, so far as he is able, to the solution of the problem which the traction managers are facing. It has been for some time his intention to withdraw from the management of various enterprises, and it is stated the opinion of his associates in the Interborough-Metropolitan and its allied corporations, that such a withdrawal would be opportune in the present crisis, is understood to coincide with his own.

UP AGAINST PLOT.

Several Hundred Actors and Actresses May Be Arrested in Kansas City.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

KANSAS CITY (Mo.) Oct. 17.—Unusual tactics are, it is stated, to be employed here in the attempt to close the local theaters Sundays by the arrest Saturday morning next of every actor and actress then in the city who may have played here in alleged violation of the law against working on Sunday.

This would involve several hundred persons on the boards of the sixteen theaters, large and small, in Kansas City.

In his fight to close the theaters, Judge Wallace of the Criminal Court has not received the support of the local police department. The court is determined that his recent order to close the theaters on Sunday shall be carried into effect, and it comes from a high authority that this new move will have his sanction.

The sixteen theatrical managers indicted yesterday for a violation of the Sunday law, appeared in court today and gave bond for their hearing at a date to be set later.

LINCOLN (Neb.) Oct. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Ferguson adultery case is almost ready for argument. Rev. Ferguson this afternoon monotonously denied all the allegations of Mrs. Cross. He admitted being with her on the occasions named, but denied all criminality.

Dr. C. E. Coffin and daughter gave testimony which slightly corroboated Ferguson.

It is thought arguments will take all day tomorrow. Ferguson's attorneys will try to establish the conspiracy theory.

CARNES DROPS TIGHT GAME.

Los Angeles, 2; Oakland, 1.

Many persons believe the Looloos are playing with the Portland Cellar Champions out at Chutes Park, every day.

This is one grand mistake, for while they make a noise like the others, there is a little more harmonious activity, this week, and those that are here now act more like ball players. It doesn't seem to make any difference, however, what name they answer to, for they all look alike.

Van Haltren tried Carnes on the locals, yesterday, and he fit beautifully. That is, on Cravath, Dillon and Delmas. They found him just when he tried to hide the most of himself and this is why the locals came out on top again in one of the nicest little tight-wad games of this final series.

The three things to brag about in the struggle were Cravath's home run over the left fence; Ellis's fine running catch in center field of Eagan's high liner in the eighth inning, and the good pitching of both Carnes and Gray. There was no lost motion in that homer, for when Cravath came to bat in the fourth, he hit the first pitched ball over the fence almost on a line. Ellis had to wait until the first of the eighth inning to show his class on how to pick Truck Eagan's choicest out of the air on the run; and the pitching was good all the time.

Funny thing about that pitching—Carnes allowed but three hits and two of them made runs and Gray gave the enemy but four swats. These are the kind of feats one reads about. With all this fine work, Carnes passed six men and Gray walked three and hit two, so neither had anything on the other.

As a matter of fact, Gray would have shut out the Smithy Kanes if Brashear had not made two fatal bungles in the seventh inning and both within two minutes. Bigbie hit a grounder to the Kitten, which he permitted to slip through his legs. Then Haley bunted one towards third base, which caught the Kitty asleep. He ran up on it but couldn't throw Haley out at first. Bigbie tore down to second on this and seeing no one at third base, dashed for that bag. Carlisle had sneaked in to third and Brashear threw the ball towards him. It was a wild heave and went through Carlisle to the left bleacher fence. Bigbie sprinted to the plate on this and Haley foolishly tried to reach third. Carlisle raced after the ball and got it back to third in time to catch Haley. That was all.

After Cravath had scored on his homer in the fourth, Bernard started the fifth by walking. Then Carlisle sacrificed him to second and then Dillon dropped a fly back of short that neither Eagan nor Smith could reach, and while they were trying, Bernard shot around third base and scored.

It certainly was fine business all the way and the interest was frenzied over with the crimson hue of excitement, because of the strange attempted out that Bill Devereaux tried to make. While at bat, one of the Los Angeles men swung at a pitched ball and the bat slipped from his hands and flew over towards Devereaux. Bill immediately picked it up and threw it towards Bigbie at first, but the throw was short and the batsman was not out. The 1000 fans laughed at this, for they realized that Bill is always trying.

PLAYERS RELEASED.

NEW MEN FOR SAN DIEGO.

Wolleben and Murdock, first baseman and left fielder of the San Diego Pickwicks, have been released by Manager Palmer who has signed Downey and Meyers in their places. Downey will play second base in the series with the Dyas-Clines Saturday and Sunday; Hanrahan will be shifted to third, and Starr will go in the outfield.

BEAVERS SHUT OUT.

STREIB'S HITTING WINS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] With Oscar Jones as chief of staff, the Seals won a game today by a 2 to 0 score. Groom's base on balls was responsible for one of the runs, but clean-cut two-base hits by Melchoir and Streib brought in the other tally. In fact, young Streib was quite a factor. It was his single that scored the first run with two out, and he did the same in the eighth.

Both Jones and Groom were pitching well, but the luck broke for the San Franciscan. He had a narrow shave from disaster in the fourth, when a couple of singles and an error by Williams filled the bases, with but one down. Outside of this inning, there were few openings for Portland.

In the fourth, Melchoir walked, and was sacrificed to second by Wheeler, and sent to third by Zeider. Streib brought him home with a single through short. The last tally came in the eighth, when Melchoir once more started trouble with a two-base hit. Wheeler doubled on the sacrifice game, and, after Zeider had fanned, Streib hit to left for two bases, and was caught at third trying to stretch it into a triple. But the run counted just the same. ### SANTA MONICA GETS IT.

PENNANT FOR BEACH COMBERS.

At a meeting of the Southern Coast League directors, last night, the protested game between Santa Monica and the Thistle team was given to Santa Monica. This ruling gives the league pennant to the Beach Combers. The standing of the three leading teams is:

| | Won. | Lost. | P.c. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Santa Monica | 17 | 3 | .850 |
| Thistles | 15 | 5 | .750 |
| Nofsigers | 15 | 6 | .714 |

New Amateur League.

"Red" Perkins, the demon organizer, launched another amateur league, last night, and it is the intention to call it the Winter Coast League. A meeting will be held October 30 to elect permanent officers. It is proposed to have in the league the Huntington Beach, Thistles, Norwalk, Seal Gardens, Santa Monica, Watts Stars and the Alhambra teams.

BALK-LINE BILLIARDS.

Seymour Defeats Kennedy in First Game of Four for Total of Twelve Hundred Points.

Local enthusiasts on billiards saw a fine match last night at Berry's rooms on South Spring street, between Arthur Seymour and George Kennedy, when they played 300 points at 18:2 balk line, being the first of four games for a total of 1200 points. Seymour won by a score of 300 to 141. He was in fine form and made runs of 56, 43, 41, and ran out in the twenty-first inning with an unfinished run of 21, for an average of 14 6-21. He made his 56 in the eighth inning and came back in the ninth with 43. Kennedy was off his regular game and averaged but 7. He made his high run of 42 in the thirteenth inning. A good sized crowd watched the game and the applause was generous.

Another game of 300 points will be played this evening and the final two next Monday and Tuesday. Play starts at 7:30 o'clock.

TEMPUS FUGIT IS GIVEN THE FLAG.

TALENT SUFFERS HARD BLOW BY DEFEAT OF FAVORITE.

Starter Blunders in Letting Trotter Get Away in Breaking Score. xMargaret O. Is Given Chance to Show Class After First Heat of the West Stake.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LEXINGTON (Ky.) Oct. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Through the defeat of Tempus Fugit in the first race here today, the talent was given the hardest blow of the meeting. After scoring several times for the first heat, the starter let the field go with Tempus Fugit in the rear and in a break as he passed under the wire. Before Geers could get him on his feet, the other horses were a quarter of a mile in the lead and he was hopelessly shut out.

Florence and St. Peter also caught the flag in the first heat, which was full of mishaps. Codero, getting a flying start, trotted away from the field as if he was much the best and won easily. Margaret O. easily took the next three heats. Summaries:

FREDDIE WEEKS SHOWS CLASS.

Cripple Creek Fighter Works for Twenty Rounds.

Hits Straight from Shoulder and Punches Hard.

Celebrates Twentieth Birthday With Extra Stunts.

Freddie Weeks, the Cripple Creek featherweight, who is training at Arcadia to meet Abe Attell, October 29, was 20 years old Wednesday. No proclamation announced the event, and few of the visitors at his training quarters were aware that the quiet young fellow, who went through twenty rounds of work, was celebrating his birthday with a few extra stunts.

Visitors at Weeks's camp yesterday were greatly impressed by the showing he made. The general opinion seems to be that if Attell ever gets close to Weeks and leaves an opening, the strong little Denver fighter will put him out. Weeks has a dangerous punch, and a way of landing his blows straight from the shoulder. He does not swing, but hits straight out and hard.

It is conceded that Attell is his master in cleverness and pretty boxing, but as he is an infighter, and often dodges blows by stepping forward instead of backward, the fans are figuring on the possibility of Weeks slipping in some staggering punches.

Weeks is much stronger than Attell, and hits cleanly. In former fights the Denverite has often been far outboxed in the opening rounds, but has outlasted his opponents, and always finishes strong. His encounter with Attell will be another case of a fighter against a clever boxer, and Weeks's chances are considered good.

Attell is a flat-footed fighter, and works close to his opponent. When he fought Frankie Neil he stepped in on nearly every swing, and Weeks's friends declare that these tactics will be the undoing of the little champion.

Weeks has been in the fighting game a year and a half, has fought twelve times and scored nine knockouts. He claims to be an undefeated man. He has beaten Jimmy Walsh and Harry Baker on points.

ARDUOUS ROUTINE.

Weeks has done twenty rounds of work every day since Wednesday. He divides his time between the physical exerciser on the wall, the punching bag, jumping rope, and boxing. He does not use a wrist machine, and favors handball most of all as a means of getting into condition. As there is no court at Arcadia he is without this from of exercise.

During the week Weeks's sparring partner has been Lew Troutman, a Philadelphia boy, who accompanied Weeks from Denver, as trainer. Troutman held the watch for sixteen rounds on Weeks yesterday, and then boxed with him four rounds more. He is no fighter, however, or boxer, either, and Weeks is to have better talent to assist him this week, when Joe Smith shows up.

Lord Fauntleroy visited Arcadia Thursday, and promised to send out both Abdo the Turk and Leonard Lauder for Weeks to work on for the remainder of his training. The Turk is expected to furnish the slugging, and Lauder the boxing and fancy work, and the combination should be a great help to the Denverite.

The Turk has a match scheduled with Kid Farmer, who is working with Attell, as a preliminary to the Weeks-Attell go.

A feature of the workout yesterday was a piano accompaniment to Weeks's bag punching and rope jumping, by Phil Stevens, who styles himself the champion all-around piano player of the world. This furnished the fighter, as well as the little crowd of spectators, considerable amusement.

Weeks will visit McCarey's office today, and have all his measurements taken, when an exact comparison with Attell's dimensions will be made.

M. Durand, manager of the Denver fighter, said yesterday: "If Weeks makes a good showing I will be satisfied. I think he will beat Attell, for he is very strong and a hard hitter, but I will be satisfied with a creditable showing if he fails to win."

NOW FOR BATTLE.

DENVER ELEVEN HAS DAY'S REST.

MOUNTAINEERS TO VISIT SAN PEDRO HARBOR.

Coach Koehler Has Patched Up His Injured Team Into Pretty Fair Condition — Coach Hempel Satisfied With His Men Although Several Have Severe Colds.

With the practice at Fiesta Park yesterday morning, the Denver University football team ended active work in preparation for the game with St. Vincent's tomorrow. Coach Koehler has planned a trip to San Pedro for his gridiron warriors today, and except for a little signal practice the squad will pass the day in complete relaxation.

With but four of his sixteen men free from bruises or sprains on Monday, Coach Koehler now has an even eleven players in good shape. If any of the men of his first line-up get hurt in the game a "cripple" will take his place.

The Denver team has a dozen secret plays in store for Saturday's game which have not been tried on the local field since the team arrived for fear of their detection. Most of them have been tried in the signal practices held in the rooms at the Hollenbeck, and probably will be sprung against St. Vincent's.

Tomorrow's contest promises to be a fast, open game and a good exposition of the intercollegiate game as played under the new rules. Sensational plays should be frequent, as the teams are about evenly matched and will be forced to resort to tricks in order to score. Kicking will be resorted to frequently, in all probability, and the St. Vincent's players should excel in this department.

Denver is weak in kicking and in handling punts, and the team has been given very little practice in these points this week. Most of the time passed in practice at Fiesta Park has been used in practice formations and speedy execution of plays. The warm climate has tended to enervate the mountain players, but Coach Koehler expects his protegés to return from San Pedro completely braced up by the sea air.

Most of the members of the Denver squad had never seen the ocean before visiting Ocean Park Tuesday, and today they will get their first sight of a harbor and ocean-going vessels.

Denver is expected to have a fast team on the field tomorrow, able to rattle off their plays in rapid succession, and good on the defensive. Yesterday morning was largely taken up with forming defense for imaginary plays by the opponent team, and the eleven is drilled thoroughly in defense for all the usual plays.

Bartell, substitute quarter, will play with the Denverites tomorrow, as Andrews, the regular man, is out of the game with an injured leg. Bartell weighs 125 pounds, and is very fast, but is not as good a field general as Andrews. Bartell is a champion amateur swimmer, and captured several races at the St. Louis fair in 1904.

The Denver players will leave Los Angeles Sunday morning and arrive home on Wednesday. On Saturday, October 26, Denver will play the University of Colorado.

Following will be the line-up tomorrow:

| St. Vincents. | | Denver University. |
|---|---|---|
| Grindel (c.) | l.e.r. | Talt, (mgr.) |
| Leffert | | |
| Brinhoff | l.t.r. | Dore |

ST. VINCENT'S RALLY.

TEAM IN FAIR CONDITION.

A big football rally will be held at St. Vincent's this afternoon. The students and players will be addressed by President Glass, a number of the alumni, and some of the old football stars. The rain has not dampened the ardor of the St. Vincentians, and the rooters' club has been working yells. Both teams will occupy boxes at the Orpheum Saturday evening.

Despite the prevailing weather conditions the advance seat sale has been brisk. Several large blocks have been reserved for the Knights of Columbus, alumni and other organizations.

The officials will not be chosen until late Friday afternoon.

The squad finished its last hard practice for the Denver game yesterday. A few short blackboard instructions will be given, meanwhile, and an effort will be made to break up several bad colds among the men. With practice twice daily, the players have rounded into good condition and appear to be fit physically. Provided the field is not too slow, they should maintain a fast pace with ease.

The Saints will be weak at center, and the quarterback position is none too strong. Huppert, who at present fills the latter place, is a regular halfback, and has never played at that position before. When the veteran quarter, McDowell, failed to return to school Hempel picked Huppert as the most likely candidate. Though he has tried hard and shown much improvement, his lack of experience is quite noticeable. With three men, Holleran, Huppert and Gus Nast, weighing under 150 pounds, it is doubtful is the Vincentians will have an advantage in weight.

Hempel may not be able to use a double set of backs, as he has previously planned. Brannen received a bad ankle in the practice game with Los Angeles High, Tuesday. With Klem out for the last two weeks and Brannen on the shelf, he will be shy on extra backs. Casey will be the only regular left who is familiar with the signals. Beaton, a second-squad man, has not been with the regulars long enough to be of much value. Hempel says he is satisfied with the eleven, and with Capt. Grindle expresses the hope that they will win.

FOOTBALL TODAY.

HARVARD AND OCCIDENTAL.

Occidental Academy and Harvard Military School teams are to play football this afternoon at 4 o'clock on the Presbyterian campus.

The Presbyterian "preps" have been strengthened greatly since their last game, and expect to win from the cadets. The average weight of the team is above that of the ordinary secondary eleven, and with a little experience the young Presbyterians should cut some figure in local High School circles. McNary, McInnis and McLaughlin, who hold down the three positions in the center of the line, weigh 225, 185 and 187 pounds, respectively.

The 'varsity held its last scrimmage last night until after the game with Whittier College tomorrow at Whittier. Light signal practice will be held this afternoon. The team is in good condition for the match with the Quakers, and about fifteen men will be given a chance in the game. Johnson is the only man on the injured list at present, but he will be in condition for the game with Los Angeles High School on October 28.

The Presbyterians have followed Pomona in cancelling her game with U.S.C., and Manager Crane notified the Methodists that the contest scheduled for November 23 is off.

San Diego Y.M.C.A. is anxious to meet Occidental in Los Angeles, and the Presbyterians are considering the challenge. The San Diegans are said to have a strong team, capable of giving any of the local colleges a hard tussle.

DISCOVERS NEW STAR.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

SAN BERNARDINO, Oct. 17.—The local High School team has only been able to get out twice for practice this week, owing to the rainy weather, but with the experience of last Saturday's game fresh in their minds, they are playing a fine game, notwithstanding the fact that several of their men are out of the game for several weeks. Coach Clapp has been out with his team at each practice, drilling the men in the many weak points displayed in their first contest of the season against the Castaways.

The team to meet the Castaways in Los Angeles on Saturday, October 19, has not been selected. Two new forwards and one half are to be selected from among the younger players, and by the showing made this week few are showing up as winners.

A new man from Montana has been out for practice and he has the making of a star. For a new man he is outplaying any one on the team, and it is very likely that he will be at a three-quarter in Saturday's contest, taking the place of Miller, who will be placed at half. He has played the old game three years, and he shows the results, for he is exceedingly fast and seems to have Pat Higgins beaten in the dodging stunt.

With only one day more for practice the boys are very confident and are determined to play the Castaways as good a game as last Saturday, even though several new men will be in the ranks. The team will arrive in Los Angeles at 11 o'clock Saturday, and, if possible, will go to the field for a short practice.

POMONA TROUBLES.

INJURIES HANDICAP PLAYERS.

CLAREMONT, Oct. 17.—The Pomona football team is in a crippled condition, and may have a hard time in defeating the Los Angeles High School youngsters Saturday. Several players have received minor injuries. Capt. Metcalf's kicking leg has been causing him much trouble and probably he will not be able to do his usual share of footwork. Rogers, the new full-back, is having trouble with his knee, and will not be able to hit the line with his usual vigor. Halfback Mahoney is a little lame in the ankle, but will be in good trim Saturday.

Valle has been playing end and half and doubtless will get a chance at one of the positions. The Spurgeon brothers are in fine fettle, and much is expected of "Bob" in the coming contest. Eames is putting up a good game at guard, and may replace Bryant at some period of the game and be given a chance to demonstrate his gridiron ability.

In anticipation of Saturday's game a large student rally will be held in the Renwick gymnasium tomorrow, in order to arouse enthusiasm.

YOUNGSTERS ACTIVE.

GAME FOR HOLLYWOOD.

Hollywood High School's second team will play the St. Vincent's third eleven this afternoon at 3 o'clock on the Hollywood grounds. Both teams have some good players.

Arrangements are being made for a tennis meet between Hollywood High and Glendale, Saturday morning, at Hollywood. Contestants to represent Hollywood will be chosen today.

CHANGES IN TERM.

HIGH SCHOOL SHIFTS MEN.

The Los Angeles High School football team will have several changes on their line-up for the Pomona game, Saturday. Walker probably will play tackle instead of guard. Adams, a new man on the team, will play left guard. Two years ago he played with the Polytechnic squad. With practice Adams should make the best line man on the team. ## QUAIL HUNTERS MAKE WETTING.

Tale Telling Hardest of Hard Luck Tales.

Plentiful Everywhere, but Few Limits.

Coronado Valley Becomes a Battle Ground.

Reports of quail in the first three days of the season have been scarce and the rain which caused the birds to dive and refuse to be flushed by hunters were unequal to the task of burying the wet and disheartened home warty on account of rain was falling. Aside from the temporary loss of benefit. By washing and laying dust, it is said favorable conditions for a day that are ever to be had in Southern California, and if birds should combine to make a banner year for the man with a trained setter or pointer. Under right conditions a good dog is a necessity. There are spots where the crushed land lie which slope toward the hills, and these these the cover is thick and little over knee high to any dog, and a dog has a decided advantage in locating the quail.

This has been the rule in the Coronado Valley all the week, and the poorest shoot of all the season. Plenty of game is reported. There are many bands of quail, as usual, and the vicinity of the railroad track as are reported "lousy" with Notwithstanding pleasing variety of new brush this opening by all hunters, it seems to make the birds lie more closely than they did, thereby contributes materially to the ease of getting a limit. The liberal rainfall has much the same combined effect on the deer hunters.

SOUTHERN PARE.

Dr. Colby and a party went out this morning in an automobile, planning to cross the Fremont Pass above Julian. They managed to get the machine over the summit, but being back the car balked at the grade and finally Big John came home on the train.

George Slotterbeck bagged twenty quail the first day, not far from Fernando.

J. A. Graves, Robert E. Ross, and a party of five went to Perris in Graves's automobile, Tuesday, and bagged the limit—125 quail for the outfit. They shot on the Newport ranch.

Chris Krempel, Joe Singer, Max Friese and Dr. Sparrevohn sallied forth to Vineland on the Covina electric line the first day and got a wetting. Singer and Sparrevohn did not shoot the oil out of their guns. Krempel made the finest score of his experience in quail hunting—100 per cent. He shot at one quail and got it. Disgusted, the party, all but Friese, returned early; Friese claims to have killed thirteen quail and four rabbits.

John Morrison and a party went to the Big Tejunga. Morrison got one quail; the rest bagged what the small boy shot at.

Harry Slotterbeck, M. Vincent, Louis Streuber, and J. Cass will itry the Four Corners of the Puente Sunday.

Albert Kittle of Hollywood went to Fernando for the opening shoot, but had hard luck. William B. Cline and a friend also tried the valley with poor results.

Don McFarland, Hal Braly and Frank Gillelen bagged their limits in four hours the opening day, and also got a few ducks, having made the trip to look at a mine. The side issue proved an unqualified success, the hunting being very good.

Homer Kennedy, Ed Vaughan, and Druggist Watson of Orange will hunt today in the vicinity of Olive and expect to get the limit easily. Henry Kennedy may accompany them.

Dr. Colby was one of the lucky few who reported a limit the first day, killed on his old stamping grounds near Fernando in the Pacoima country.

P. B. Roy, who went out to the Pacoima with a party of three for a two days' hunt reported killing two limits.

Ralph Deming, H. L. Phelps and Harry Ogle will put in a week at Elsinore, leaving today.

E. L. Blanchard, Charles A. Alexander, and Willie Laws also will leave today for Imperial for a few days' ducks and quail.

SOARING HIGH.

CLUB DUCK HUNTERS STRAIN THEIR GUNS.

RAIN of the day before played havoc with the duck shooting Wednesday, as it always does in this land of artificial ponds and circumscribed shooting.

Among duck hunters under eastern conditions, rain produces good sport, and a downpour is regarded as the most favorable of omens. Only under certain rather unusual conditions does it do the sport any good in Southern California, however, and early showers are detrimeneal to the duck hunters in the South.

The waxing of the moon also is an unfavorable period for duck hunters on the clubs, although about Imperial, where night shooting is in vogue, law or no law, moonlight nights are ranked the best of all. Here the fowl have a chance to feed and water all night, and are filled to repletion by morning, when they stand very little shooting before leaving for the briny beyond.

The experiment of running up coast in a launch to break up the floating rafts of ducks on the ocean has been tried by some shooters, but, as a rule, they had little success. The ducks allow a close approach the first few times, but soon learn a launch is "loaded," giving her a wide berth and flying farther out to sea.

WEDNESDAY'S POOR SPORT.

The Chico country proved about the worst shoot of the season Wednesday, and it was hard work for the best shots on the best clubs to get together a limit bag by staying with the game half a day.

Ducks seemed fairly plentiful, although nothing to what was in sight a week previous. Sprigs proved wilder than ever, but would decoy well, if given the chance. Teal apparently came down on the rain in some force, being much more numerous than on any previous shoot. A few spoonbills, and a relatively much larger proportion of mallards were on hand also. A few of the clubs got some of these fine, big birds.

Only two guns were out on the Chico Land and Water Company. Chris Krempel and Ed Golter, both getting the limit by noon. They shot all the ducks that came along, and were not as particular as usual.

The Green Wing Land and Water Company got a larger proportion of what sport there was going than has been its luck thus far, Gen. C. F. A. Last killing thirty-three, Aug. Winstel twenty-seven, Jacob Fieber twenty-three, and a guest seventeen. Teal and sprigs, the former predominating, made up the bag.

William Frick was the only member of the Christopher Club who was out, he bringing a guest. Both had a fair shoot, rather better than has fallen to the lot of the club this year. Frick, who is now commissary, has ordered the ponds cleaned out, and the club will try to regain the good sport it has had until this season, the loss of which is directly traceable to the jungles now doing duty as ponds.

On the Westminster Club, F. E. Browne and C. C. Carpenter both got their limit. E. A. Curtis of the Golden West shot there in the afternoon, with good results. Howard Rivers, H. P. Hoffman, Jeff Lewis, H. S. Hazeltine, the other shooters, killed seventy-five or eighty among them during the morning. J. M. Elliott bagged thirty on the Westminster.

Asa Casner, E. W. Selbach, Herman and a guest bagged from a dozen to twenty on the Los Patos Club.

ON THE BLUE WING.

The Blue Wing, which is one of the best clubs in the Chico country, had several guns out, and rather better shooting than any of its neighbors. Yet only three members managed to get their thirty-five, W. C. Patterson and W. T. and Hugh Glassell being the lucky ones. H. N. Manington got twenty-six, E. L. Allen twenty-three, W. F. Ball also having a fair shoot.

Ed A. Featherbone, Louis A. Denker, J. E. Grant, E. L. Hedderly and two guests were out on the Canvasback, and experienced the troubles common to every one else in the district. More teal were killed in proportion than at any previous shoot. Hedderly got another mallard, quite a number of the big fellows being seen during the morning flight about the place.

Four guns made up the Olympic squad. Mel Nordlinger, with fourteen, was high. The Baum brothers each bagged a good mess. Frank Blinn got ten. Birds came high, and showed a disposition to keep out of telescope range.

Poachers put in their deadly work around the San Pedro again, to the detriment of that organization's shooting.

There was a regiment afield on the Little Center Club. Andy Caubin and Pipher brothers went down in an automobile. George Gordon, Vince Guercio, R. P. King and Messrs. Anderson and Smith were on the job.

Poor sport has been the rule on the Cerritos since the opening day, which resulted in many limits early. Some of the small clubs near the Green Wing are getting a little trading off the Green Wing's flight, which has been good. Somebody has had the limit nearly every shoot.

The sporting outlook in the Ballona is not the best. Bags of twenty and thereabouts are the rule, for the good shots and the mediocre ones are traveling several notches slower. The club men are banking on the November flight.

INTERCLASS TENNIS.

Occidental Tournament to Begin Next Week—Third Academy Class Is Strong.

An interclass tennis tournament is being arranged at Occidental, and play probably will be started next week. The tourney is the outcome of a challenge issued by the junior class to any class in the college or academy.

The juniors, although the challengers, have little chance for winning, as all the intercollegiate players are in other classes. The sophomores appear to have the best chance of any of the college classes, as they have Gray Merrill, McDowell, Miss Gardner and Miss Clark, all players of long experience.

The third year academy class is picked by most of the students to clean up all competitors, as it contains Winfred Mace, the Southern California interscholastic champion, and Marguerite Merrill, last year's intercollegiate woman champion.

The Presbyterian faculty is taking a keen interest in tennis, and a court has been fitted up for the exclusive use of the teaching force.

Before the end of the present semester it is likely that two additional courts will be laid out for the use of students, and one of the old courts may be cemented.

THE startling theory that the earth is expanding, held by a prominent government scientist, will be explained in The Times Magazine the coming Sunday.

T. C. Free, last year a star member of the L. A. High track team, and now at Oakland High School, has been suspended from further participation in amateur athletics by the Pacific Athletic Association. The charges against him were mismanagement in connection with the Bay Counties Athletic League, and the maintenance of a generally antagonistic attitude to the officials of the association when called upon for an explanation.

FOR SALE— $14,000.
WESTLAKE DISTRICT.
NEW 10-ROOM MODERN RESIDENCE.
NEVER OCCUPIED.
60x140. 60x140.

Den, paneled 6 feet, wainscoting, finished and decorated artistically.
Kitchen, tiled back over sink, built-in cupboards, with a plenty of shelving. This will please every woman who see it.
Bedrooms. Five bedrooms upstairs, four finished in hard enamel ivory; tastefully tinted.
Bathroom, two elegant baths with most modern and expensive equipment; woodstone floors, medicine chest in each.
Toilets and lavatories, 2 toilets and 3 lavatories, conveniently arranged.
Sewing-room, two extra large linen closets, lined drawers, all fitted with glass knobs.
Hardware and fixtures. No expense has been spared in either of these items.
Hardwood floors throughout the house, polished and waxed.
This is one of the most sumptuous and elegant homes ever offered for sale in this city. Built by day's labor and no expense has been spared to make it attractive. Every modern convenience will be found; and I now offer it for sale, with a small payment down and easy terms on the balance.

Only a few blocks from Westlake Park in the Wilshire Boulevard district, we have a new 6-room bungalow, which at $4100 is $200 under its true value. The lot is 60x180 to an alley, and is alone worth the price asked for the entire property. There is no cost $3200 to build, and is really the only bargain of its kind in the Westlake district. The property must be sold at once as the owner desires to move within a day or two. Don't query us on this property unless you can put up $1000 cash. The owner is leaving Los Angeles and needs the money.

FOR SALE—
Soon the rain will come and you'll regret you've not bought you a home on the high ground where the water does not stand. In any event, why do you still persist in paying rent? Ever stop to realize that rent means just a bunch of old receipts? Going to help others to live in ease on your payments forever? My friends, you'll never be happy until you live in your own home. Ask your wife what she thinks.
—$1450—

Are you getting all you pay for when you buy a lot, or do you just buy regardless of size. I'm selling elegant lots for 4½ CENTS PER SQUARE FOOT.
Now just figure a 40x125 feet, lot on a 4% cent per square foot basis, $500 square feet at 4½ cents is $125. But you don't get 'em for that money. Well, my lots I'll give you your money's worth in square feet and 5 and 6 foot cement walks and curbs, pure artesian soft water, 20 minutes from postoffice, over 3 car lines. On high ground overlooking the city. Why take less than you pay for?
VERMONT HEIGHTS.
THE ARTISTIC TRACT.
$25 CASH, $10 MONTHLY.
$300, $325, $350 AND UP.
LARGE LOTS AND 1-4 ACRES.
Nothing scrimpy but on a broad generous scale, having 50 to 80 feet frontage and good depths up to 275 feet. This month I'm going to give 10 PER CENT. OFF FOR CASH.
It's a shame, but I need the money and I'll be glad to show all Missourian and others. Call at office at 2nd and Broadway and see Warren F. McGrath, with

AN SLAIN IN EAST MAY BE KNOWN HERE.

ORKING on the theory that a man believed to be B. Netscher was murdered on the outskirts of Delaware Park in Buffalo, N. Y., on September 23, the authorities of that city have asked the Los Angeles police to assist them in solving the mystery, because the only likely clue to identification points to the fact that he came from Los Angeles, California. This clew is afforded by a pair of shoes that bear the mark of a Los Angeles dealer.

When the body was found it was thought that a thorough and investigation established the fact that Netscher must have met with death within a day or two after his disappearance from a certain hotel on September 23.

Although the man registered as Netscher at the hotel, the Buffalo officials are not certain that that was his right name. The only clew which the police have leads to Los Angeles, where the man is believed to have purchased a pair of shoes. It is thought he was a union shoe worker, and papers found in his clothes indicate that he lived for a time in Los Angeles.

Charles O. Keller, a Buffalo merchant, found the body half hidden under a clump of bushes. Detectives found a bullet wound in the right temple. No weapon was found near the body. A letter bearing the date of September 16, 1907, was found in the pocket of the dead man. A few cards bearing the addresses of saloons on the Pacific Coast were found in the dead man's pockets. One of the cards was that of the Grand View Hotel, at Avalon.

The man was about 42 years old, five feet seven inches tall, gray hair and mustache, with iron gray whiskers closely shaven; a spear-shaped scar in the center of the forehead, and wore clothes of dark small-checked woolen goods, apparently purchased in Chicago. The hat was bought of a dealer in the same city.

On the dead man were found a pair of rimless spectacles in a case and a pair of the bi-focal type; a woman's open-face gold watch attached to a gold chain and a pig charm; a horn-handled cork-screw knife; a crooked-stem pipe, a bunch of four keys and a key tag and a pair of link cuff buttons set with rhinestones.

Because the jewelry had not been taken it was believed for a time that Netscher had committed suicide. An empty whisky bottle strengthened the suicide theory. Later there was a return to the murder theory.

The name Netscher was found on the tag of his key ring. Such a man was found to have registered on September 6 last, at a small hotel in Buffalo, giving his residence as St. Louis. There he remained until September 23, when he disappeared. His trunk afforded no further means of identification.

One clew had baffled the police—the name of the shoe dealer—W. E. Cummings—inside the man's shoes. Finally it was learned from manufacturers that the only jobber by that name was in Los Angeles. Captain of Detectives Flammer took the case up and found that Cummings keeps no record of cash sales, so that no illuminating information could be gained at this store.

There is little doubt but that Netschen spent the last racing season in Los Angeles. On this line the police will take up the work today. They are positive they will be able to find among the sporting element here some one who knows Netscher.

PATRIARCHAL CRIMINAL.

Ninety-Year-Old Man on Trial in the Courts—Well-Known by Local Federal Officer.

Many years ago John H. Williams reportedly promised George W. Hazen, United States Secret Service operative at Seattle, that when released from the penitentiary, where he was serving a ten-year term for counterfeiting, he would round out his days as an honest man. This week Williams, nearly 90 years old, is on trial in the federal court at Portland on the charge of counterfeiting.

Hazen is one of the most remarkable criminals I have ever met," Hazen said yesterday. "When I left Seattle, I followed his trail until I finally arrested him at Puyallup, where he received a sentence to the penitentiary. Since the Washington courts are sent. In the penitentiary, and he promised me with tears in his eyes that he would never counterfeit again. He was a master hand at the counterfeit work, and while in the penitentiary he turned out a number of articles that were of much skill."

Hazen says Williams has spent nearly half his life in prison, by his own admission. In his youth, he joined a band of counterfeiters and was noted as a skilful and daring. Later he worked at almost any kind of crime, and is well known to the police officers of Los Angeles. Williams was one of his specialties.

Williams lost track of Williams during his recent release, he says, and when he received word of the old man's last arrest. The latter's release is in the power of the court at this time.

"I have five other men, Williams and I have planned a counterfeiting scheme on a wholesale plan, and were picking out a quiet spot on the Kern River for operations. One of the men was an expert miner, and we were to mine the gold to be used in the counterfeiting. We began $5 and $20 gold pieces, but Williams was to make the $50, $100 and other necessary bills.

CONCRETE CONCRETION.

Professor of Mathematics at Polytechnic High School That Failed to Demonstrate.

Professor H. Crooks, a real estate man, was yesterday to demonstrate to the faculty of Polytechnic High School that in a single period of forty-five minutes what he means by "concrete concretion" had been given, and the room was crowded with uncertain students and a few visitors, but everybody left with little enlightenment. Professor Crooks threw the dimensions of the single triangle where only the first attempt, no reasonable solution could be obtained, and his assistant explained that a mistake had been made, and that the problem was over. In the confusion that followed, after the bell had announced the dismissal of the class, Professor Crooks failed to produce the correct figures.

Another teacher of the class, Professor Hill, then had been given, and that there was some prearranged manipulation of figures between Mr. Crooks and his assistant.

Then another demonstration, with new lines drawn on the blackboard, did not get well started on the way when the hour was exhausted. He promised, however, to bring forth "eureka" or "once" from the mysterious beyond of students, when he would explain certain lines might be readily measured staggered, and he failed to tell whether he had succeeded in deceiving the students, to say they knew, or if he had succeeded in the concealment of opinion, but he had done the latter.

C. C. Desmond, absent on an eastern trip, is expected to return early next week.

CRISPI'S MEMOIRS.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

FLORENCE, Oct. 2.—The Memoirs of Francesco Crispi, the Italian statesman, are finally to see the light after a long delay, which has much increased public expectation regarding the nature of these posthumous papers penned by one who played so important a part in the policy not only of Italy but of all Europe. It has been foreseen that there will be more than one high-flavored page in the Memoirs, considering the active share Crispi took in the affairs of his country, first as a republican member of Parliament and later as converted Minister of the Monarchy, his great friendship with Bismarck, his epic domestic troubles, and his connection with the scandals and broglios of the Italian banks.

Unfortunately the work will here and there reveal the senile hand that produced it: Crispi never thought seriously of the task until fallen from popular favor and almost blind, he took advantage of an operation that gave him back his sight some four months before his death to write the Memoirs. He passed away, deserted by friends and adulators, at his villa in Naples, the 10th of August, 1901; and the members of his family assert that his end was hastened through the activity he displayed in this last work, which consoled him in his loneliness and loss of his partisans, who had turned against him in his impotence.

By order of his will, the Memoirs were to be published immediately after his death; but litigation ensued between the State and his relatives and heirs, carrying the question, who was the owner of the Memoirs, from one tribunal to another, and it was only lately that the opposing parties in the quarrel came to an amiable understanding that permitted the appearance of the book.

Great importance is given to the Memoirs because it is affirmed that its effect will be to cause Italian history to be rewritten, owing to the new light Crispi sheds on the organization and the constitution of the United Kingdom. The first of the three volumes, drawn evidently from notes made at the time, deals with the revolutionary period of Italy, Crispi's connection with the revolutionists, and the lively role the dead statesman filled in his country's uprising against tyrannic rule. The volume also includes the writer's correspondence with Mazzini and Garibaldi, his opinions of these personages, and his eventual split with the latter—in 1863—when the two friends parted forever, causing Crispi to change his opinion of Mazzini, who remained an obdurate republican. Notwithstanding his enmity, Crispi has handled Mazzini in his Memoirs with great impartiality.

The second volume treats of Crispi's rise to the summit of Italian politics and his career as Minister up to the year 1891, when, through a vote of lack of confidence, the Crispi Cabinet was obliged to dissolve. Crispi, however, reëmerged to public view in the melancholy period of the African disaster, which was the beginning of his unpopularity. One of the most important sides of the work is the intercourse between Crispi and Bismarck, and the consequent causes that produced the isolation of Italy in 1878, the occupation of Tunis and the dissension between Italy and France that threw the former into the Triple Alliance.

It is to be regretted that, owing to the family dispute over the Memoirs, the work will be published simply as its material was gathered and set down. The idea of the Italian government had been to present the MMS, with commentaries, so that the statesman's pages might be more comprehensible. The suggestion was, however, not accepted out of fear that many facts therein stated would be veiled.

It is interesting to learn, in connection with the Memoirs, that Crispi, while writing them, sought a foreign Maecenas in the person of Emperor William II., for whom, it is said, he had an unbounded admiration. With this intent, he dispatched a young lawyer, Giuseppe Paratore, in 1901, with a letter to his German Majesty. In his letter, Crispi stated that the idea of having such a noble patron would be a great inducement in producing the work and that, having nothing else to offer in exchange, he sent him the gold medal the Sicilians had coined for him in the year 1899. The Emperor was touched by the request and agreed to become the patron of the Memoirs. Then Crispi died and litigation ensued, and the Emperor was never called upon to fulfill his agreement.

Though the first part of the Memoirs reflects the tremendous activity of Crispi's manhood, the latter part is overshadowed by the gloom of the statesman's decadence. Crispi, toward his close, had grown pessimistic in the extreme and though still master of his faculties he was but the shadow of his former self. Disease caused him almost continuous pain, and the writing of the Memoirs was often interrupted by fainting spells and physical collapse.

It had been a matter of much speculation among his friends at the last what Crispi's attitude would be in the face of death. He had always expressed a belief in God and on more than one occasion declared himself a Christian. Would he or would he not call a priest to his bedside? He was on the point of dissolution when his daughter asked him if he wished religious attendance. Crispi opened his eyes—that had been closed for an hour—to stare at his daughter, saying, in a decided voice, "I believe in God. I am a Christian; I have no need of priests." The last part of his memoir contains a profession of faith much in this spirit, for Crispi, like Mazzini, had the conviction that if formalism were dispensed with in religion the Christian faith had nothing to fear from rationalistic philosophies.

According to official statistics, there are now 34,469 Japanese subjects in Manchuria. Of these about one-third are in the leased Liaotung district. In places opened and to be opened to foreign trade there are 18,000, while some 5000 are scattered in places along the railroad, says Consul W. T. Gracey, of Tsingtaun, with no assigned reason for their being there.

HIS CIGAR DOES'NT TASTE RIGHT

And Yet It Is the Same He Was Smoking With So Much Relish After Dinner, Last Night. Out of the Very Same Box, Too.

IT IS'NT THE CIGAR—IT'S THE STOMACH.

Every smoker has experienced this peculiar condition of the stomach and liver, the result usually of imperfect digestion of food. And the blame is usually put on the cigar and not where it belongs

Such men are usually high livers, hard workers mentally, living under high pressure and high draught, and it doesn't take a great deal to disorder the stomach or render the liver torpid.

They should make it a practice to use some tried and reliable remedy like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, that will aid Nature and not force it and will take care of the sudden attacks of stomach indigestion.

The use of these tablets is not to be confounded with the patent medicine habit. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are not a patent medicine, but are composed of the very elements which nature provides the healthy stomach to do the work of digestion—pepsin, diastase, golden seal, etc. There is no secret in their preparation—they are absolutely pure and therefore all the world uses them.

No matter how disordered the stomach may be, it will right itself if given the chance. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets digest food where the stomach can't. Give the abused stomach and intestines a rest, and offer renewed strength to the worn out glands and muscles.

Brain workers can rely on Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, no matter how tense the strain. All druggists carry them in the fifty cent packages, or if you prefer a free trial package can be had by sending your name and address today. F. A. Stuart Company, 150 Stuart Building, Marshall, Mich.

THE CITY IN BRIEF

Rough on Rats!

NEWS AND BUSINESS.

Bartlett to Occidental.

Rev. Dana Bartlett of the Bethlehem Institute will address Occidental students in the college chapel at 11 o'clock this morning. Friends of the college are invited to attend the services.

Juicy Apples.

Juicy and luscious apples grown in the Yucaipe Valley were placed on exhibition yesterday at the Chamber of Commerce, refuting a somewhat general impression that good apples cannot be grown in Southern California.

"Pull" China Lottery.

After lying in wait for five hours, Chinatown Patrolmen Curtin, Irvin and Roberts found an opportunity to break into Wong Kee's lottery at Olivera and Marchessault streets last night during a lottery drawing. The officers secured all of the winning and blank tickets in the place, and arrested Kee, who later was released upon $50 bail.

Postman Promoted.

Thomas Romero, mail carrier in the Los Angeles business district, south of First street, has been promoted to a clerkship in the postoffice at Seattle. The advancement was due to a recommendation of Inspector Hall to the Washington authorities. Under the new law, which became effective July 1, letter carriers are eligible to appointment as clerks.

Postal Transfers.

Two local postoffice employes to profit by the postal regulation permitting transfers are Charles H. Hamilton, mail clerk in the Omaha postoffice, and Lewis J. O'Connor, a letter carrier at Buffalo, N. Y. Hamilton will have a position in Los Angeles similar to the one he now holds. O'Connor will be given a clerkship. The transfers go into effect December 1.

May Die from Fall.

While crossing at Seventh street and Grand avenue yesterday afternoon, John Fleet, 73 years of age, slipped and fell to the car tracks, sustaining injuries which may prove fatal. His injuries include a broken leg, a fracture of the bones of the left forearm and possible internal injuries, besides bruises and scratches. He is at the County Hospital.

Caught in a Belt.

Charles Fischer, a machinist, working at Llewellyn Iron Works, narrowly escaped death yesterday afternoon about 5:30 o'clock, when his left hand was caught in a belt. Exercising all of his nerve, Fischer braced himself and pulled his hand free. He went to the Receiving Hospital, where his lacerated hand was dressed. Fischer resides at No. 1415 Newton street.

Blow-up Hurt Lineman.

As P. S. Hoag, a Home Telephone lineman, residing at No. 655 East Fiftieth street, uncovered a manhole at Jefferson and Kingsley street last night and lowered a lantern to see if any water had leaked into the conduits, there was an explosion, and his face and hands were badly burned. The conduits were filled with gas, supposedly from a leak in the pipes of the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Company.

Builders' Exchange Celebrates.

The opening of the enlarged quarters of the Builders' Exchange in the Stimson building was celebrated last night by a convivial gathering of more than 100 of the members. The spacious and comfortable rooms were greatly admired and during the course of the evening, the officers made informal talks on the general prosperity of the association, which has been in existence for a number of years. A colored quartette furnished music and light refreshments were served.

Mission Secretary Coming.

President Baer of Occidental College, who has been attending the California Synod at Mt. Vernon, will speak at the monthly assembly at the University of California today. Joseph E. McAfee, secretary of the board of home missions of the Presbyterian Church, with whom Dr. Baer was associated for many years, will accompany him to Los Angeles, and will speak at Immanuel Church Sunday morning. Sunday afternoon he will lead the monthly vesper service at Occidental, and Sunday evening he will preach in the First Presbyterian Church at Pasadena.

Scottish Rite Ladies' Night.

An affair of much interest in Masonic circles will be the ladies' night, this evening in the Scottish Rite Cathedral, on Hope street, between Ninth and Tenth. It is strictly an invitation affair, for the lady friends or relatives of the members of the Scottish Rite bodies. Arend's Orchestra will furnish the musical programme, and the decorations are to be elaborate. J. J. Fallis is to give organ selections; Mrs. Lillian Werth Fruhling will give soprano solos; Miss Marion Lamont will give readings, and the Scottish Rite quartette will sing. During the evening several tableaux will be given.

Doing Well Without Unions.

Since the lock-out of the striking union employés, the merchant tailors of this city have found little difficulty in filling all orders. They have secured a number of capable non-union workmen and are doing a normal business. The strikers have tried to injure the business of their former employers in every way possible. Picketing, intimidation of employés and boycotting have been resorted to with little success. The main reason for the successful fight put up by the merchant tailors was the aggressive campaign exerted in their behalf by the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association.

Too Much for Him.

When George Crawford, a burly English sailor, was awakened from a drunken stupor in Mrs. A. J. Taylor's lodging-house at No. 235 East Seventh street, last night, he created such a commotion that a hurry call for the patrol was sent to Central Police Station. Patrolman Roy Winterton, the largest man on the force, accompanied the wagon. When the sailor saw Winterton he immediately became quiet. "Hits a bloomin' bloody shame thot the likes of you pick upon a wee bit of a mon," was the only comment of the sailor. Crawford is over six feet tall—but Winterton is 6 feet 6 and weighs 285 pounds.

HEAVY BAIL ON "REDS."

Villareal, Magon and Rivera, the Mexican revolutionists, were arraigned before United States Commissioner Van Dyke, yesterday, and the hearing on an order of removal to Arizona was set for the 30th. inst. Bail was fixed at $5000 in each case. There was a small demonstrations on the part of friends of the defendants, when they were taken back to the County Jail by deputy marshals. Efforts to secure bail were unsuccessful.

ACROBAT GOES TO HIGH COURT.

William Eddy, head of the Eddy troupe of acrobats, has appealed his case against the Sells-Floto shows to the Supreme Court. The lower court sustained a demurer of the defendant without leave to amend the complaint. The appellant says that the circus owners engaged his troupe at a weekly salary of $250, board and transportation, but failed to keep their part of the contract. Suit was brought in the Superior Court of this country for $7000 damages.

REMINDS US OF SHERMAN

Some so-called made-to-measure clothing reminds one of what Sherman said war was.

The fact that Brauer-Krohn clothing is tailored to measure right in our own tailoring establishment right under our own eyes and right under our own supervision sets our clothing in a class by itself.

This fact also places the wearers of our clothing in a class by themselves.

Yet our prices are not in the "hupper" classes. They are only from $25 to $45.

The Shadow of a Man

45 per cent of the people you meet on the street are mere shadows of what they should be—they are too thin for their height. They lack in vitality—they are more open to attacks of disease—and they are not asattractive, and often less popular, than their freshest friends. If you are too thin it is due to one or more of the following four reasons: 1. You cannot digest starch. 2. You cannot digest fats. 3. You do not assim- ilate what you eat. 4. You have a poor appetite. Peptol, the new food remedy, overcomes the difficulty in each case.

It adds flesh at a remarkably rapid rate. This has been prov- en beyond doubt by eminent physicians, professional men and hundreds of others who have used it. It combines in highly concentrated form the very elements that build flesh. It helps to digest other foods. It creates appetite. Peptol will in- crease your weight in 30 days. This we absolutely guarantee. If it does not we will refund your money without question. Ask your druggist for free booklet "Why People are Thin". Let it prove its worth. Start today using

ELUDES RICH PAPA TO WED POOR MAN.

nee Miss Florence May Hennessey of Boston, who fled across the continent to wed. The lower picture is of her husband.

CASTING paternal opposition to the winds, Florence May Hennessey, a pretty little miss of but 19, only daughter of John T. Hennessey, a Boston millionaire, slipped away from her home, journeyed alone for more than 2500 miles, met her sweetheart here and became his wife yesterday morning. Charles E. Cutter, whose wife she now is, helped her pen a letter last evening, conveying the news to Papa Hennessey, who is a prominent shoe manufacturer of the Bay State, and who, on previous occasions, has given Cutter "the boot."

Cutter is a machinist, and formerly was employed in a Boston sewing-machine factory. He met his affianced yesterday morning on the arrival of the Santa Fé Limited, and they went at once to the Reservoir-street home of Rev. M. R. Walton, pastor of the Echo Park Methodist Church, where they were married in the presence of the father and mother of the bride-groom.

All arrangements had been nicely timed. When Cutter went to the railway station to meet his intended he had in the pocket of his coat the marriage license. As the train slowly rolled in the eager bride-to-be rushed to the platform of a Pullman, and before the wheels had ceased revolving she was clasped in the arms of her waiting lover.

Mrs. Cutter first met her husband two years ago, when she was but 17. It was a case of love at first sight on both sides. No definite understanding existed, however, and it was only last month that the stalwart mechanic won from the petted daughter of a wealthy family her promise to cast her lot with his.

It was at a baseball game between the Malden and Everett High school nines that Cutter first plucked up courage to ask Miss Hennessey to be his wife. It was all over in an instant, and the young machinist returned to work with a light heart. When Papa Hennessey was approached he did not approve of his daughter's choice, and flatly refused to permit the marriage. He is a man who has made his way in the world, and the young suitor's station did not trouble him so much as the knowledge that the daughter's every wish had always been gratified and that were she to marry Cutter she would be forced to live on less than she had been accustomed to expend as pin money.

In vain they pleaded. The father was determined. There also was another man in the case. He is decidedly eligible, and his worldly possessions are extensive. He occupies an enviable position in the social world, and was desperately in love with Miss Florence. Papa Hennessey was inclined to look upon his daughter's attachment for Cutter as a bit of childish folly, and freely encouraged the wealthier suitor.

"My daughter is but a child and does not know her own mind," wrote Hennessey, in reply to a request from Cutter for the hand of Miss Florence. "She believes herself to be infatuated with you, but were you to go away for a time she would soon forget her folly, and would be able to see the foolishness of marrying you."

Miss Florence entertained different views, and managed to see her lover clandestinely in spite of the orders of her father. Opposition but strengthened her determination, and when she saw that it would be impossible to win paternal consent to her marrying Cutter, she told her sweetheart to go West and make a home for her, promising to come to him as soon as he was ready for her.

Then Cutter came here and went to the home of his father, John T. Cutter, No. 1341 Waterloo street. He looked around and concluded no better place could be found in which to make a home, and at once wrote to his fiancée to join him.

It was no easy matter to carry out the latter half of the romantic conspiracy. Hennessey kept a close watch upon his daughter, and it was a long time before she found opportunity to get away. Then she started for Portland, Me., where her aunt, Mrs. Anna Day Perry, lives.

Mrs. Perry had been taken into the conspiracy, and when Miss Florence asked her assistance she readily promised it. Two weeks were spent at Portland, and then Miss Florence started on her long journey to California.

Hennessey had become suspicious and had written to his daughter to come home at once. She dutifully read the letter and then consigned it to the waste basket. Her aunt assisted her in getting together a hurried trousseau, and five days ago saw her niece on a westbound train, eager to begin her new life.

Mrs. Cutter is a dainty little woman, whose features belie the world of determination that controls her actions. Today she will celebrate her 19th birthday anniversary, and though Hennessey has sworn never to forgive her, she firmly believes that when once he realizes that the other fellow is out of it he will experience a change of heart, and will welcome her and her husband home.

SAY MILL IS INSOLVENT.

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in the United States District Court yesterday by creditors of the Enterprise Planing Mill, located in this city. The petition sets forth that the concern is insolvent, and that it should be declared bankrupt.

"COW" JUMPS.

MEAT PRICES AGAIN GO UP.

Weather Is Blamed for the Latest Advance.

Independent Dealers Want a Public Abattoir.

An advance in the wholesale price of beef yesterday, to take effect today, will boost the retail prices again tomorrow. While the "beef trust" advanced its price a quarter of a cent a pound on the carcass, the retail butcher will put on an increase from 1 to 2½ cents a pound, and stand for the brunt of protests. The weather is blamed for the startling increase.

With the additional rise the forequarters of a beef are quoted at 6 cents a pound, and the hind quarters at 8¾ cents. In the retail prices, a rise will be made in every grade of meat. It is probable that the limit of 25 cents a pound on porterhouse steak will be taken off and 30 cents charged for the best quality. An advance in veal and mutton is also predicted in the near future. Pork is steady, but cured meats will be advanced before long.

Following are the retail prices quoted yesterday by Thomas N. Coleman, president of the Retail Butchers' Association: Boiling beef, 5 cents a pound; roasts, 7 to 10 cents a pound; prime-rib roasts, 15 cents a pound; porterhouse steak, 20 to 25 cents a pound; T-bone steak, 18 to 22½ cents a pound, and sirloin steak, 12 to 18 cents a pound.

The wholesale rise of a quarter of a cent will cause a decided advance tomorrow over the foregoing prices. On 100 pounds of beef the increase on the wholesale price amounts to 25 cents. The net increase in retail prices will amount to $2.50.

WEATHER TO BLAME?

Wholesale dealers declare that the weather brought about a shortage in the market. The supply of grass-fed stock, it is stated, is about gone for the season. Grain-fed stock is now coming into the market, and it is held at a higher price because of better quality. Most of the beef consumed in the local market is shipped from New Mexico, Arizona and Texas. It is handled by the "Big Four" packing-houses, which practically control the local meat industry.

The question of a public slaughter-house has been advocated by several independent meat dealers who were frozen out by the passage of an ordinance regulating the inspection and distribution of meat in Los Angeles. It is claimed that with fair competition the prices of meat would be 10 per cent. lower in Los Angeles. The big packers declare that it would make no material difference.

The ordinance passed last March was extremely beneficial in securing sanitary slaughter-houses and clean meat. The independent dealers have no objection to its provisions, except in regard to slaughter-houses. It is stated that under the ordinance it requires several thousand dollars to build a slaughter-house in which to kill. Independents were unable to furnish the money and had to go out of business. With a public slaughter-house at their disposal, it is asserted, the grasp of the "meat trust" on the local situation would be broken.

ALL MUST BE INSPECTED.

Under the ordinance all meat which comes into the Los Angeles market must be inspected either by a government or city inspector. The large packing plants are required to have government inspection and thus did not incur additional expense. When the ordinance went into effect the prices on meats immediately advanced.

In order to obtain inspection under the ordinance it is necessary for any applicant to send a written order to the Board of Health. A deputy is sent to inspect the cattle before they are killed, and the carcasses afterward. His work costs 06 cents an hour and his expenses from the time he leaves the health office.

The big packing-houses in Los Angeles escape the inspection fee, as the government has a corps of employés in each of their plants. The cost of inspection cuts a material figure with the independent dealer, because he is unable to maintain a slaughter-house for his limited business.

The result is that the independent dealer is now selling his beef to the large packing companies. Six packing-houses in Los Angeles, which are controlled by the "Big Four," are supplying Los Angeles with 85 per cent. of the meat consumed. The remainder is supplied by a few independent dealers who formed companies in order to secure enough capital to build slaughter-houses.

"It would be a capital idea to have a municipal slaughter-house," said John F. Nelson, city meat inspector. "It would centralize the work and afford a better field for the independent dealer. I cannot say whether it would lower the prices of meat.

KEEPS OUT BAD MEAT.

"It is true that a number of small men have been frozen out by the inspection ordinance. The greatest trouble experienced by the inspector has been with small dealers. They have attempted to put uninspected meat on the market. In many cases the animals were diseased and unfit for consumption. The small dealers will buy any kind of stock, while the big packers inspect every head before it is purchased. In this way the big companies furnish a better quality of meats.

"Some time ago an effort was made by the small dealers to have a depot established, where all meat should be inspected. Under such an arrangement, all trace of affected meat could be destroyed before it reached the depot. A municipal slaughter-house would add to sanitary conditions and be a public benefit."

Roderick Scott, manager of the Cudahy Packing Company, declares that a municipal slaughter-house would not lower the price of meat, but would have a tendency to raise prices.

"Of course," he said, "the ordinance requiring inspection froze out a number of small dealers, but in no way did it affect the prices of meat. The big packing-houses were under governmental inspection, and were not hindered by an additional inspection fee. The ordinance affords a first-class meat for consumption in Los Angeles. The packing companies spend all their time perfecting the slaughtering and packing business, while the little fellow does it as a side issue."

WASTE WAIST.

CAT BASE, OLD LACE, MUD RACE, SAD CASE.

Hot Run of the Lady-Waisted Cat, and on account of which a complaint charging malicious destruction of property was sought.

MRS. CAROLINE B. WANDS of Portland, Or., a visitor in Los Angeles, asked Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Guy Eddie yesterday for a complaint charging Wah Wing, a Chinese laundryman, with wilfully ruining her fine lace waist.

Mrs. Wands was tearful, Wah Wing drearful, and the cat, alleged to be on the inside of the whole affair, was exceedingly cheerful.

As a result of the occurrence of early yesterday morning, the Chinese population of Los Angeles has lost its faith in horoscopes; likewise, its superstition regarding black cats as hoodoos has been increased.

"This is woman's day, primarily," read Wah Wing. "Dealings with them are lucky, and almost all womanly undertakings are under exceptionally favorable influences."

"Hah," said Wah, "today hip fine day to see gell. Today I mak hip much money."

Then he arose, for a woman customer was standing at the door.

"Washa mailia, you likee see me?" asked Wah, thinking of the horoscope.

Wah brought it forth. It was a mass of lace and insertion and looked good enough to eat.

"Hip fine," suggested Wah.

"Yes," said the woman, "hold it out so I can see it."

Wah held it out, and right there the black cat hoodoo got busy. The lace waist slipped by some awful accident from the laundryman's hands. He grabbed at it, but he was too late. In a mass the waist landed on the back of a sleeping feline. The cat started with a jump. It stuck its paw through a lace rosette worth, maybe, $13.40 wholesale; rubbed its ugly nose through gardens of stringy stuff; clawed and spit and yowled.

Wah Wing grabbed at the cat. So did the woman. The cat made a desperate leap, clawed the lace from its eyes, and with its black head jammed through one of the sleeves, sprinted for the open.

After the cat went Wah Wing, after him the woman, and after her a policeman, two or three dogs, half the Yiddish and Japanese population of East First street, and a man from San Pedro.

East First street just after a rain is not a thing of beauty and a joy forever. By count, the cat missed two mudholes from a possible ninety-six, establishing a new record. When a policeman rescued the waist it looked like French watercress trimmed with peanut butter.

Mrs. Wands gave one look at her waist and with a sob pressed it to her breast. When she drew it away, the front of the waist she wore looked like the map of Africa in seven colors.

Indignant, Mrs. Wands visited the Prosecuting Attorney, but she got no satisfaction. The only one to blame was the cat, and it couldn't be prosecuted.

Wah Wing is looking for a cat, and the cat is looking for a new boarding house.

HONORS STATE COMMANDER.

Roosevelt Camp, United Spanish War Veterans, Entertains Chief of Department of California.

Camp Roosevelt No. 9, United Spanish War Veterans, entertained Montgomery M. Moulton, the newly-elected commander of the Department of California, last night at No. 220½ South Main street. Almost every member of the camp was present. Commander P. C. Mulqueeney presided. The Ladies' Auxiliary took an active part. Commander Moulton, who resides in San Diego, was given a royal welcome.

In an interesting address, Commander Moulton urged the comrades to help increase the membership of the camps of the department. He paid a glowing tribute to the Ladies' Auxiliary, which he said, is the largest in the State, and attributed to it much of the active interest taken in Camp Roosevelt. He said he has induced the National Commander to visit Los Angeles this winter.

Col. Richard Dodge, Commander of Camp Bennington, San Diego, was the funmaker of the evening. He began his address by declaring he is proud to be able to say he lives in San Diego. He said the days have passed when people of Los Angeles can profess to believe that grass grows on the main streets down there. He stated that it is no longer necessary for Angelenos to take a bottle of water with them when they visit the City of Bay and Climate. He told a good story at the expense of Commander Moulton.

Visiting Commanders of other Southern California camps had places on the platform. Addresses were made by Commander W. H. Copping of Camp Ensign Bailey, Pasadena; Commander A. A. Counts, Camp McKinley, Long Beach; Commander Clarence Higley, of Santa Barbara, and Capt. A. C. F. Dee, Past Commander of Camp Roosevelt.

Capt. E. L. Baker, Chief of Scouts, U. S. A., who is on leave of absence from active service in the Philippines, was also a guest of honor. He made a brief address. Capt. Baker is spending his vacation in Los Angeles with his family.

Commander Mulqueeney of Camp Roosevelt was the recipient of a handsome medal, presented by the Recruiting Committee of the camp, for having secured the most new members during a stated period.

Others who had a part in the programme were Col. Berry, who made a brief address; Clarence Dean, who gave an original poem, and Mrs. J. D. Shook, who also gave a poem. Refreshments were served.

LARGE DAMAGE SUIT MISTRIAL.

The Connealy case, which has been on trial for three days in the United States Circuit Court, resulted in a mistrial last night. The jury retired at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon. As the jurors were unable to come to an agreement at 11:30 o'clock, Judge Wellborn discharged them. The action was brought to recover $30,000 damages for the death of Luke Connealy, who was struck and fatally injured by an electric car at Jefferson street and Vermont avenue, 1902. The Los Angeles Interurban Railway Company, the defendant, has been to trial three times on the same case. The first trial resulted in a verdict for the plaintiff, but on appeal was remanded for a new trial. That resulted in a disagreement.

FAITH IN OLD FIELD.

Oil Company to Begin Drilling Operations Today in Western Part of Local Territory.

Although it has been generally supposed for some time that the local oil section known as the West Field has been gradually giving out under the heavy demands made upon it since its first development, a deal has been completed that proves conclusively that, in the opinion of oil experts of the largest companies of Southern California, the territory is still a present factor in the situation.

The Loma Oil Company has obtained a lease on 150 acres in this part of the field, the lease to hold for two years. The company has already erected two rigs upon the ground, and Frank A. Garbutt, president of the company, states that drilling operations will be commenced today.

According to Garbutt, over $100,000 will be spent on the development of this portion of the field; it will depend largely upon the results obtained from the first wells.

It is generally believed in Los Angeles oil circles that the Loma Oil Company represents the interests of the Union Oil Company of California. If this is the case, it is a guarantee that the chances for "making good" in the old field are of the very best, as it has always been against the policy of the Union company to pioneer to any extent, or to take up "wild-cat" propositions.

GOOD PRICE FOR LOT.

Fifteen Thousand Dollars Is Reported Consideration for Unimproved Property in Westminster Place.

Robert Marsh & Co. has sold to Mrs. Geraldine W. Mercereau, the lot on the southwest corner of Westchester place and West Twelfth street, 120 feet on Westchester place and 150 feet on Twelfth street, unimproved, for a reported consideration of $15,000. This lot is one of the choicest in the Westchester place tract. The new owner already has plans prepared and will let contracts within a few days for a house which will cost between $15,000 and $18,000.

THE PUBLIC SERVICE.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

Lobbyists appeared at the City Hall yesterday for the purpose of creating sentiment in favor of granting "canteen" concessions for the sale of liquor to workmen employed on the Los Angeles aqueduct.

About half the sewer contractors in the city have announced that they will take no more contracts until the legal points in Judge Hutton's decision in the Mountain View district case have been reviewed by the Supreme Court.

Mayor Harper is preparing a proclamation asking that a day be selected as municipal holiday and that it be known as "Fall House-cleaning Festival." He says the day should be observed each year.

Six public utility companies have paid the city 2 per cent. of their gross receipts during the last year under franchises granted by the Council; the payment is made a part of all franchises granted under the Broughton act.

A lurid story of Italian jealousy and murder was told to judge and jury in the Superior Court yesterday, when Nazzarino Loturco was placed on trial for his life for killing little Maria Sanmarco.

A writ of prohibition was sprung on the prosecution in the libel charge of Luther Brown against Fremont Older before Justice Summerfield yesterday, and local legal proceedings in the case were suspended.

A writ of habeas corpus was secured yesterday to release Mrs. Bashford from the County Jail, where she was placed on a charge of grand larceny sent by telegraph from Fort Wayne. She claims her arrest was due to bringing her little daughter to Los Angeles out of the jurisdiction of the Indiana court.

A woman began suit in the Superior Court to force her husband to support her and her child, after deserting his wife under particularly sad circumstances, as she alleges.

Walter Cosby, automobilist, charged with blockading the streets, was acquitted by a jury in Police Court yesterday.

Alexander Miller, a negro, was fined $15 in Police Court for slapping his wife in the face with a beefsteak after she had thrown a plate of hot beans in his face.

CITY HALL.

CANTEEN FOR BIG CONDUIT.

ASK COUNCIL FOR EXCLUSIVE LIQUOR PRIVILEGE.

Latest Municipal Ownership Fad Would Prepare the Way for City Brewery—Plan Great Success in Foreign Home of Recall and Referendum—Talked Too Soon.

A new thrill passed through the City Hall yesterday when two genteel lobbyists went there to discuss the probability of securing concessions for a municipal canteen on the Owens River aqueduct.

The audacity of the idea appealed to some of the interested officials; it soon developed that the plan is one that has been discussed under the rose with members of the Board of Supervisors. The lobbyists say that the Supervisors look upon it with favor, provided the Council does not object.

A municipal brewery with the city supplying beer to the laborers on the aqueduct might crowd the engineers to keep all the applicants working. "You can save two years' time and $5,000,000 in money if you will establish a canteen and municipal eating-houses along the aqueduct," say the lobbyists who have apparently been retained to create sentiment in favor of the canteen.

The names of the principals in the movement are guarded as carefully as the poll lists of the Ninth Ward machine. If the lobbyists fail to secure the necessary concession then the proponents of the plan, the ones who have furnished the money for the initial lobbying, will remain as great a mystery as the real applicant for the riverbed franchise.

The Board of Public Works is avowedly opposed to the canteen plan, but its proponents assert that the board has not supervision over the sale of liquor along the aqueduct right of way. They say that this is within the jurisdiction of the Council.

But for the departure of Mayor Harper for Nevada, the canteen plan would have been broached at last Monday's meeting of the Council. Apparently the liquor men think they would receive more consideration from the Mayor in person than from acting Mayor Pease.

In addition to the consent of the Council, it will be necessary for the holders of a canteen concession to obtain licenses from Inyo and Kern counties, as well as from the Supervisors of Los Angeles county.

As soon as the construction work on the aqueduct is fairly under way the city will probably grant concessions for eating houses at the larger camps. It is in connection with these eating houses that it is proposed to operate the canteens.

The breweries will be satisfied if they are permitted to sell to the municipal canteen. The argument is advanced that the men will be kept in the camps and not filled with vile liquor if the sale of the booze is open and above board and the city supervises the canteen, just as the army canteens are run.

But the sentiment of a majority of the Council is against granting any liquor concessions for the big conduit: they hope to see it built by workmen who are on the water wagon. At the City Hall members of the "inner circle" say that Mayor Harper would not even consider seriously such a proposal. These say that the publication of the plans will lead to discussion, and that the canteen men lost out when they failed to get their concession last Monday. Even the avowed champions of municipal ownership of everything and everybody are hesitating to come forward in favor of a municipal groggery.

CONTRACTORS MOODY.

WORRIED OVER SEWER CASE.

Local sewer contractors are badly shaken by the effect of Judge Hutton's decision in the Mountain View sewer district case. While they express a hope that the opinion will be reversed by the State Supreme Court, they say that it has practically put a stop to sewer construction until the point at issue is settled by the Supreme judges.

Many of the sewer contractors lost heavily from the "San Diego" decision in street-improvement work four years ago. Some of them are just recovering from the financial effects of that shock. They quit street work and turned to sewers to escape the rigorous Vrooman act regulations concerning street bond assessments. Now they are the victims of a similar decision on sewers.

City officials said yesterday that it will be two years before the sewer tangles growing out of this decision are all straightened. Many of the contractors have been notified by banks with which they are dealing that there can be no further advances on sewer work. The bankers sympathize with the contractors, but they say they cannot loan money on contracts that have been declared invalid by the Supreme Court. Judge Hutton's decision is supreme until it is reversed by a higher court.

Assessment Clerk Frank Palomares spent a strenuous day trying to explain to irate property owners who paid their assessments in the Mountain View district before the decision was rendered. Some of these went to the street department yesterday and wanted their money back. One Temple-street matron was excessively indignant. Wednesday afternoon she paid her assessment. Thursday morning she read in the The Times that the assessment had been declared invalid by Judge Hutton, and that Assessment Clerk Palomares knew on Wednesday that this decision had been rendered.

Palomares justifies his act in taking the money by saying that the Supreme Court has decided that only those assessment are invalid that were included in the suit in court. He says the other property owners must either pay or go to court to get the assessment set aside.

At a conference between the engineering department and the Board of Public Works instructions were issued that in the future all ordinances of intention shall carry the same descriptions as those in the plan and profile. This require but a little more work, and it avoids the technical points on which the Mountain View assessment was declared invalid.

CLEAN-UP DAY.

PROCLAMATION FROM MAYOR.

Mayor Harper has sent a message back from Goldfield saying that as soon as he returns to the city he will issue a proclamation setting aside a specified day for a general city housecleaning. He will ask for volunteers to direct the work, and will urge business and mercantile establishments to close their doors for a few hours.

The Mayor thinks that two municipal holidays should be set aside for fall and spring housecleaning. This, he says, would improve sanitary conditions, and would prove a valuable aid to the "city beautiful."

Last night the Board of Health met in executive session and discussed ways and means to spend the $20,000 voted by the Council Wednesday for ridding the city of rats and disease-breeding dens. The committee selected six of the nine physicians who are to have charge of the Board of Health clean-up. Acting-Mayor Pease has not yet signed the ordinance making this donation, but he met with the board last night and expressed himself as favorable to the plan. The crusade, personally conducted by the board, will commence October 24.

FRANCHISE INCOME.

PAY BROUGHTON LAW TAX.

Six public utility companies have paid the city in all about $3000 since June 1 as the city's share in the gross receipts under franchises granted under the Broughton Act.

Under the terms of this act the city receives after five years 2 per cent. of the gross earning of all utilities operating under franchises granted by the City Council.

Most of the money has been received from the railway companies. As this is the first year the amount is only a pittance, but it presages a fatt income in the near distant future. By 1915 the city will be receiving not less than $60,000 a year on franchises. This is in addition to the taxes and licenses the companies pay to the city and county.

The returns made by the railway companies are interesting by reason of the fact that they contain valuable data respecting the mileage and gross earnings of the companies.

The Pacific Electric Railway Auditor makes affidavit that the Pacific Electric operates 202 miles of electric railway inside the city limits, and that the gross receipts for the year ending September 30, were $2,701,560.

The Los Angeles Interurban has 20.8 miles of electric railway inside the city. Its gross earnings were $524,832.

The Pacific Electric has made its first returns on the Belt line. There are 4.78 miles of tracks on this branch. The city's share of the gross receipts for the first year is $642.85.

J. W. Eddy has paid $333.72 on the Angel's Flight franchise. More than $16,000 was collected in fairs on this line last year.

AT THE COURTHOUSE.

LITTLE GIRL WAS KILLED.

TRIAL OF MAN CHARGED WITH HER MURDER.

Story of Italian Jealousy and Blood Told to Judge and Jury in Superior Court—Defense Claims Death of Victim Was an Accident Caused Deflected Bullet.

Witnesses told again, but this time under oath, and on the witness stand before Judge Smith and a jury, in the Superior Court yesterday, the story of Italian jealousy and the resultant murder of little Maria Sanmarco, 5 years old, sister of Josephine Sanmarco, whom it is claimed the defendant, Nazzarino Loturco, tried to kill on the night of July 7 last.

The Loturco and Sanmarco families occupied a shack in the Italian quarter of Sonoratown, and Nazzarino paid attentions to Josephine. But so did Joe Diseparti, a neighboring young man. Josephine is pretty and petite in the dark Italian style, and is claimed to have played her two lovers against one another until each was jealous of the other.

On July 7 Nazzarino, who has curly black hair over a low forehead, prominent nose and heavy jaws, and dresses like a dandy, had been drinking with his father, Francesco Loturco, until both were drunk, and the older man especially so. After drinking a quantity of the cheap red wine the men retired to their room in the Sanmarco home.

In the next room were Mrs. Sanmarco, her daughters, Josephine and little Maria, and Diseparti. Nazzarino came into the room and started to make trouble, and Mrs. Sanmarco told Joe and Josephine not to pay any attention to him. After a time Nazzarino went to his room and told his father of the presence of Diseparti, and the old man is reported to have told his son to kill him, and that he wouldn't stand for any interference with his sweetheart by another man.

Nazzarino secured a revolver, and going outside, fired three or four shots through tre window of the room in which his sweetheart was, and then ran away, and was arrested the next day. It is understood that the defense, represented by Attorney W. Gerrard Abbott, is that Nazzarino only intended to frighten his rival, but that one of the bullets was deflected and killed little Maria.

Francesco Loturco was also arrested as an accomplice of his son for urging him to shoot his rival. His trial will follow that of his son, and Attorney J. D. Rymert will defend him. The defense is that the old man while lying helplesly drunk, shouted in his drunken frenzy, "Kill 'em all, kill 'em all," without any idea of what was meant.

The trial of Nazzarino will be continued today. Yesterday Josephine told how she was standing near her little sister when the shots were fired, and how the child dropped to the floor and died, shot through the body. On cross-examination, Attorney Abbott proved by the witness that the bullet marks on the wall were higher than the head of the victim.

HEARING BLOCKED.

OLDER CASE AGAIN DELAYED.

When the prosecution was all ready for the preliminary hearing before Justice Summerfield in the Township Court yesterday morning in the case of Luther Brown against Fremont Older, editor of the San Francisco Bulletin, for alleged criminal libel, they received a surprise in the shape of a writ of prohibition from Judge Seward of the San Francisco Superior Court forbidding the justice to proceed with the trial, pending a disposition of the question of jurisdiction to be heard in the northern court, November 1.

Out of courtesy Assistant District Attorney C. C. McComas has granted two postponements, but refused to grant a third. Yesterday he was prepared to force the case to a hearing, but the writ of prohibition blocked all their plans, and now it is to be "war to the knife."

A few minutes after the gathering of the prosecution Mr. Older appeared with his attorneys, Hunsaker & Britt of this city and Theodore Roche and Eustace Cullinan of San Francisco. When the case was called Justice Summerfield produced the writ of prohibition, which had just reached him by messenger from the North, and announced that all proceedings in the case would be suspended. Those present at once dispersed. A few minutes later Brown appeared. He appeared indignant and declared that the whole purpose is simply to gain time to carry the case over until after the municipal election in San Francisco.

The question of jurisdiction, raised in the writ, is based upon the residence of the plaintiff which is claimed to be in Alameda county. Brown yesterday stated that his home is in Los Angeles, that it is well known that this is the case, and that a temporary absence does not invalidate his legal residence.

With Brown in an automobile were former Supervisor "Tom" Lonergan, one of the boodlers, G. M. Roy, a San Francisco café proprietor, and George Hess, a detective. They left the courtroom as soon as they found legal proceedings were suspended, and most of them returned to San Francisco last evening.

WOMAN ARRESTED.

SAYS IT'S PERSECUTION.

Attorney W. P. Hyatt secured a writ of habeas corpus yesterday, returnable this morning before Judge Smith in the Superior Court for Mrs. Frances Bashford of Fort Wayne, Ind., for her release from the County Jail, where she is held on telegraphic orders from Fort Wayne on a charge of grand larceny.

Mrs. Bashford claims that the arrest is a persecution and that her arrest is due to the fact that when she came to Los Angeles last week with the intention of making her home here she brought her little daughter with her. That she recently secured a divorce from her husband and was given the custody of her child, but with the order not to take her out of the jurisdiction of the Indiana court.

Another story is that Mrs. Bashford came to Los Angeles to marry a man who was waiting for her here and that as soon as she reached this city she hired a house on College street. She was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Harry Wright and a deputy from Fort Wayne is now on the way here to take her back.

WIFE'S AWAKENING.

SUES FOR MAINTENANCE.

Hidden under the legal phraseology of a complaint filed in the Superior Court yesterday is told the tragic story of a woman's heart. Mrs. Marie C. Winkler is the plaintiff against her husband, Herman C. Winkler, a young German of good family who is said to receive generous sums from the Fatherland at times.

It was in New York that the couple were married on February 12 last, and the next month came to Los Angeles. They had nearly $1000 in cash and the world looked bright to the young wife. But in May there came a change and Mrs. Winkler in her complaint asserts that while living at No. 1511 Newton street, on May 15, Winkler told her she would have to go out to work and support herself.

What an awakening. But in the complaint it is simply stated that she secured a situation as a servant and has been working ever since, except about the time her baby was born, September 3. Before this, the plaintiff claims, her husband deserted her—on June 5—and that he is now living at No. 365 Chicago street with Annie Woerner.

Mrs. Winkler believes that her husband has received $1500 from Germany lately and that he has bought a house on Leoti street. She says she is destitute and asks the court for an injunction preventing her husband "dissipating" his property, and demands $40 a month alimony, $60 attorney fees, and $20 for expenses.

WIFE ACCUSES.

SMITH DIVORCE CASE.

Mrs. Martin I. Smith, wife of a Los Angeles real estate agent, sued for divorce yesterday, alleging adultery as cause and giving names and dates in her complaint. Mr. Smith denies all the charges and declares that the young woman named as co-respondent is innocent.

COURTHOUSE NOTES.

BREVITIES MISCELLANEOUS.

SUES HUSBAND. Mrs. Mary Tregarden began suit in the Superior Court yesterday to recover $1000 she claims to have loaned her husband, George C. Tregarden, also for $265 for the care and clothing of their little daughter for two years, and for $100 she claims he borrowed upon security belonging to her. Co-defendants are the Utah State Line Mining Company, from which she bought 6000 shares of stock, and placed in her husband's name, and W. H. Paulin, who holds the stock as security for a loan.

SEEKS DAMAGES. H. L. Reush, a former brakeman on the Salt Lake road, began suit in the Superior Court yesterday against the road for $25,000 damages for injuries and $1750 for time lost. On January 11, 1906, while acting as brakeman in the local yards one dark evening, he ran along the runway by his moving train, stumbled over a rock and fell in front of the engine and was badly hurt. He claims the railroad was responsible for permitting that rock to be in the runway.

A GOOD UNION. Articles of incorporation were filed yesterday by the California Celery Union with a capital stock of $25,000, fully subscribed. The trustees are J. E. Ward of Long Beach, and E. F. and J. R. Pinkham of Los Angeles. The object of the union is to deal in and market all kinds of vegetables.

JEWELRY CHEAP. Wholesale price lists of jewelry of all kinds, as submitted as exhibits in the suit filed by the Providence Jewelry Company against Jeweler T. F. Loftis of Hollywood, in the Superior Court yesterday, would be a revelation to buyers of such goods. Gold collar buttons are charged 20 cents a dozen for, while scarfpins sell for $1.20 a dozen, and fancy hat pins for 75 cents a dozen and other things in proportion. Altogether the plaintiff sues to recover $379.30 from the defendant for a bill of goods sold, according to the complaint, on January 24 last.

FOR SPORT. Articles of incorporation were filed yesterday by the Aythya Duck Club, with a capital of $25,000, divided into twenty-five shares of $1000 each, of which $21,000 is subscribed. The club owns 214 acres and limits membership to twenty-five. The trustees are J. George Hately, T. M. Drennan and J. L. Curtis, all of Los Angeles. A number of prominent men in this city and San Diego are shareholders.

SERIOUS CHARGE. Judge Wilbur's court was crowded yesterday with members of the Castelar-street colony to hear the evidence in the criminal trial of Encarnacion Chacon, charged with seduction under promise of marriage of pretty little Maria Venegas last August. Chacon is charged with having married Jacoba Beltran in El Paso on May 7, 1896, but that he told Maria that it was not really a marriage. The case was continued.

WANTS MONEY BACK. J. J. Hardwick began suit in the Superior Court yesterday for the return of $1183.32 as first payments on five lots at Port Orange on Newport Bay, from the M. L. Germain Company, and makes the defendants Eugene Germain, M. L. Germain, C. L. Fredericks and others, as partners in the company. He claims that under a guarantee given him he is entitled to his money back and 10 per cent. interest in case he has not received an offer approximating this sum within a certain time after the first purchase was made on May 22 last.

WOULD SEVER BONDS. Mrs. Kathryn A. Strause began suit in the Superior Court yesterday for the annulment of her marriage with John E. Strause, on the ground that he was not a real husband to her. She asks to be allowed to resume her maiden name of Kennedy. The couple were married in this city on May 11 last.

FEDERAL GRAND JURY.

Members for the Fall Term Are Sworn in and I. H. Polk Is Selected as Foreman.

Grand jurors for the fall term were sworn in at yesterday's session of the Federal Court. Organization was effected, with I. H. Polk as foreman. The new jurors then were excused until Tuesday afternoon.

Several counterfeiting and postoffice cases will be presented to the grand jury, but it is not believed any further railroad rebating cases will come up, as several indictments now are pending, for which trial has not been yet arranged.

will continue until after the Presidential campaign, and then there might be another. If the Republican party wins there will be a revival of business, and it will be so great that the country will have all it can take care of. The large business at the time will take a larger amount of capital, and because of active money it will not be abundant and cheap.

"This country will not witness a period of stagnation; recession will only be short.

"Unreasonable, monopolistic and lawless trades unions are to some extent the cause of the industrial disturbances resulting in strikes and boycott. In this vicinity we are comparatively free from trouble with the unions. The manufacturers canont continue to pay high wages, coupled with short hours, unless he is allowed to advance the selling price of his products.

"Unquestionable freedom in the industries is vital to prosperity and I stand for freedom of all kinds.

"The education of the people by the illustrious example of our President, Mr. Roosevelt, has been the cause of the official activity in the investigation and prosecution of the grafting practices throughout the country. The result of the investigations will be most wholesome and for the good of the country at large.

"There is no danger whatever from large industrial operations such as mergers, in fact, they are a good thing, for the country, if lawfully conducted."

THE INFERIOR COURTS.

Walter Cosby, Automobilist, Is Acquitted by Jury of Charge of Blockading Street.

Walter Cosby, well-known automobile owner, was acquitted yesterday by a Police Court jury of a charge of blockading the street. Autoists hail the result as a great victory for them in their fight for equal rights with street cars in the use of public thoroughfares.

Prior to Cosby's arrest, more than two months ago, there had been constant wrangles between street-car men and automobile drivers. Fourth street, between Hill and Broadway, was a bone of contention. There the cars of the Los Angeles-Pacific line, switched in and out, often held up automobile traffic.

Cosby sent his fast runabout into the crowded street one afternoon, and before he could stop a street car swung in front of him, switching from the south to the north track. The motorman ordered Cosby to get off the track. Cosby replied by pointing to the vehicles which hemmed him in on all sides.

An argument followed, a crowd collected, and in the trouble that followed, Lieut. Murray and several officers dragged the automobile from the track. Cosby was arrested, and yesterday's verdict is the result. The jury was out only ten minutes.

Beans for Alexander.

Alexander A. Miller, a negro, was fined $15 yesterday by Justice Fredericksen, in Police Court, on a charge of battering the countenance of his wife with a beefsteak.

He pleaded guilty, but alleged provocation. He said he asked her to pass the beans; that she hurled the hot dish into his face, and that the beefsteak episode followed.

Heavy Fine for Kan.

S. Kan, one of the proprietors of the Korean restaurant on East Fifth street, was fined $150 yesterday by Justice Fredericksen in Police Court. He had pleaded guilty to a charge of keeping a filthy restaurant. His partner, H. Yam, is now in jail pending trial today on a similar charge. This is the third time Yam has been arrested. According to Restaurant Inspector Wright, Yam sells filthy meat and vegetables to his white customers.

McClain Acquitted.

George McClain, a negro, arrested on a charge of resisting and interfering with an officer, was acquitted yesterday by a jury in Justice Austin's Police Court. The charges were filed by the dog catchers. McClain, it was alleged, attacked William Vacher when the latter attempted to seize the negro's dog.

BILLIARD HALLS RAIDED.

Managers and Players Charged With Violating Anti-gambling Law in Playing "Pay-ball Pool."

"Pay-ball pool," a popular form of gambling in Los Angeles billiard halls, will be eliminated unless the courts decide against the police in the arrest of the managers of the Morley and the Hoffman pool rooms in the raid made by a squad of plain clothes officers last night. A test case will be made.

Under instructions from the Patrol Captain, Officers Humphries, Cos, Carrol and Williamson went to the Hoffman billiard hall at No. 215 South Spring street, owned by Henry Berry, manager of the Los Angeles Baseball club, and after watching a "pay-ball" game for some few minutes, arrested J. Marado, the manager, and Thomas Davis, H. C. Ware, and James Barnes, players. They were taken to Central Station, where the manager was released upon depositing $50 bail and the players $25 each.

The officers then raided Morley's pool hall at No. 220½ South Spring street. There Thomas Leitt, manager; K. V. Wolfe, J. Johnson and V. E. Nettenger, players, were taken into custody, but at Central Station were released on bail.

The House of Bishops of the Protestant Episcopal Church at Richmond, Va., yesterday elected Rev. Frederick Fouke Reese of Christ School, Nashville, Tenn., as bishop of the missionary district of Wyoming, and Rev. Henry Deane Robinson, president of Racine College, Racine, Wis., as bishop of the missionary district of Nevada.

PART II: EDITORIAL, LOCAL AND BUSINESS SECTION

Pen Points

The crushing of Heinze may be merely the carrying out of a Standard Oil revenge.

If it be true that business is short of money, why don't the gold diggers get busier?

Barring Jim Jeffries, we will back Stuyvesant Fish against any man in the business.

When the bottom falls out of copper, think of the poor devils who must drop through the hole.

To paraphrase the proverb a little, if business interferes with your money cut out your business.

Earl Rogers and Francis Heney are engaged in calling each other liars. Well, they are both lawyers.

Cornelius Vanderbilt must be a very unusual person. He says he does not desire to see his name in the papers.

Although they are not called gamblers, that's really what those rich men are who are losing so fast just now.

It's lucky for the anti-Fish crowd in the Illinois Central fight that proxies and not six-ounce gloves are to be used.

The dispatches say that F. Aug. Heinze is fighting for life. That's nothing new. He has been doing it for years.

We don't see how anybody can be blue in Southern California when God is letting these nice, gentle rains fall upon us.

Why should Congress be asked for $1,000,000 with which to enforce the pure food law? Isn't a law supposed to enforce itself?

Merely as a suggestion, perhaps the changing of the name of her baseball club might satisfy the clamor in Portland just as well.

As we understand the turn affairs have taken in Morocco, France proposes to buy Spain out and make Morocco pay for it.

On the other hand, we fail to see why so many people who do not deal in copper, and never did, should have become so excited over the slump.

Whatever else may be happening in this Brown-Older affair, Ben Cohn's friends are unable to notice that he is losing any flesh over it.

What Editor Shortridge probably meant was that Hayes burned the bridges behind him when he took upon himself the duties of a Congressman.

When a man bites off more than he can chew the difficulty is that he isn't very well able, under the circumstances, to spit on his hands and take a new hold.

Sympathy for the Crown Prince of Germany, who has been put to work as a book-keeper, can be spared to some extent when it is remembered that he is not doing it on a salary.

Stuyvesant Fish appears to think that the only way to treat a man who calls him a liar is to punch his defamer in the face. This is not a lawful way, but it is usually very effective.

Those enterprising gentlemen who have been endeavoring to take gold out of the sea have evidently come to the conclusion that it isn't any easier than to take it out of the land.

A San José editor has been sued for libeling a Congressman. The case will be watched with interest in order to settle whether or not it is possible for an editor to do a thing of that kind.

The President of the United States, who uses his Cabinet officers to travel around the world making friends of other nations, is placing his name where the angels do the sign painting.

We heartily second the motion to change the name of our great Oregon neighbor from Portland to Multnomah. The present name is ineloquent, and the metropolis of the Columbia deserves a better.

An actor has been arrested for having two wives at the same time. Actors have become so accustomed to acquiring wives that they seem to have grown careless about taking the trouble to secure divorces.

The count whom Miss Gladys Vanderbilt is to marry is said not to be really in the first rank of Hungarian society. His seat at the big dinners is probably as much as fifteen or twenty chairs distant from the main decanter.

PAUPERISM AND PROVIDENCE.

The drop in price of copper has caused the temporary closing of many copper mines. Butte is a great copper center and its prosperity has been destroyed for the time being. The industry had been very active for years, and the miners had been receiving high wages with steady work. With the loss of employment some of these miners find themselves reduced to a state of starvation. They were well-to-do a month ago, earned the highest wages, had plenty of money for all reasonable use, and enjoyed about all the really good things of life. Today they are paupers and appeal to the community for bread for themselves and their families.

Prof. Bushnell of Washington has been devoting much time to a study of pauperism. His published views are alarming. No one who had not made such investigations would have guessed that any such pauperism exists in our country. A visit to the most congested portions of large eastern cities reveals no such conditions on the surface. One is at a loss to know where this Washington student of sociological conditions got his mass of facts, and the first impulse is to question whether the facts exist as he has stated them.

But waive that. Assume that the Bushnell statistics state conditions as they are. Then what cause lies at the root of the evil? Dr. Bushnell assumes that society is to blame; that these conditions necessarily inhere in our industrial system. The specialist is usually one of the most superficial of men. He is indefatigable in his pursuit of facts. He works with tireless energy to gather a mass of figures. There his investigation is likely to stop. He has traveled far and gleaned in many fields, but he has failed to go an inch below the surface. He has his statistics duly classified and labeled before his eyes. Then with his eyes shut he takes a long leap in the dark to reach his conclusion. Here are the figures. There is the industrial system. The number of wage-earners who are paupers in condition is amazing. The number of wage-payers who are poor is small. Is not the conclusion clear that the system is at fault?

Not by a thousand degrees. In Butte two months ago pauperism was unknown. Today it is common. The mines are closed. Wages are stopped. The workmen are in want. The employers still have money in bank. Whose fault is that? The pauperism is the result of improvidence. The position of independence is the result of providence. Not all the men who worked in the mines are paupers. Some of them have money in bank. Nearly all of them ought to have some money laid by. Not all the mine owners, that is, not all the stockholders in these mines, are in comfortable circumstances. Like the great majority of the miners, a few of the owners have been spendthrifts. It has been "easy come, easy go" with them. Yesterday they were in affluent circumstances. Today they are in want.

No one will be likely to deny that there are many persons in all parts of the world in want from no fault of their own, but as a result of circumstances. No doubt in eastern cities besides the sick, the vicious and those whose judgment has been wrong, there are immigrants who do not know our language, who have no handicraft by which they may earn a living, and others who lack initiative, and all these are poor without being to blame for it. They could not help it.

It is a shallow view of life, which, seeing the wage-earner poor in so many cases and the wage-payer poor in so few, takes a flying leap to the conclusion that the industrial system is all, or is generally, on an unjust basis. If Prof. Bushnell would take the trouble to study Bradstreet's and Dun's reports for a term of years, he would learn that it is not a straight, smooth path to success which the business man treads. About 90 per cent. of all who go into business fail. Some lack judgment; some lack knowledge of their business; some try to do too much for their capital; others are intemperate in their habits; others neglect their business; some play the races, and some spend their money in vice.

The wage-earner who during the last ten years practiced providence, is not a pauper today if he loses his job. The business man who spent all he made, or more during the last few years is liable to be in want the day after his business is closed up, because of his failure to manage it properly.

If pauperism is on the increase in this country it is because improvidence, extravagance, self-indulgence, drunkenness and vices are on the increase.

The competent, diligent, wise, thrifty workman of this year under our industrial system is the wage-payer of next year. It is so in hundreds of thousands of cases, always has been, always will be. The business man of today who is inattentive to business, who gambles, drinks, frequents haunts of vice, will be the street sweeper of tomorrow. So it is, so it always has been, so it always will be. That is a law as immutable as the law of gravitation, and Dr. Bushnell or any other theorist can no more make it work the other way than he can compel the rapids of Niagara to flow up stream. Dr. Bushnell cannot sow thistle seeds and reap wheat.

WHEN A GIRL MARRIES.

There appears to be a widespread interest in the coming marriage of Miss Gladys Vanderbilt to a Hungarian nobleman with a somewhat unpronounceable name. He is said to be a rather good sort, not at all impecunious, and was brave enough to wear a straw hat on Broadway, in New York City, recently, many weeks after the straw hat season had taken wings. The girl is interesting for two reasons; first, simply because she is a girl, and secondly, because she enters the marriage state dowered with an immense fortune in her own right. In view of all this it is not to be wondered at that the approaching nuptials are attracting unusual attention.

While, from a feeling of national pride in American men, most of us would always prefer to see them chosen by American girls as husbands, yet it must be conceded that our girls have a right to marry whom they please, and even frequently, under the law. Moreover, there should be no ground for argument that Miss Vanderbilt will not be as happy with a count as she would with an untitled American. It is all owing to whether or not they love each other and will have the good sense not to quarrel any oftener than is necessary to lend a spice to life.

The fact is that when any girl marries she is taking the most fateful step that she can possibly take in life. This rule applies whether she be high or low, rich or poor. And when she marries, the thing for her to remember is that the tie with which she then binds herself is not lightly to be broken. It may turn out that she will be unhappy and that her burdens may be hard to bear, but she must take what comes and not shirk. It is not meant by this that a woman must live with a man who is a hopeless brute, or that she must endanger her life by continuing to submit to indignities, but it does mean that she must not grasp at trifles or even at serious obstacles as an excuse to prove false to her vows.

When a girl marries she must keep in mind, above all things, that she is to be a mother of men. God created woman that sons might have mothers. In her lies the destinies of the race. She is the hope of the future and the one holy dependance of a world that, but for her, would not last another day. If, when a girl marries, she will resolve to carry out her part, come good or ill, only good wishes and prayers for her happiness should follow her, no matter from what land she hails or to what other she may elect to go.

HOCH DER KAISER!

William I, by the grace of God King of Prussia and Emperor of Germany, is your true knight, indeed your archangel Michael to drive sin and Satan from the earth. With a sword flaming and double-edged he lighted down upon that "Round Table" where German "nobles" were practicing ignoble vices as corrupting as those which called the fire from heaven on Sodom. Now he takes a cat-o'-nine-tails and whips his first-born, the Crown Prince, who is to succeed to the throne—whips him from the royal, paternal presence, from a boudoir in a palace and the companionship of nobility and royalty to bestride a stool like a lowly clerk and do a hireling's work in order to chasten the seven-fold fires of unregenerate youth from his soul and make him a man with a man's control over his passions, to put a clean heart in him and a wise head on him, so that when he becomes a King he may be worthy to rule an empire because he has learned to rule himself.

Thank heaven, the day has come in our time when the world has kings like this and not a Louis XV, Charles I, Ivan the Terrible, Nero or Ahab!

WE HAVE HAD ENOUGH.

The Jamestown Exposition is a failure. The Federal government stands to lose all of the $1,000,000 loaned to help launch the scheme. The Dublin Exposition is a failure; it may probably be classified as an "Irish bull" that the promoters propose to repeat next year, so as to make it a success. Shows are not usually repeated when the audience does not call for an "encore."

The fact is, the world has had of late somewhat of a surfeit of these expositions. Since the first was held in the "Crystal Palace in London in 1852 there have been many. New York, we believe, had the second of great importance, and the "Crystal Palace" in that city was for a few years a "show" in itself until it was consumed by fire.

How many of these "shows" has the world had since our "Centennial" at Philadelphia in 1876? The Chicago, Buffalo and St. Louis fairs were fairly successful. So was the little "Midwinter Fair" at San Francisco, an offshoot of the "Columbian" at Chicago. The "Lewis and Clark" fair at Portland, Or., was a great venture, but it succeeded. All these have taken place in this country in but little over ten years.

The trouble about keeping up such things in so rapid succession is that there is too much sameness about them. The principal difference is merely of size.

Many thought that the fair at Portland would fail, because of its remoteness from population. But the fact that it was held on the Pacific Coast saved the day. Who does not wish for an excuse to cross the continent and get a glimpse of New America here on the shores of the world's greatest sea, facing the mystic Orient just awakening from its age-long sleep? The great battles of the twentieth century, in commerce, if not in arms, will take place on these shores. The development of the century will reach its climax here.

But who has any excuse or desire to go down to see some old place on the Atlantic whose only interest is in its traditions?

IT IS SPRING IN CALIFORNIA.

"The drops that water the earth"—the first of the new season—have fallen in Southern California. It is springtime here now and will be until about the end of May. That is a little long for the spring season, but that is because the opening is a little early this year. Never mind the almanac. That is an ancient institution made before the "Land of Sunshine" was known and never yet reformed to meet conditions here. Besides, all the almanac says is that it is the month of October, and that month is more than half-way past. Then your mind, educated on eastern ideas, reads in between the lines your old-time experiences in the "Land of Ice and Snow" and you get to the misleading conclusion that we are on the edge of winter. Look up to the skies from the pages of the calendar. Look out on the fields from the recesses of your mind. The skies and the fields will tell you it is springtime.

Last week it was summer, the culmination of the summer when all the crops had been gathered in and the fields were crisp and brown, shorn of all the productions of the fertile soil. The mercury in the tube ranged from 70 to 80 degrees. There was a hush in the air, a haze over the mountains and plains. This week the skies are thick with clouds and the fields are soaked with spring showers. Oh, yes, these come in April, back where we were born, and make May flowers. That is all changed in this land where summer ends one day and spring begins the next, just taking a "hop, skip and a jump" over winter in a moment.

"The drops that water the earth" have dropped into the eyes of the seeds from which the poppy flowers grow, touching them into wakefulness. The moisture is gently soaking into the heart of the bulbs from which the butterfly lilies spring and softening them so that the tender gem can burst its prison walls, dull with contact with the earth, and break forth into newness of beauty and life, making the landscape gay. This will all take place as it were tomorrow.

Thanksgiving Day is approaching, when the ponds in the lands of our old homes will be covered with the first coating of ice and lads will sally forth, radiant and glad to be sure, to coast and skate. Christmas and New Year's Day are only nine or ten weeks away, and long before they come in those old homes of ours, snowflakes will fly, trees will stand bare as telegraph poles, and the cold north winds will shriek through the naked branches. The streams will have ceased to sing along the hillsides and through the valleys. Winter, clad in furs, will be blowing on his numb fingers through the icicles in his long gray beard.

That will be the way of the seasons in our old homes. Base-burner stoves will glow red in hall and living-room. The "backlogs" will glow in the big fireplaces where woods still exist. The family, the family cat and the house dog will all crowd together as near the blaze as possible.

With us the moist earth of today, fructified by our first showers of the new spring, will at once begin to bud, burgeon and bloom. The brown fields of yesterday's consummated summer will become the velvety green of tomorrow's new-born spring. With showers and the copious downpours to follow at intervals during the ensuing weeks, soon the landscape will be aflame with poinsettias as red as a cardinal's hat, with geraniums of many hues, with the ever-blooming roses of our sunny land, and the plains and hillsides will look like emerald. There will be no skating, no, not even at Christmas and New Year's Day. There will be no double windows to the houses, nor false entrances to keep out the snow and wind. No "backlogs" will roar in the fireplaces. We shall eat our turkey, our walnuts and raisins with windows wide open, sunlight streaming in, soft airs blowing, gardens gorgeous as peacocks' raiment, mocking birds singing in the trees, and springtime at its full perfection when Christmas bells are ringing and New Year's greetings filling all the atmosphere.

The Dreamer.

What I have seen is mine. I close my eyes;
Lo, now the glory of the sun-gilt west,
And virgin peaks that take their silent rest;
And now on burdened bays the towers arise
That gleam in story under older skies.
I follow—follow where the keels have pressed
The fresh new shores of the uncharted quest;
North, fervent south, and east my red sail flies.

What if my hands be empty of estate?
What if I live in Fortune's chill despite,
And if this room be bare and desolate?
My heritage is rich on every breeze,
My ships fare out along the starry night,
And I have shadowy fleets on all the seas.

—[Thomas Wood Stevens, in Metropolitan Magazine.

HOROSCOPE FOR THIS DAY.

Friday, October 18, 1907.

From moving pens compelling power flows.
Upon the scribe a favoring planet glows.

The 291st day of the year. Moon's age 11 days. Mercury is in benefic aspect with the moon.

In these twenty-four hours the planets look with especial power for good on all dealings connected in any way with writing. Important letters may well be sent out today. All business connected with printers, publishers or editors should be pushed, especially before 4 p. m.

A favorable day for dealings with the law.

This day "unseen fluids" threaten. Be cautious when in the vicinity of electric dynamos, batteries or wires. Touch not.

Those whose birthdate this is must guard their health during the twelvemonth. They are in danger from neglecting their business for the pleasure of female society.

The boy born today will do well in employment. He will be rather loose about money, which will militate against his success if in business for himself.

Be extremely judicious in training the girl born today. She is in danger of being so susceptible to flattery that she will marry unhappily, preferring a smooth tongue to solid merit. Train her to learn human nature.

HE'D WAIT.

I can't pay this bill just now. You will have to wait for the money.

"Very well, sir," cheerfully replied the boy, as he seated himself. "Them's the orders of the boss."

"What are the orders of the boss?" demanded the man sternly.

"I'm to wait for the money."

C. B. Seeley, who recently retired from the position of secretary and treasurer of the Napa States Hospital, which he had held for twenty-seven years, has been elected City Librarian of Napa.

PATERNALISM STILL IN VOGUE.

SCIENCE NOTES.

Distribution of Bacteria.

An experiment to determine the possibility of dangerous germs being transported considerable distances through the open air was recently made in Washington. Complaint had been made that certain premises were liable to contamination from a refuse heap 800 feet distant. A government official, an authority on bacteria, selected a species of micro-organism not normally present in Washington air, and distributed it with a spray over the refuse heap in question. At the same time culture dishes, calculated to catch bacteria floating in the air, were exposed where contamination had been suspected. The experiments were continued for three hours, the wind blowing in the required direction, but torrents of rain falling continuously. The culture dishes showed that the bacteria had been carried across the intervening distance by the wind, even as high as sixty feet above the ground, notwithstanding the rain.

Peculiar Clothing Material.

Did you ever think there was such a fabric as cloth made out of iron? There is, and it may be in your coat.

It is woven from steel wool, by a new process, and looks as though it had been made from horsehair. It is used largely by tailors to make the collars of coats set fashionably.

Wool made of limestone is being used for men's suits on the continent. It is known as limestone wool and is made in an electric furnace. Powdered limestone, mixed with a chemical, is tossed into the furnace and after passing under a furious blast of air is tossed out as fluffy, white wool. After coming from the furnace the wool is dyed and finally made into lengths of cloth. A pair of trousers or a coat made from this material cannot be burned or damaged by grease, and is as flexible as cloth made from the sheep's wool.

Brain Not the Thinker.

Dr. Joseph Simms, a New York brain specialist, now announces that the brain of man is not what he thinks with, but is merely the organ of life which secretes heat and keeps up the energy of the whole body through the nerve system. Dr. Simms says we think with our whole spiritual being.

Dr. Cooke to Seek the Pole.

That another famous American explorer, Dr. Frederick A. Cooke, of Brooklyn, N. Y., is now at the head of an expedition safely in winter quarters at Etah, Greenland, 650 miles south of the north pole, and north of the farthest Peary station, became known Wednesday, when John R. Bradley, the wealthy New York sportsman, returned to North Sydney, on his schooner yacht after landing Cooke, with sleds, dogs and provisions for two years. Mr. Bradley, who is the financial backer of this expedition, says that their intentions were kept secret for fear that the Peary expedition would be stirred to greater activity. Cooke will leave Smith's Sound at 79 deg. north latitude, next spring, and after crossing Ellesmereland, will try to reach the pole by the open polar sea. Unlike Peary, Dr. Cooke is to be accompanied by only two Eskimos and dogs sufficient for two sleds. The sleds are built with roofs and warmed with lamps so that the occupants may sleep while progress is being made. Two canvas boats are also carried for open-water crossings.

Sponges Grow in Alaska.

The most remarkable story from Alaska is that information that sponges grow in the waters of the northland and that a large portion of the islands and reefs of the peninsula centering about Day's Harbor are of coral formation. The discovery that sponges grow so far north is considered the strangest in recent years. They are said to be large and of the finest quality. They were found along the Kenai Peninsula by L. A. Peel and Joe Filandeau, two copper prospectors of Seward City. The two men had been searching in Day's Harbor for copper formations, which are sometimes found below the surface of the sea, when they ran across the sponges. Many fine specimens were secured and were shipped to Seattle for expert opinion.

The 1906 imports at all the treaty posts of China amounted to $328,000,000, a decrease of $29,000,000 from 1905; the exports were $189,000,000, an increase of $7,000,000.

"Why did'nt you ask for it? I would see it," said the manager. The letter was made for it the letter was covered up with other [illegible] desk.

"I supposed you were holding it for some reason," said the assistant.

"No," said the manager, "I simply didn't see it, and I don't consider myself responsible for the delay in your business to get it through."

NO INDORSEMENT HERE.

Two venerable-looking Armenians, with long-flowing beards and cloaks of an antiquated clerical cut, endeavored to secure the indorsement of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association, yesterday, for a scheme to solicit funds for some alleged charitable project in Turkey. Secretary Zeehandelaar informed the solicitors that the business men are already overwhelmed with demands of benevolences in the city. He said the association would not indorse outside schemes, except upon the highest of bona-fide credentials. "Hardly a day passes but what some professional beggar comes here to secure indorsement," said the secretary. "While some of the plans may be meritorious, the most of the applicants are simply collecting funds for their own use."

WOMAN'S CLUB OF HOLLYWOOD.

The literary section of the Woman's Club of Hollywood inaugurated its season's work Wednesday afternoon with an inspiring address by Mrs. De Forest Reichard on "Our Literary Ideals." Mrs. Reichard made a strong plea for Mathew Arnold's conception of culture—making prevail the best that has been known and taught in the world. Her address was punctuated by bits of poetry rendered with truth and fidelity to the author's sentimen. and feeling. Informal discussion of topics suggested by the address followed, and tea was served.

MUSIC AND THE STAGE.

Following his "Romeo and Juliet" production, Mr. Morosco will revive the virile old "Held By the Enemy," and will give it a remarkable male cast.

The play will mark Mace Greenleaf's return to the stage, as he will take the light comedy role made famous by Gillette. Desmond will play the lead, while Beasley will be seen as the spy. This completes the trio of genuine leading men in the principal parts. Mr. Mestayer is assigned to the strong role of Sergt. Fielding.

Mr. Greenleaf will afterwards be seen in a number of Ibsen parts, as the plans for Ibsen revivals are of much wider scope than was at first intended. "An Enemy to the People" will be one of the new productions, in which Mr. Greenleaf will have a strong role.

Brenda Fowler, who has not been seen on the local stage for a long time, will return to town to play in "A Doll's House."

"Il Trovatore" will be repeated at the opera tonight, with Signori Signorini, Pimazonni and Mauceri, and Signorina Gonsales.

"La Boheme" is billed for tomorrow afternoon, with a repetition of the remarkable "Rigoletto" performance at night.

The old bad feature in all this is the frequency of Parola's appearances. He has been scheduled for five out of the week's seven performances, and even his young, beautiful and splendidly used voice must suffer eventually from such a strain. It would be an eventual blessing to the audience, and a certain relief to Parola, if the management would put Balestri in for one of the Saturday performances. Balestri is the gentle-faced young tenor behind the fortissimo vest which is frequently a noisy spot in the foyer. It is said that he is an excellent understudy.

Dates at San Diego and Fresno are contemplated for the time of Sousa's engagement, following which the management of the company, at the return, wishes to open the two weeks' conclusion with "Mignon."

Healy's opera company will leave tomorrow night for Portland, taking a train a few minutes after the conclusion of the performance. The winter run of traveling attractions will commence at the Los Angeles Theater on Sunday night.

Mr. Lotto's Christmas present will be Florence Roberts, with an allegedly strong supporting company. Since her last visit to Los Angeles, Miss Roberts has gained New York celebrity, and has experienced one or two failures.

Ralph Stuart, formerly a well-known leading man in Los Angeles, will soon be in with Robert Edeson's familiar play, "Strongheart."

"The Royal Chef," a musical comedy aggregation numbering sixty-five people, will come in week after next. Other plays soon to follow there are "The Rollicking Girl," "The Isle of Spice," "Way Down East" and "Under Southern Skies."

A well-attended and thoroughly appreciated musicale was given last evening at the Glendale Country Club by five people well known in local artistic circles.

The programme participants were Roland Paul, tenor; Mrs. Edmond S. Shank, soprano; Miss Alice Wakefield, contralto; Edmond S. Shank, bass, and Mme. Elsa von Grofe-Menasco, 'cellist.

Their numbers included the Gounod "Ave Maria," by Miss Wakefield; White's "King Charles," by Mr. Shank; Rudolf's narrative, "Boheme," by Mr. Paul; a Gretry air, by Mrs. Shank, and Walthern's prise song, "Die Meistersinger," by Mme. Menasco.

Another wedding at Fischer's Theater—that of Pearl Jardinere and Will B. Pierce—is the eighth that has been celebrated from the company in two years.

The nuptial service was pronounced immediately after the Tuesday matinée by Justice of the Peace Pierce.

Henry Decker in a fireman's cap and buttons was a familiar figure to all the old-timers of the town. After fifteen years of retirement, Decker has again donned his uniform, this time in the pay of the Orpheum instead of the municipality.

Decker belonged to the days when Los Angeles was protected from conflagrations by a volunteer force. In those days human muscles drew the old-fashioned engines to the fires, and according to his story one stubborn Council was only induced to secure horses by the absolute refusal of the volunteer regiment to haul an engine back after it had been used at a blaze on the outskirts of town.

Later, the Council agreed to pay $5 for hauling the apparatus to each fire, and the crew first on the scene got the money.

Decker was one of the thirty-eight veterans who assisted in the reorganization of Engine Company No. 1, and for a considerable time prior to the organization of the present department he was assistant chief.

Decker has been working in the "gum-shoe gang," which nightly changes a palace to a Japanese tea garden, or a "street-in-one" to a parlor, full stage, or other equal marvels in fifteen seconds.

The recent fire near the Orpheum results in a change of service in the theater, and places Decker again in the service of the fire department.

George N. Loomis, Sousa's business manager, and a musical agent of wide experience through the West, talks very interestingly of band history, and the celebrated director's future plans.

"It has been fifteen years," said Mr. Loomis, yesterday, "since John Philip Sousa first came to Los Angeles. That same year the present Sousa organization came into existence, the director having retired from the United States Marine Service at Washington during that summer. Since that time he has visited Los Angeles on eight concert tours, and the coming visit will be his ninth."

Mr. Loomis believes that Sousa's trips will soon be a matter of past history.

"Mr. Sousa is a very wealthy man," said he, "but he is no less industrious on that account, and between his musical composition, literary work and the direction of his concert tours and all that is implied in a distinguished professional position in New York, he is tremendously busy. For instance, a new opera will be brought out by Mr. Sousa in January, and he is outlining still another.

"Mr. Sousa is also longing for some leisure in which to satisfy his literary ambitions, which have shown themselves as abundantly of late. Moreover his famoly makes an inconsistent and ever-increasing protest against his long absence on cross-country trips."

Sousa's band, says Mr. Loomis, contains at present fifty-five well-chosen musicians. His programmes are apparently of the highest order.

The Mme. Irene---A Corset Made For Us Exclusively

While a Broadway display window effectively displays a few of the large number of well-known corsets we constantly carry in stock--no less than thirty different makes --we want to speak in detail today of a new style which is made expressly for us; one we know will delight women who are accustomed to look to us for all that is latest and best in corset style:

The Mme. Irene corset is made by a world renowned corsetaire who has perfected her models by years of practical experience in her exclusive corset parlors. The models are extremely long below the waist line, with high bust and round tapering waist effect. Irene models are furnished with six garters.

And best of all, we have these corsets unfinished, so that a model may be fitted to your individual figure just exactly as would a made-to-order corset, at much less expense.

REFINISHED PEPPER.

Brilliant Gathering at Reception and Dance for Formal Opening of Hostelry Last Night.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer F. Woodbury entertained with a reception and dance at Hotel Pepper last night. The hotel was artistically decorated, and a brilliant company gathered to witness the formal reopening of the hostelry.

Mrs. Woodbury was assisted in receiving by Mmes. W. D. Turner, L. S. Robinson, William Bartling, C. O. Whittemore, J. Rowell, Benjamin Hahn, William Haskell and Fred Bitman, and Misses Leigh Whittemore, Jeane Whittemore, George Parks, Faye Farrell, Louise Bartling, Warren Mills and Marian Eskridge.

An excellent musical programme was rendered, Langdon Smeade, the boy soprano; Mrs. Fred Bitman, contralto; Miss Marian Eskridge, reader; George Pedley, baritone, and Mrs. Elmer F. Woodbury, soprano, participating. Mrs. Woodbury rendered a song of her own composition, "In Sweet Loveland."

Hotel Pepper has been redecorated and refinished throughout, and the color scheme harmonized well with the decorations last night. Across the light-well opening in the dining-room has been constructed a pergola of Flemish oak. From the beams of the pergola hung festoons of smilax and carnations, while potted ferns were placed about the walls.

The Weavers
Messrs. Harper & Brothers take pleasure in announcing the publication in book form of Gilbert Parker's great new novel "The Weavers."
THE BOOK
The appearance of this romance as a serial in Harper's Magazine seems to have so interested the reading public that they have compelled the printing before publication of more books than were ever similarly issued under the imprint of HARPER & BROTHERS.
THE REASON
The story is one of terrific force. In the realm of adventure strife has a purpose, love is noble and victory falls to those who fight the good fight. The lives of a man and woman cross and intermingle and the threads woven by fate finally achieve a result at once satisfying and complete.
THE KEYNOTE
The author's foreword sounds the note:
"Ye are all weavers, and Allah the Merciful, does he not watch beside the loom?"

The Powers and Maxine.

By C. N. and A. M. Williamson.

CHAPTER XI—(Continued.)

If only Ivor had arrived a quarter of an hour earlier, at the time appointed, I should have hurried him away before this, so that I might write to Raoul; but now I could not think what to do for the best—what to do that things might not be made far worse instead of better between Raoul and me. I had suffered so much that my power of quick decision, on which I'd so often prided myself, vainGloriously, seemed gone.

"It is Raoul," I said. "What shall I do?"

"Let him in, of course, and introduce me. Don't act as if you were afraid. Say that I came to see you on important business concerning a friend of yours in England, and had to call after the theater because I'm leaving Paris by the first train in the morning."

"No use."

"Why not? When a man loves a woman, he trusts her."

"No man of Latin blood, I think. And Raoul's already angry. He has the right to be—or would, have, if Godensky had been telling him the truth. And I refused to let him come here I said I was going straight to bed, I was so tired. He'e knocking again. Hide yourself, and I will let him in. Oh why do you stand there, looking at me like that? Go into that room—" and I pointed, then pushed him toward the door. "You can get through the window and out of the garden-safely -while Raoul and I are talking."

"If you insist," said Ivor. "But you're wrong. The best thing—"

"Go-go, I tell you. Don't argue, I know best." I cut him short, in a sharp whisper, pushing him again.

This time he made no more objections, but went into the adjoining room, my boudoir. The key was in the door; I turned it in the lock, snatched it out, and dropped it into a bowl of flowers on a table close by. That done, I flew out of the drawing-room into the little entrance hall, and opened the front door.

There stood Raoul, his face dead white, and very stern in the light of the hall lamp, I had never seen him like that before.

"I know why you're here," I began quickly, before he could speak. "Count Godensky told me what he said to you. I—hoped you would come."

"Is this why you wished to know what I would do if you deceived me?" he asked, with the bitterest reproach in eyes and voice.

"No. For I haven't deceived you," I answered. "I haven't deceived you now. If you loved me, you'd believe me, Raoul."

I put out my hand and took his. He gave mine no pressure, but he let me draw him into the house.

"For God's sake, give me back my faith in you, if you can," he said. "It's death to lose it. I came here wanting to die."

"After you'd killed me, as you said?"

"Perhaps. I couldn't keep away. I had to come. If you have any explanation, for the love of heaven tell me what it is."

"You know me, and you know Godensky—yet you need an explanation of anything evil said of me by him?" In this way I hoped to disarm Raoul; but he had been half mad, I think, and was scarcely sane now, such a power had jealousy over his better self.

"Don't play with me!" he exclaimed. "I can't bear it. You sent me away. Yet you had an appointment with Godensky. You took him into your carriage; and now——"

"Marianne was in the carriage. If I could have had you with me, I should have packed her off by herself, alone, that I—might be alone with you. Oh, Raoul, it isn't possible you believe that I could lie to you for Godensky's sake—a man like that! If I'd cared for him, why shouldn't I have accepted him instead of you? Could I have changed so quickly, do you think?"

"I don't think; I'm not able to think. I can only feel," he answered.

"Then—feel sure that I love you—no man but you—now and always."

"Oh, Maxine!" he stammered. "Am I a fool, or wise, to let myself believe you?"

"You are wise," I answered, as firmly as if I deserved the full faith I was claiming from him as my right. "If you wouldn't believe, without my insisting, without my explaining and defending myself, I'd tell you nothing. But you do believe, just because you love me—I see it in your face, and thank God for it. So I'll tell you this. Count Godensky hates me, because I couldn't and wouldn't love him, and he hates you because he thinks I love you. He——" I paused for a second. A wild thought had flashed like the light of a beacon in my brain. If I could say something now which, when the blow fell—if it did fall—might come back to Raoul's mind and convince him instantly that it was Godensky, not I, who had stolen the treaty and broken him! If I could make him believe the whole thing a monstrous plot of Godensky's to revenge himself on a woman who'd refused him twice, by cleverly implicating her in her lover's ruin, by throwing guilt upon her while she was, in reality, innocent! If I could suggest that to Raoul now, while his ears were open, I might hold his love against the world, no matter what happened.

It was a mad idea and a wicked one, perhaps; but I was at my wits' end and desperate. Though not guilty of this one crime which I would shift upon his shoulders if I could, as a means of escaping from the trap he'd helped to set, Godensky was capable of it, and guilty of others, I was sure, which had never been brought home to him. I believed that he, too, was a spy, just as I was; and far worse, because if he were one he betrayed his own country, while I never had done that, never would.

All these thoughts rushed through my head in a second; and I think that Raoul could hardly have noticed the pause before I began to speak again. "He—Godensky—would do anything to part you and me," I said. "There's no plot too sly and vile for him to conceive and carry out against me—and you. No lie too base for him to tell you—or others—about me. He sent me a letter at the theater—soon after you'd left me the first time. In it, he said that I must give him a few minutes after the play, unless I wanted some dreadful harm to come to you—something concerning your career. That frightened me, though I might have guessed it was only a trick. Indeed, I did guess, but I couldn't be sure, so I saw him. I didn't want you to know—I tell you that frankly, Raoul. Because I'd told you not to come home with me. I hoped you wouldn't find out that I meant to let Count Godensky drive part of the way back with me and Marianne. I ran the risk, and—the very thing happened which I ought to have known would happen. As for what he had to tell me, it was nothing; only vague hints of trouble from which he, as one of an inner circle, might save you, if I—would be grateful enough."

He stopped suddenly. But I knew what had been on his lips to say. He meant to send a challenge to Count Godensky. I must prevent him from doing that.

"No, Raoul," I said, as if he had finished his sentence, "you musn't fight. For my sake, you must't. Don't you see, it's just what he'd like best? It would be a way of doing me the most dreadful injury. Think of the scandal. Oh, you will think of it, when you're cooler. For you, I would not fear much, for I know what a swordsman you are, and a shot—far superior to Godensky, and with right on your side. But I would fear for myself. Promise you won't bring this trouble upon me."

"I promise," he answered. "Oh, my darling, what wouldn't I promise you, to atone for my brutal injustice to an angel? How thankful I am that I came to you tonight! I meant not to come. I was afraid of myself, and what I might do. But at last I couldn't hold out against the Something that seemed forcing me here in spite of all resistance. Do you forgive me?"

"As a reward for your promises," I said, smiling at him through tears that would come because I was worn out, and because I knew that it was I who needed his forgiveness, not he mine.

"Now are you happy again?" I asked.

"Yes, I'm happy," he said. "Though on the way to this house I didn't dream that it would be possible for me to know happiness any more in this world. And even at your gate——" he stopped suddenly, and his face changed. I waited an instant, but seeing that he didn't mean to go on, I could not resist questioning him. I had to know what had happened at my gate.

"Even at the gate—what?" I asked.

"Nothing. I'm sorry I spoke. I want to show you how completely I trust you now, by not speaking of that."

But this reticence of his only made me more anxious to know what he had been going to say. I was afraid that I could guess. But I must hear it from his lips, and be able to explain away the mystery which, when it recurred to him in the future, might make him doubt me, even though in this moment of exultation, he did not doubt.

"Yes, speak of it," I said. "All the more because it is nothing. For it can be nothing."

"I want to punish myself for asking an explanation about Godensky, by not allowing you to explain this other thing," insisted poor, loyal, repentant Raoul. "Then—at the time—it made all the rest seem worse, a thousand times worse. But I saw through black spectacles. Now I see through rose-colored ones?"

"I'd rather you saw through your own dear eyes, without any spectacles. You must tell me what you're thinking of, dear. For my own sake, if not yours."

"Well—if you will know. But, remember, darling, I'm going to put it out of my mind. I'll ask you no questions, I'll only—tell you the thing itself. As I said, I didn't come here directly, after seeing Godensky get into your carriage. I wandered about like a madman—and I thought of the Seine."

"Oh—you must indeed have been mad!"

"I was. But that Something saved me—the Something that drove me to find you. I walked here, by roundabout ways, but always coming nearer and nearer, as if being drawn into a whirlpool. At last, I was in this street, on the side opposite your house. I hadn't made up my mind yet that I would try to see you. I didn't know what I would do. I stood still, and tried to think. It was very black, in the angle between two garden walls where the big plane tree sprouts up, you know. Nobody who didn't expect to find a man would have noticed me in the darkness. I hadn't been there for two minutes when a man turned the corner, walking very fast. As he passed the street lamp just before reaching the garden wall, I saw him plainly—got his face, but his figure, and he was young and well dressed, in traveling clothes. I thought he looked like an Englishman. He went straight to your gate and rang. A moment later some one, I couldn't see who, opened the gate and let him in. Involuntarily I took a step forward, with the idea of following—of pushing my way in to see who he was and who had opened the gate. But I wasn't quite mad enough to act like a cad. The gate shut. Oh, Maxine, there were evil and cruel thought in my mind, I confess it to you—but how they made me suffer! I stood as if I were turned to stone, and I only wished that I might be, for a stone can't suffer. Just then, a cab creeping slowly along the street, stopped in front of your gate. There were two women in it. I could see them by the light of the street lamp, though not as plainly as I'd seen the man, and they appeared to be arguing very excitedly about something. Whatever it was, it must have been in some way concerned with you, of your affairs, because they were tremendously interested in the house. They both looked out, and one pointed several times. Even if I'd intended to go in, I wouldn't have gone while they were there. But the very fact that they were there roused me out of the kind of lethargy of misery I'd fallen into. I wondered who they were, and if they meant you harm or good. When they had driven away, I made up my mind that I would see you if I could. I tried the gate, and found it unlocked. I walked in, and—there were lights in these windows. I knew you couldn't have gone to bed yet, though you'd said you were so tired. There was death in my heart then, for you and for me, Maxine, for—the gate hadn't opened again, and——"

"I know what you thought!" I broke in, my heart beating so now that my voice shook a little, though I struggled to seem calm. "You said to yourself, 'It was Maxine who let the man in. He is with her now. I shall find them together.'"

"Yes," Raoul admitted. "But I didn't try the handle of the door, as I had of the gate. I rang. I couldn't bring myself to take you unawares."

"Do you think still that I let a man in, and hid him when I heard you ring?" I asked. (For an instant I was inclined to tell the story Ivor had advised me to tell; but I saw how excited Raoul was; I saw how, in painting the picture for me, he lived through the scene again, and, in spite of himself, suffered almost as kneely as he had suffered in the experience. I saw how his suspicions of me came crawling back into his heart, though he strove to lash them back. I dared not bring Ivor out from the other room, if he were still there. He was too handsome, too young, too attaractive in every way. If Raoul had been jealous of Count Godensky, whom he knew I had refused, what would he feel toward Ivor Dundas, a stranger whose name I had never mentioned, though he was received at my house after midnight? I was thankful I hadn't taken Ivor's advice and introdced the two men at first, for in his then mood Raoul would have listened to no explanations. He and I would never have arrived at the understanding we had reached now. And not having been frank at first, I must be secret to the end.)

The very asking of such a bold question—"Do you think I let a man in, and hid him?" helped my cause with Raoul.

"No," he said, "I can't think it. I won't, and don't think it. And you need tell me nothing. I love you. And so help me God, I won't distrust you again!"

Just as it entered my mind to risk everything on the chance that Ivor had by this time found his way out, I heard, or fancied I heard, a faint sound in the next room. He was there still!

Instead of throwing open the door, as it had occurred to me to do, saying, "Let us look for the man, and make sure no one else let him in," I laughed out abruptly, as if on a sudden thought, but really to cover the sound if it should come again.

"Oh, Raoul!" I exclaimed, in the midst of the laughter with which I surprised him. "You're taking this too seriously. I thousand times I thank you for trusting me in spite of appearances, but—after all, were they so much against me? You seem to think I am the only young woman in this house. Marianne, poor dear, is old enough, it's true. But I have a femme de chambre and a Cuisinière, both under 25, both pretty, and both engaged to be married." (This was true. Ah, what a comfort to speak the truth to him!) "Doesn't it occur to you that, at this very moment, a couple of lovers may be sitting hand in hand on the seat under the old yew arbor? Can't you imagine how they started and tried to hold their breath lest you should hear, as you opened the gate and came up the path?"

"Forgive me!" murmured Raoul, in the depths of remorse again.

"Shall we go and look, or shall we leave them in peace?"

"Leave them in peace, by all means."

"The man will be slipping away soon, no doubt. Both Therese and Annette are good little girls."

"Don't let's bother about them. You will be sending me away soon, too, and I shall deserve it. Brute that I am. You were so tired, and I——"

"Oh, I'm better now," I said. Of course, I must send you away by and by, but not quite yet. First, I want to ask if you weren't glad when you saw the diamonds?"

"Diamonds?" echoed Raoul. "What diamonds?"

"You don't mean to say you haven't yet opened the little bag I gave you at the theater?" I exclaimed.

Raoul looked half ashamed. "Dearest, don't think me ungrateful," he said, "but before I had a chance to open it, I met Godensky, and he told me—that lie. It lit afire in my brain. I forgot all about the bag, and haven't thought of it again till this minute."

At last I laughed with sincerity. "Oh, Raoul, Raoul, you're not fit for this work-a-day world! Well, I'm glad, after all, that I shall be with you, when you see what that little insignificant bag which you've forgotten all this time, has in it. Take it out of your pocket, and let's open it together."

For the moment, I was almost happy, and that Raoul would be happy, I knew.

His hand went to the inner pocket of his coat, into which I had seen him put the brocade bag. But it did not come out again. It groped, and his face flushed. "Good heavens, Maxine," he said, "I hope you weren't in earnest when you told me that bag held something very valuable to us both, for I've lost it. You know, I've been almost mad. I had my handkerchief in that pocket. I must have pulled it out, and——"

My knees seemed to give way under me. I half fell onto a sofa.

"Raoul," I said, in a queer stifled voice, "the bag had in it the Duchess de Montpellier's diamonds."

Overtaxation.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 17.—[To the Editor of The Times:] The City Council has seen fit to pass an ordinance requiring rooming-houses, hotels, etc., to pay a license of 25 cents per room per year, payable quarterly. This same license was in effect about three years ago and the rooming-house people refused to pay the same, for which some were arrested and the case tested in the Superior Court, which court declared the license ordinance null and void. Why go through the same proceedings again?

Then the Council passed an ordinance whereby the license was in accordance with the gross income per month of each hotel, rooming-house, etc., and which seemed to meet with approval, and which would seem to be the only way in which just taxation of our hotels and rooming-houses can be apportioned, and yet that is an injustice for the following reason: A rooming-house that takes in a gross income, say, of $600 per month, has to pay out of that a rental of possibly $250 per month to the landlord and on this $250 rent our poor landlady has to pay a license, as the same is a part of the gross income; then also out of that $600 per month she has to pay her taxes, water, lights, laundry, chambermaid, et; etc.

In other words she pays a license to have the right of renting the house, paying her personal property tax, to send her clothes to the laundry, to burn the gas, etc., and for the right to employ a chambermaid. The landlord collects his princely rent every month and pays no license. Where is the justice? Some might argue that he pays a realty tax on the rooming-house which is all that is required; the landlady pays a personal property tax on the rooming-house, which is equivalent to the landlord's realty tax. It is about the same as paying a tax on a farm and then having to be licensed to take the spuds out of the ground. That is what they are trying to do with our hotel and rooming-house landlady, it seems, for the purpose of meeting the city's expenses.

Why don't the Council pass an ordinance to this effect for revenue. Each owner of realty shall not demand a rental of tenants that exceeds per year 10 per cent. of the assessed valuation of his real estate. Then our real estate owners will give the assessor a pretty stiff price on his property which will be the means of increasing the city's revenue two-fold of what it is now.

THE BON MARCHE!

Le Sage Bros. Shoe Stock

FOR HALF PRICE!

After a vain attempt to close out the Le Sage Bros.' shoe stock at retail, the trustee decided to sell the entire stock to the Mammoth Shoe House, at practically their own price. So large was the stock that the trustees two weeks' selling made but little impression on it. Le Sage Bros. were practical and well-known shoe men, well versed in the requirements of the local trade. The Bon Marche stock was selected with the utmost care and the cream of this stock was not touched during the trustee sale. The entire sales force of the Le Sage Bros. have been retained at the Mammoth Shoe House. All the former Le Sage customers will be taken care of and waited on by the Le Sage Bros.' former salesmen. This entire stock will go on sale, making the greatest shoe sale ever launched in Los Angeles. The stock comprised shoes of every conceivable style and quality for man, woman or child. Over $20,000 worth of shoes will be on sale at half price and less. Be on hand early today. Extra salespeople, extra cashiers and wrappers have been employed, so you won't have to wait. The sale is on at the Store of the Mammoth Shoe House, 519 S. Broadway.

Suits for the little boys for play and dress-up wear. All styles. Prices $5.00 up. Hats, Caps and Novelty Headgear for little boys and girls—the most extensive assortment in Los Angeles.

Boys' Tuxedo Suits, knee pants style, sizes 7 to 16 years. Prices $15 and $20. Every boy who goes to dancing school or parties needs one.

Girls' Man-tailored Coats, in sizes 6 to 16 years. Smartly cut, beautifully made. The prices of these coats range from $7.50 to $25. They come in weights especially suitable for Fall and Winter wear in this climate.

Fall Wear for Boys and Girls

Our great second floor at the new store has given us what we have never had before—an adequate home for our Boys' and Girls' Department. And it was never so well equipped to meet satisfactorily the requirements of busy Mothers as in the present busy Fall Season.

In our half century of merchandising in Los Angeles we have built up the largest business in young people's wear in the city. Our work has had one principle behind it—to which is due, we believe, much of our success. We have always planned to sell only goods that have real merit—garments that are worth buying—not the cheap, the shoddy, the "bargain" type of merchandise.

We have always handled, and handle today, reliable goods at moderate prices. When we say "Know us for best values," we are honest—for the best values obtainable in juvenile wear in Los Angeles are here in this great Boys' and Girls' Department of ours.

Today and Saturday will be "Young People's Days" at this big, new store. We are crowded to our capacity, every week-end—but not beyond it. We can take care of your needs promptly, courteously, efficiently.

Children's Coats in both long and reefer styles—well made garments in moderate weights suitable for this climate. Prices $4.00 up. Leggings in all colors—leather, stockinette, etc. All kinds of children's furnishings.

Boys' Norfolk Suits, and all kinds of wool suits and corduroys for school and dress-up wear. We have a tremendous variety of these knicker suits—splendid values all, from $5.00 up. All Boys' Furnishings—from underwear to shoes.

Long Pants Suits for Boys and Young Men, sizes 14 to 19 years. Prices from $8.50 up. These suits are as cleverly cut and stylishly made as men's clothing; produced by makers who specialize in this class of garment making.

O'Sullivan's Heels of New Rubber

I always look for the O'Sullivan name. His heels are economical—cost no more than the imitation—the scrap-heap rubber kind which doesn't wear or give the elastic, springy step, or make walking easy. O'Sullivan's are the only all-rubber—all-pure-rubber—heels of brand new rubber.

Sold by all shoe dealers and shoe makers. Attached, 50 cents.

TEXAS RAISING SACRED HERDS.

Burmese Cattle Thriving in Lone Star State.

Big Experiment Promises to Be Big Success.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

DALLAS (Tex.) Oct. 11.—The herd of sacred cattle which Tom O'Connor, a prominent stockman of this city, imported direct from India two years ago, has done so well they will soon be found on many of the ranches of Southern Texas. They were brought to this country with the special idea that they would be used to advantage in improving the breeds of the native cattle.

Mr. O'Connor, of Plano, Tex., and a prominent cattleman of that region, made a personal visit to the home of the Burmese sacred cattle before the experiment of bringing them over was tried. It was found that the Burmese cattle were not subject to the "tick" fever, which most of the cattle in this section, and for that reason, when it comes to introducing fresh blood from "above the line," the stock also had other characteristics which recommended them to those who contemplated such a move, and it was resolved by Mr. O'Connor to try the experiment of importing a herd and turning them loose upon his ranch.

The cattle are the unique-looking animals ever brought to the ranch of Mr. O'Connor, and when they first arrived they attracted the greatest attention among cattlemen. They were the objects of much curiosity, and from all sections would come long distances to see them and make personal observations as to the fitness of the existing breeds of cattle.

Mr. O'Connor is more than satisfied with the experiment of raising the sacred cattle, and particularly well does he like them for the coast region, and declares that they will do much better than those imported from the Orient, or even from the interior of Texas, on account of the immunity which they have to the fever-tick. He is also of himself a point of authority to recommend the Burmese cattle on all the ground that their peculiar malady is the tick, and that the trait is transmitted to their half-breeds as well as to the pure-bloods.

WELL FITTED FOR RANGE LIFE.

There is a hardiness about these animals that is said peculiarly to fit them for range life. It is believed that they will be able to withstand the rigors of the winter without serious loss, and that they are well adapted to the many changes of the more northern portions of the State, and to Oklahoma and Kansas. The heat of summer and the variations of the Gulf Coast region seem to affect them adversely. Their skin is tough and appears to be proof to all insect pests, such as mosquitoes and flies.

Moreover, the claim is made that the cattle are the equal of the Hereford, which is commonly found on the ranges of Texas. They fatten easily and are a remarkably well flavored, juicy beef animal, both in point of weight and other important points.

The Burmese cattle are very docile, being so by nature. Their docility is the matter of which there is a large hump between the shoulder blades on the upper part of their backs.

Mr. O'Connor, who is a close friend of cattlemen who have come in contact with the experiments conducted by Mr. O'Connor on his ranch, and it was remarked by many of these cattlemen that the Burmese sacred cattle that they had seen a few years before this would be found upon many ranches of the State, and that the raising of the "tick" fever, which has in the past been such a bane to cattlemen losses aggregating millions of dollars, in certain territory of Texas, would be subject to this fever, and that it would not cause losses which it now does, but has practically ceased to exist. One of the illustrations of the immunity of the Burmese cattle to the fever-tick is that a herd of thoroughbreds which were brought in the same cars with the Burmese cattle died of the fever-infected ticks, while the Burmese cattle have also died of the

GOSSIP OF THE FOREIGN STAGE.

BY HAYDEN CHURCH.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

PARIS, Oct. 9.—On your side of the water, if one mistakes not, one of the attractions of the new theatrical season is "My Wife," the adaptation of "Mdlle. Josette, Ma Femme," which was made by that transplanted American dramatist, Michael Morton. The last-named piece crowded the Paris "Gymnase" for months on end, but no such fortune has come to its successor, "Joujou Tragic."

Tragic, indeed, has been the fate of this "Joujou" (or Toy,) for it had a run of exactly two nights, one of the shortest on record in Paris. In its case, in fact, one of the most stringent rules of the Society of Dramatic Authors was broken, that powerful organization having fixed three performances as the minimum which may be accorded to a piece. It is not likely, however, that the "Gymnase" management will be penalized, for their case was desperate, "Joujou Tragic" having practically been laughed off the stage.

More's the pity, since the piece was the first dramatic bantling of a gifted young authoress, whose years number exactly twenty-one. Jehanne d'Orliac is her name, and her poetry and culture already have made her something of a celebrity, but she has yet to learn the dramatist's art. Perhaps also to acquire a sense of humor, of which faculty there was little evidence in "Joujou Tragic." Its heroine was an aunt, and for some unknown reason aunts are associated with comedy. The most famous example is "The Aunt of Charley," as they call her in France. But Mdlle. d'Orliac's aunt, or rather the one in her play, was designed to stimulate our tear-ducts rather than our risibilities. A mistake, then, to have given the part to Polaire, whose metier is the comic. "Joujou Tragic," however, proved to be nearly all unintentional fun. The aunt speedily found an admirer in her nephew, and there was love making in Venice and finally discovery by the lady's husband. After this a "scene" between uncle and nephew, and finally the murder of his aunt by the latter. Then curtain!

The audience at the "representation general"—largely made up of critics and their friends—laughed unroariously, and this behavior has led to a brisk discussion in the press of Paris. Have critics a right to laugh or otherwise express approval or disapproval in the theater, some one has asked, and columns of opinions pro and con are solemnly being printed. Luckily for them it was not in Antoine's theater that these critics yielded to mirth, for that manager would not have hesitated to eject the laughers after the first act. It is said that the Parisian Mansfield once thrashed a critic, who had written a notice which Antoine found offensive, and he has excluded more than one writer from the Odeon. Bourchier of London, of course, went farther by shutting out all the critics for awhile, but though the production with which he first tried this experiment proved a success, the actor missed the unpublished "notices" and soon capitulated and apologized. But to deny the critic a right to laugh is quite a new thing!

"Go to see Loie Fuller, and the new play at the Comedie." Thus I was advised on arriving in Paris this time, and the counsel proves to have been good. It is long since "La Loie" has been seen on the Paris stage, but her reappearance is something of a triumph. Oddly enough, it is made in connection with yet another adaptation of "Salome," the work of Robert D'Humieres, director of the Theater des Arts, where this new version of Wilde's play is given. It is "condensed" to the last degree, but effective. The American girl appears in the dance of the Seven Veils, and a wonderful thing she makes of it, with new and weird lighting effects and "property" serpents crawling about the stage. The rest of the evening bill is made up of two playlets, "The Race" and "The Last Troubadour," both clever, but it is "La Loie" who is crowding the house.

The National Theater is packed nightly, too, its new offering, "L'Amour Vieille" (or The Old Love,) having delighted Paris. It is not likely to be translated into English, it deals too consistently with the favorite French themes for that, but bits of the "business" and the really sparkling dialogue are worth mentioning. We begin with a pair of sweethearts, and have the lady proposing to her swain. "I am very much in love," she tells him. "With whom?" he asks, anxiously, and she hands him a looking glass. The thing is quite charming as Mdlle. Leconte does it. So they marry and their honeymoon is ideal. "What did you see in Spain?" the relatives ask the young and radiant bride. "Well, principally, André," she declares, blushing, "but he looked out of the car window sometimes." "Ah!" comments the aunt, "that is the difference between the man and the woman in love."

Afterward the serpent of jealousy creeps into this Eden with the appearance of the man's "old love," but only a little trouble follows. The young wife, however, is led to encourage the advances of an admirer, a writer of tedious histories that nobody reads. This character, delightfully acted by Berr, provides much amusement. "Ah, it was you!" he exclaims with immense astonishment when informed by one of the feminine characters that she had purchased one of his ponderous tomes. "I always wondered who it was that bought it!" However, the poor young savant is used by the lady only so long as her husband's flirtation with the other lady lasts, which is not long. And, except for him, all is well when the curtain falls.

SEEKS NEWS OF GIRL'S ESTATE.

AND AROUSES FEARS OF SOUTH PASADENA PARENTS.

Development of "Forward Movement" in Los Angeles Several Years Ago Recalled by Inquiries Made in Suburban City—Alleged Attempt to Railroad Victim to Asylum.

Office of The Times, No. 24 South Raymond Ave.

PASADENA, Oct. 18.—"Prof." Fricz was about South Pasadena yesterday seeking news of Mary Woodman Kilborn, whose interest in a trust estate of about $40,000 is in litigation. Miss Kilborn, about five years ago, was a teacher in the Los Angeles public schools. Then she met the professor, and, becoming a devotee of the "Forward Movement," left the city with him, lived in the mountains for a while, communing with nature, and then departed with him for a resort near San Mateo, whence she was taken by her relatives a mental and physical wreck. The advent of "Prof." Fricz yesterday threw more than one family in South Pasadena into consternation, as at one time he swayed an influence over girls that was feared by their parents and relatives.

He got very little satisfaction, although he said that the relatives of Miss Kilborn were attempting to railroad her into the insane asylum. Later the girl has quite recovered her mental poise, and it is thought if she can be kept away from the influence of the "Forward Movers," she can be reclaimed to what she was a few years ago, a girl endowed with normal faculties and who took a sane view of life.

It is stated by several respectable people who know the facts that five years ago "Prof." Fricz opened the headquarters of the "Forward Movement" in rooms on the fourth floor of the O. T. Johnson building, in Los Angeles. He gathered around him a number of young women, principally schoolteachers. These he indoctrinated with so-called new ideas. Around his rooms hung pictures of the Savior, many of them drawn in outlandish and ignoble attitudes. He used the figure of the Christian Messiah for the ornamentation of the frieze of the apartments. Here the devotees of his cult would assemble and practice queer customs. One of the frequenters of the place was Harry Gaze, who teaches "everlasting life."

After a period the converts and the master went into the mountains to live near nature's heart, Miss Kilborn among them. Then the cult took up quarters near Hollywood. There they went through the sun-bath and prayer discipline. After this the coterie of devotees personal to "Prof." Fricz went north and sojourned near San Mateo.

Miss Kilborn's father, William H. Kilborn, a native of Worcester, Mass., accumulated in his lifetime a fortune of probably $50,000. That his daughter should be the victim of such delusions worried him. When she became sick in the northern resort he had her brought back to South Pasadena. The girl was wildly infatuated with her life as a practitioner of the "Forward Movement," and was reluctant to come south. She broke the car windows after being taken on the train, and in other ways made her objections known. She was taken to her father's house. Able medical assistance was secured. When the young woman left her home and position as a school-teacher she was normal.

In these circumstances her father made a will leaving his property in trust to the girl, naming the Title Insurance and Trust Company of Los Angeles and the girl's mother as the trustees. Attempts have been made to break the will but, under two decisions from the Supreme Court, the trust company has succeeded in sustaining the will of the heartbroken father. The mother has between $15,000 and $20,000 in her own right, which she has desired to will to the girl. Friends have opposed this, saying the girl should be under guardianship. As matters stand now she gets such portion of the income of the estate as is necessary for her decent support, but neither she nor "Prof." Fricz can touch a penny of the principal or the accumulated profits of the property. Fricz seems desirous to obtain all the information he can concerning former members of his flock, and yesterday was busy making inquiries. He returned to Los Angeles in the evening.

BURGLARS ENTER HOUSE.

Burglars entered the home of H. C. French of Oak Grove avenue, outside the city limits last evening between 6 and 6:30 o'clock, and secured $400 in jewels. They took a lantern with them to ransack the house and gained entrance through an unguarded window. Constable Harley F. Newell and Patrolman Joseph Schultz took up the case after it was reported to the police about 7 o'clock and made an investigation of the situation, but naturally the thieves had made good their escape, at least temporarily. An alarm has been sent out and constant watch is being kept for the thieves.

WANTS FIRE PROTECTION.

In connection with the bond issue which is announced for the latter part of November or the early part of December, Commissioner W. D. Madill raises his voice timely for better fire protection. He says $30,000 is immediately necessary to make ready for security of the property now in existence and what is in sight. He points out that "Pasadena is growing at the rate of $100,000 to $200,000 per month in property value and for this reason the Mentor-avenue firehouse should be enlarged and equipped with a steamer. At this house there is now a chemical engine, but it can only hold a big fire in check until the steamer arrives from the Dayton-avenue house. This is all well and good for the present, but within two years the city will have grown beyond its present size and better protection must be afforded the East side. In my opinion $30,000 is a small figure to include in the bond issue for the new steamer, the enlargement of the house and enough fire plugs."

Commissioner Madill will work hard for this project and it is likely that this sum will be added to the bond issue, especially as Superintendent Hamilton of the school department says that the schools can wait awhile for more funds.

PASADENA NEWS NOTES.

Frank Guthrie, who made a sensational escape last Sunday evening, while under arrest on a charge of forgery of three checks of $55 each, and was arrested through the efforts of Chief Favour and Detective Copping in Los Angeles, appeared before Judge Robert W. McDonald yesterday and through his attorney had his case postponed until next Saturday. Since his arrest, Mrs. Ethel Alderman of No. 557 Broadway, Los Angeles, has sworn out a warrant against him, accusing him of securing her watch and ring and pawning them without her consent.

In the past three days, the rain has exceeded the record for October in this section, but no damage of any considerable amount is reported. The weather is still unsettled. Yesterday afternoon it was bright and balmy, but clouds hovered over the mountains and more rain may be expected before daylight or in the early morning.

At the First Congregational Church on next Sunday, Rally Day will be observed by the Sunday-school at the usual hour of the school exercises. The rally social and reception of the pastor, choir and new members will be held on Friday evening at the church.

At the Shakespeare Clubhouse last night, fourteen nurses were graduated. The class presented an unusually attractive apearance in their neat training-school uniforms. Rev. Malcolm McLeod offered the invocation and the benediction. Rev. Robert J. Burdette delivered an appropriate address to the graduates, and C. J. Willet, president of the Pasadena Hospital, presented the diplomas. The programme of exercises was as published yesterday in The Times.

MAY HAVE TO MOVE.

Southern Pacific May Abandon Its Switch Yards in Pasadena and Go to South Pasadena.

SOUTH PASADENA, Oct. 17.—For several months there has been considerable talk about the city getting a lease of the oak grove belonging to the Southern Pacific Railroad lying to the north of Mission street, and east of the Southern Pacific tracks, for park purposes. The subject was lately talked over with the management of the company in Los Angeles, when it was learned that there is a possibility of the company's using the land for switching purposes.

It seems that there is a possibility that the city of Pasadena will crowd the company out of its switching ground in Pasadena, in which event the company will have to seek yards in South Pasadena. People here would be very sorry to see the grove destroyed, as it is one of the prettiest to be found anywhere.

SOUTH PASADENA NOTES.

The subject of South Pasadena taking part in the Pasadena Tournament of Roses is being agitated here, and committees from the Ladies' Improvement Association and the Board of Trade have already been appointed to promote the movement.

Work on the Presbyterian Church is nearly completed, and it is expected the auditorium will be ready for use in about two weeks. When the work was begun the purpose was to build only a temporary structure, but as it progressed additional features were installed, with the result that when the building is finished it will be a very complete and modern church edifice, with a seating capacity of between 700 and 800.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Christian Church has elected the following officers. Mrs. F. B. Mackin, president; Mrs. I. H. Freeman, secretary, and Mrs. R. Jones, treasurer.

The South Pasadena W.C.T.U. has elected Mrs. M. E. Wood vice-president, with Mrs. E. L. Eldridge of the Presbyterian Church, Mrs. J. H. Freeman of the Christian Church, and Mrs. I. Hoagland of the Baptist Church as assistant vice-presidents. No president was chosen.

LET HALL CONTRACT.

Redondo City Trustees Accept the Bid of a Los Angeles Man for Municipal Building.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

REDONDO, Oct. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The contract for the new City Hall was let by the City Trustees tonight. The successful bidder is J. F. Adkinson of Los Angeles and the price is $35,787. The location is at Emerald and Benita streets. The hall will be erected out of the proceeds of the $30,000 bond issue recently authorized.

MISS NIGHT LUNCHES.

The nights in this city now are dark and dreary for the nocturnal fisherman. There are no lunch counters for the cup that cheers but not inebriates, and no luscious sandwiches. All this is on account of the action of the City Trustees, who have decreed that all buildings in the fire limits must be maintained in compliance with the city ordinances. In consequence of this edict, one of the proprietors of a lunch stand was arrested, because he refused to pay his fine, and was sent to jail. He will sue the city. The tension is somewhat relieved by the Trustees granting a wagon license, the wagon to be hauled away at daybreak. As no vehicle of this character has as yet appeared upon the scene, it will be fisherman's luck for the late arrivals.

CURVED BEACH RIPPLES.

Grattan D. Phillips, a business man of San Francisco, was in Redondo today looking over the situation with a view to the erection of a handsome business block. Negotiations to that end have been started.

SHELVE HARBOR PROJECT.

Scheme for It at Venice Is Laid Aside, at Least for the Present.

VENICE, Oct. 17.—It being admitted that the project of building a great harbor at Venice must be abandoned, at least until there is an easement in the money markets of the East, efforts will be concentrated in the direction of securing the establishment here of a great naval base. The Chamber of Commerce has authorized its secretary to communicate with the War Department and set forth the urgent need of a military harbor for the southwest coast. The government has already given its approval to the harbor project, and in the communication to the Secretary of War the location and advantages of Venice are set out point by point. This port is cited as being the most central location in the south as a military and naval base for the defense of the coast. A military harbor at Venice is urged as a safeguard and complement to Los Angeles and the cities and landings on the coast.

CANAL CITY RIPPLES.

The roads in the canal section are being improved by the application of a generous coat of decomposed granite. When thoroughly moistened and rolled this makes an enduring highway. It is said to be an ideal road for automobiles, as there is no slipping or skidding as on wet asphaltum.

The Venice life saving crew has under consideration the matter of affiliation with the United States Life Saving Service. Overtures for the consolidation have been made, and the members of the organization seem to favor the movement.

THE startling theory that the earth is expanding, held by a prominent government scientist, will be explained in The Times Magazine the coming Sunday.

TRIPLE RESONANCE.

THREE BANDS MAKE AIR RING.

MUSIC PLENTIFUL ANNOUNCED FOR LONG BEACH.

Two American Organizations and One Italian Assure Abundance of Sound of Vibrant Brass and Beaten Sheepskin—Wheelman Gets Bad Fall by Machine Collapsing.

LONG BEACH, Oct. 17.—Literally speaking, there is music in the air in Long Beach these days. Three bands will play daily concerts in three different places commencing Tuesday of next week, and there will be dances every evening of the week.

This comes as a result of the growing antagonism toward the Italian Band, of which Marco Vessella is director and which is under contract to furnish municipal music in the Auditorium. The City Trustees have granted the Long Beach Military Band, an American organization, recently organized, the right to use the sun parlor under practically the same agreement as exists with the Italian aggregation for the use of the larger building.

Coincident with the granting of the latter permit, comes the announcement that the Majestic Skating Rink will be closed afternoons hereafter and that the Majestic Band, under the leadership of E. E. Miller, will play daily afternoon concerts in the bandstand on the beach, between the hours of 2 and 4:30 o'clock. Also in the evening from 7:30 to 8:30 o'clock.

The latter band is in the employ of the bath-house company, while the others will be supported by means of subscriptions and the money taken in at dances, also an occasional benefit concert.

WHEELMAN'S BAD FALL.

J. M. Nelson, manager of a local hardware company, and local registration clerk, narrowly escaped serious injury in a fall from a bicycle this morning. He was pedaling along First street at a rapid rate, when the front forks and wheel of the machine he was riding collapsed under him, and he pitched forward over the wreck, landing on his left shoulder. The shoulder was dislocated and his back badly sprained by the fall.

NAMES COMMITTEE.

Chairman Samuel L. Lent of the Independent party this morning announcer the following committee of thirty-five, five from each ward, who will have charge of the campaign of the Independent party during the coming municipal contest: First Ward—Col. J. I. Hill, D. M. Stigner, E. W. Smith, A. M. Bates, G. M. Roe; Second Ward—E. W. Oliver, Andrew Dougan, Charles Reush, S. P. Saxton, J. H. Tandy; Third Ward—George Neece, G. S. Benson, J. C. Charles, J. A. Kirkpatrick, A. M. Dunn; Fourth Ward—C. C. Doran, William Chamberlain, O. G. Carpenter, E. S. Brown, J. R. Williams; Fifth Ward—W. B. McCracken, F. L. Rector, Joel Proctor, E. S. Bruce, J. W. Russell; Sixth Ward, J. H. Samples, Henry Lane, Stewart Laughlin, L. A. Miller, Martin Real; Seventh Ward—W. A. Tucker, M. B. Murphy, C. T. Covel, A. W. McDonnell, F. P. Baldwin.

HIGHWAY PROTEST.

A protest has been filed with the Trustees against accepting the report of the commission appointed to estimate the cost of opening American avenue to the sea. The hearing on the protest has been set down for Thursday evening, October 24. The signers of the protest are W. L. Porterfield, L. E. Grigsby and J. F. Heartwell. They cite nine general reasons for protesting, the chief of these being that the amount allowed is not sufficient. They are large owners of the property that would be condemned in order to open the street.

SEASHORE POINTS.

Amilo Mandrazo, a Mexican laborer employed by the Salt Lake, was seriously injured by a fellow-laborer yesterday. The affair was an accident, but it cost the fellow the use of his right hand. It happened, however, that the day was pay day with the cholos and a subscription was circulated, nearly $50 being raised by his fellows for the sufferers.

The Trustees have granted the Craig Shipbuilding Company permission to connect with the Salt Lake Railroad by a spur track. Work on the shipbuilding plant is being rushed to completion.

At 9 o'clock this morning the rain gauge showed the total for the storm to have been .61 inch. This brings the total for the season in Long Beach to .83 inch.

C. A. Counts was last evening unanimously elected commander of the local camp of Spanish War Veterans to succeed H. A. Pediar.

The Trustees refuse to issue to J. L. Hover, proprietor of the Standard Drug Company, at No. 136 Pine avenue, a druggist's permit to sell liquor, alleging that Jacob Lustig, a former proprietor of the store, whose license was revoked for the illegal sale of liquor, is still in the establishment. It is the belief that Lustig merely employs Hover to manage the business for him and is the actual owner.

Street Superintendent Taylor will not accept the Marine Way sewer until it is connected with the main outfall sewer and is in operation. Contractor Plantico, who built it, refuses to make the connection, that is to install the necessary motors for the operation of the pump, claiming it is not a provision of the contract. The result is that the Trustees have granted thirty days' extension on the contract, in which it is hoped an agreement will be arranged.

ASKS PIER PERMIT.

Santa Monica City Council Makes Application to the War Department.

SANTA MONICA, Oct. 17.—The City Council has made formal application to the War Department for permission to construct a 1600-foot pier at the foot of Colorado avenue. The purpose of this pier is to carry the outfall pipe for the city's sewer system, but the present plans are to utilize the pier structure for recreation purposes. The property owners have already voted the bonds, and the plans for the pier are now being drawn. As soon as the bonds are sold bids for building the pier will be solicited.

Simultaneously with the construction of the pier, Adloff & Hauerwaas contemplate the erection of a three-story brick building on the site of the pavilion, which was destroyed by fire last week. This building may embrace amusement features, including an auditorium or dancing pavilion, but the plans for it have not as yet been definitely settled.

AFTER GLASS THROWERS.

A new ordinance just adopted by the City Council seeks to prevent the throwing of broken glass on the streets. The principal object of the measure is to prevent injury to the feet of horses and pedestrians and the mutilation of carriage, automobile and bicycle tires. A reward of $25 is offered for evidence that results in conviction.

SUSPECT HIM.

There is a deep suspicion that Thomas Munger, who is spending ten days in the County Jail on a charge of vagrancy, knows more about the Wilcox-Young-Dobbs burglary trust than he has yet told. He was arrested in the first place as a suspect, but, as no evidence could be found on which to convict him, he was "vagged," with the hope that in the ten days of his confinement something tangible might develop. When Munger was arrested he had in his possession a letter that had been written to him by Maude Dobbs, who was then at Denver. In this billet doux she referred to the "good times we had on the beach, even if we were all thieves."

SEASHORE NOTES.

Mrs. Rose H. Hughes, who died here today, after a long illness, had been unconscious through the last week of her illness. She came to this beach less than a year ago, suffering from an incurable malady. A daughter was hastening to the bedside from the East, but failed to reach here while the mother was still alive.

Mrs. B. O. Bruce is recovering from an illness that has kept her bedfast for several days. Her ailment is thought to have been ptomaine poisoning.

Sunday's baseball game, to be played on the Southern Pacific diamond, will be between the Santa Monicas and the Booth-Neighbours nine of Los Angeles.

LIFT LUMBER.

Monrovia Dealers in Woodstuffs Find That Cholos Build at Their Expense.

MONROVIA, Oct. 17.—A diminution of stock not accounted for in the sales books caused local lumber dealers to maintain a night watch at their yards during the past week, with the result that a hitherto unknown building and loan association has been discovered. Membership is limited to Mexicans living in the little cholo settlement south of the Southern Pacific tracks. They conducted the building end of the business and the lumber companies the loan department, only the latter were unwitting partners. The Mexicans had managed to obtain enough lumber to build several one and two-room shacks, and were evidently planning to extend their operations. As the arrest of the men would deprive their families of support, and would not serve to reimburse the lumber companies, it was mutually agreed to call the material "contracted for on the installment plan," the men giving an order in favor of the dealers for a portion of their weekly wage.

MONROVIA NOTES.

Dr. S. M. Slocum, who has recently returned from the Panamint district, where for the past month he has been supervising work on his King Midas gold mine, and completing assessment work on several claims, reports a remarkable find of copper. Near the Desert Chief mine, formerly known as the Edna, he uncovered a twenty-five-foot ledge of very rich copper-bearing ore, samples of which assayed in Los Angeles indicate that the ledge is fully as rich as the now famous Geeenwater lode.

The rainfall for the storm is 1.15 inches. The precipitation last night was .40 of an inch. Already along the foothills, where the soil is warmest, the young grass is showing, and here and there in the barley fields are patches of new growth.

Homer Fort has let the contract for a bungalow to be erected on West Palm avenue. This is the third which Mr. Fort has built in that vicinity.

Capt. and Mrs. Stovall have gone to Elsinore for a two weeks' stay in expectation of some good quail shooting.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Trailor are recent arrivals from Modesto, and have rented a house on West Fallingleaf avenue.

OCEAN PARK OPTIMIST.

OCEAN PARK, Oct. 17.—When asked today for a summary of the real estate situation along the beach, Mrs. George Sibley spoke hopefully of the future. She has been a resident here for eight years, coming to Ocean Park when there was really no town. Then there were unoccupied and unleveled sand dunes. There were neither electric lights nor sewers.

"The growth during the past six years has been simply phenomenal," she said. "The sale of property started at $17 per front foot on the side streets, and now it is $100. The ocean front lots were started at $35 per front foot and now they range all the way from $250 to $500, some frontage having brought the latter figure. In my opinion this same ocean front property will bring $1000 per front foot in less than five years. This will come about during the building of fine hotels and apartment-houses. The people who come to the beach want to get on the ocean front, and that property is already too valuable to be occupied by cottages and residences.

"There is no other beach so near to Los Angeles, and the residents of Los Angeles will continue to make this their favorite resort. The beach and the city will be one in a few years. They are rapidly approaching each other now and it will not be long until there will be fine homes all along the railroad and boulevard that is to connect the two. I firmly believe that right now is the time to buy property along this bay."

SAWTELLE.

SAWTELLE, Oct. 17.—The new passenger and freight agent for the Los Angeles-Pacific electric line at this point is Charles E. Tyler, who recently came from Bakersfield. He succeeds J. J. Gannon, who resigned.

PRIVATE PAVING.

City Trustees Authorize Pomona Residents to Do Their Own Street Work at a Saving of $4000.

POMONA, Oct. 17.—The City Trustees have granted property owners on Third and Thomas streets permission to do the paving on those streets by private contract, as it has been ascertained that the work can thus be done $4000 cheaper than under competitive bids to the city. An attempt was recently made by Los Angeles contractors to hold up the city on a bid for the work. L. Fleming of this city will do the work.

Property owners on Ninth, Tenth and Eleventh streets, between White and Park avenues, have petitioned the City Trustees for street lights.

Mrs. W. L. Wright entertained the travelers' section of the Ebell Club at her home on East Holt avenue this afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. C. G. George have been spending two days in Los Angeles.

The rainfall last night amounted to 1.33 inches, making a total of 2.01 inches for the season.

Mrs. M. E. Swanton has returned from a two weeks' visit with realtives at Berkeley.

CLAREMONT.

CLAREMONT, Oct. 17.—Preparations are now on for the intercollegiate debate with Occidental, December 18, in Holmes Hall Chapel, Claremont. The question will be, "Should an Income Tax be Levied by the Federal Government?" The choice of sides has not been decided yet. A preliminary try-out will be held October 21, in which the list of aspirants will be narrowed to the six best. Later, the number will be cut to three, and these three will represent the college.

Dr. John Willis Baer, president of Occidental College, will address a joint rally of student Christian associations Tuesday evening.

Prof. Fred P. Bacon, head of the school of music, will, accompanied by his wife, conduct a party of young people to the grand opera in Los Angeles, Saturday evening.

PLAYA DEL REY.

PLAYA DEL REY, Oct. 17.—Ladies of the G.A.R. and Civil War veterans to the number of over 200, enjoyed an outing on this beach yesterday, coming over from Sawtelle. The picnic was held under the auspices of Appomattox Circle, of which Mrs. Hattie Hill is president, and Mrs. M. Hill is senior vice-president. Luncheon was enjoyed on the beach, and in the afternoon the dancing pavilion was the scene of a merry gathering, the light fantastic toe being indulged to the good old tunes of former days.

BURBANK.

BURBANK, Oct. 17.—Rev. D. M. McCunn, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, and family, will leave about the first of November for Boyle Heights, to assume charge of a congregation. Rev. McCunn has been pastor of the church here for ten years, and leaves a large circle of friends.

Mrs. Craig, mother of William Craig, died at the home of her son Tuesday, after a short illness. She was born sixty-eight years ago in Canada. The remains were sent to her old home in Canada.

PALMS.

PALMS, Oct. 17.—The funeral of William Rose, who died at Corona Tuesday, will be conducted here tomorrow afternoon, with services at the United Brethren Church. He was 73 years of age and formerly resided here. He was also a resident of Santa Monica for some time, having had charge of the street sprinkling of that city. He leaves two sons and two daughters, living at this place.

SWIFT ADDERS.

Bank Clerks Do Fast Work in Long Contest, and One Breaks the World's Record.

Kenneth MacKenzie of the Central National Bank won the first prize of the first class in the bank clerks' adding-machine contest last evening, adding 100 checks. This contest had been running for six months. Three beautiful silver cups were awarded to the winners. MacKenzie's closest competitor was P. W. Lacy of the Commercial National Bank. MacKenzie won with a total of 651 points and no errors, while Lacy had 650 points and two errors for the six months. The winner's average time per hundred checks was 2 min. 8 sec., while Lacy's was 1 min. 59 sec, a great testimony to accuracy, as the latter would have won had his record been free from errors.

F. P. Rivas of the Farmers' and Merchants' National Bank was the leader in the second class, with a total of 640 for the six months. His nearest competitor was W. D. Andrews, 631. In the third class A. G. Maurer of the National Bank of California was the winner, with a score of 430, and F. W. Johnson was second with 404.

Later in the evening P. W. Lacy broke the world's record for adding 250 checks, by getting a total in three minutes and eight seconds, exceeding the best speed previously by forty-two seconds.

The meeting opened last night with the presentation of George P. Towle, who was the director and manager of the Bank Clerks' Minstrel Show, given recently at the Auditorium, of a beautiful gold watch and fob as a mark of appreciation of the work done.

A partial report on the net receipts of the show was rendered. Roy Civille, secretary of the association, stated that about $180 had been netted.

CRUELTY CHARGE AGAINST SIRE.

SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT IN TROUBLE.

Wife Charges He Did Not Support Her Properly and That Pulmonary Disease Has Resulted—Also Charges Neglect of Daughter—Fire Nearly Destroys Creamery.

ANA, Oct. 17.—Declaring F. Greeley, superintendent of Whittier State school, continually to give his son clothing enough protect him from a cold, and because that on account of this neglect had contracted a pulmonary Mrs. Alice E. Greeley, the divorce of the reform school superintendent, has had a citation issued by Judge West, ordering Greeley appear in the Superior Court here October 25 to show cause why the should not give the custody of minor children to the mother, he should not thereafter pay support for their support.

June 15, 1904, Mrs. Greeley obtained a divorce from Greeley, who, for years was superintendent of schools in this county, on the ground of extreme cruelty. The court awarded the custody of the two children, Hazel Ethel, aged 12, and Henry Ross, aged 8, to the father.

The petition filed today in the Superior Court here by Attorney Homer G. Ross for Mrs. Greeley alleges that the husband is now 14, has been kept with other boys in Whittier, that the father has given him no time to rear the child as he should, that he has scolded him without cause, and in the presence of others has accused him of stealing articles from the school. The petition alleges that the father refused to provide the boy with sufficient underwear, and that he contracted a cold, which settled upon his lungs, and that the boy suffers from a pulmonary disease. Greeley is accused of opening, reading and keeping letters written by the boy to her son, and by the son to his mother.

Mrs. Greeley alleges that the father has given proper attention to his son. The petition states that the boy is the girl's own child, and that the girl has been in a Los Angeles convent part of the time. For a time she lived with her mother here, after which the father gave Mrs. Greeley $30 a month for the girl's care. Recently the father has received $25 a month from Mrs. Greeley.

Mrs. Greeley has been signed by both the mother and daughter, asking the court to allow Mrs. Greeley their guardian [illegible].

DAILY WHIR IN CABIN.

Rattlers Provide Regular Thrill for Settler in the Palo Verde Valley.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN BERNARDINO, Oct. 17. Way out in the lonely Palo Verde Valley, along the Colorado River, R. W. Masters is having a fight for supremacy with rattlesnakes. Masters is in charge of the M. L. Parcles ranch. He lives in a cabin, and about him are thrifty melon vines. He has heard the angry whir of these deadly snakes among the vines on all sides, and time and again he has blown the heads from this enemy, but it seemed that the more he killed the more were their numbers increased. Now they are swarming into his cabin. He writes that he has just killed two immense reptiles in the dwelling, and he daily sees their heads protruding viciously from between the logs.

of English walnuts of the value of $1000, has been outdone by a Ventura walnut man. H. F. Clark of this county a few days ago delivered at the Saticoy warehouse a load of walnuts which brought him $1306. It was not a particularly good walnut day, as walnut days go in Ventura county, either.

VENTURA NOTES.

Ex-Senator Bard and family will soon make Santa Barbara one of the family homes, retaining the original or Hueneme home as the Bard country place. Mr. Bard is largely interested in the Potter Hotel property, and has other holdings in Santa Barbara, which town has always had a warm spot in his heart. He will shortly leave for the East to accompany one his sisters to her home in Chambersburg, Pa.

John Rils, son of Jacob Rils, has recently been transferred from Utah, where he was a government ranger, to the Santa Barbara reservation in this county. He has been placed near Saugus Station. The change was made by order of the President, in order that young Rils might be near the home of his sister, Mrs. Dr. Fiske of Santa Barbara.

The people of Nordhoff are moving to have a high school established in that valley, to embrace Nordhoff, Matilija, San Antonio and Ojai.

Rev. Dan Trundle of the Christian Church, this city, has accepted a call to the church at Rialto.

GOOD PROSPECTS.

FINE SERVICE FOR BAY CITY.

FOUR LARGE STEAMERS TO GO INTO COMMISSION.

Electric Railway to Increase Capital Stock—Escondido Agitating for a Separate County—Accident Delays Departure of Steamer—Board of Health Purchases Hospital.

SAN DIEGO, Oct. 17.—C. D. Dunnan, general passenger agent of the Pacific Coast Steamship Company, is authority for the statement that within thirty days the large steamers Umatilla and Senator will be put in operation between Seattle and San Diego. It is also proposed to build at once two fine turbine steamers to cost $1,200,000 each, which will be placed on the run between San Francisco and San Diego. The new steamers will carry only passengers and express matter.

The San Diego Electric Railway Company, which operates most of the trolley lines here, is considering the proposition of increasing the amount of its capital stock from $500,000 to $5,000,000, the present amount of capital stock being inadequate for the vast amount of improvement and extension work which has been done in the past few months and which will be continued in the future.

In mass meeting of the people of Escondido it was decided to draw up for circulation a second petition for the formation of a county, taking in Escondido and the northern portion of San Diego county.

The ground is being cleared for the erection of the plant of the Globe Milling Company and construction work will be commenced shortly.

Under the new ordinances providing for licenses for billiard halls, shooting galleries, etc., the city will receive a revenue of $1000 per year.

Members of the City Council were the guests this afternoon of the Point Loma Electric Railway Company on a trip of inspection of the railroad to Point Loma, in process of construction.

Roy Claude Fitch has been held for the Superior Court on the charge of stealing a horse from Robert Flynn, near Barrett dam.

A branch of the National Eugenic Society has been formed, with Mrs. A. L. Washburn as temporary president; Prof. S. T. Black as temporary vice-president, and Herman Fascher as temporary secretary and treasurer.

The Encinitas copper mines are to be taken over by E. J. Colegnan, who was formerly connected with mining properties at Bingham, Utah. The mill at Encinitas will be enlarged and active work will commence on development.

The City Board of Health has closed the deal for the purchase of an isolation hospital, the place decided upon after several months of work being the Jones estate, north of Old Town, consisting of a two-story, eight-room house, and five acres of land.

HEMET.

HEMET, Oct. 17.—P. N. Myers has resigned his position as general manager of the Hemet Land and Water companies, and will engage in the practice of law. J. W. C. Crump, formerly accountant for the Hemet Water Company, has been elected to take Mr. Myer's place.

B. H. Leonard has returned to Hemet, after an absence of several months in the East.

FRIGHTFUL.

SCORE SAW HIM DROWN.

COMPANIONS COULD EXTEND NO HELPING HAND.

Body of Machinist Who Went Down in Waters of Reservoir in San Bernardino Mountains Is Taken to San Bernardino to Await Coroner—Alleged Robber on Trial.

SAN BERNARDINO, Oct. 17.—The remains of Machinist L. V. Remion, who lost his life while duck hunting in Little Bear Valley Lake, were brought to town at a late hour last night, and are being held awaiting the return from Needles of Coroner Van Wie.

Remion lost his life within full view of twenty or thirty men, none of whom could render him any assistance. Frank Taylor, one of the witnesses to the tragedy, was in a boat thirty feet distant, but before he could reach his fellow workman, the latter had sunk from view in sixteen feet of water.

Remion had been with the contracting firm of Bright & Drew for three years. He had sustained a broken back, and was at the County Hospital when he first thought of taking a position with the contractors, and though employed originally as a chore man, won a responsible position by faithful effort, being practically the storekeeper for the repair department. He came to this section from Savannah, Georgia, where his mother resides. It is possible that the body will be sent to the South for interment.

LEGAL MATTERS.

Arthur Comeford is on trial before the Superior Court charged with having waylaid and robbed a man named Doyle. The affair occurred last May, when Doyle came in from Beaumont, and proceeded to make the rounds of the saloons. He fell in with Comeford, and while in an isolated section of the town claims that Comeford beat him insensible with a sandbag and robbed him.

Articles of incorporation were filed here this morning by the Oliver Gold Mining Company of Los Angeles. The authorized capital is placed at $500,000, of which amount the sum of $5 has been actually subscribed in equal amounts by W. L. Clark, W. H. Ross, G. W. Bonhoff, W. L. Bowers and C. B. Sherman.

T. H. Tully, Percy O'Rourke and C. D. Atlee have commenced action in the Superior Court against N. Vader, Ernest Quinnan and C. G. Lewis, claiming they have jumped the Michigan Girl and "O.W.Z." mining claims in the Silver Mountain mining district, owned by the plaintiffs. The latter ask judgment in the sum of $1000 damages for being robbed of possession, $300 for ore taken by defendants from the property, and for a permanent injunction restraining the defendants from trespassing on the claims.

HELD IN ABEYANCE.

Board of Trade of Santa Paula Informed There Will Be no Prosecutions for Sulphuring Fruit.

SANTA PAULA, Oct. 17.—The local Board of Trade is in receipt of a letter from Secretary Wilson of the Department of Agriculture, in which local growers are assured that the question of sulphuring fruits is receiving the active attention of that department, and that experts are already at work making a careful study of the matter, both from the grower's standpoint and from that of the law. The secretary declares that growers will not be proceeded against this season because of their use of sulphur in drying fruits, and upon the report of the experts will depend how far the growers must yield or to what extent the law must be amended. The communication is in answer to a protest sent by the local Board of Trade some time ago.

The Limoneira Company has just purchased a tract of two hundred acres of bare land from the Santa Paula Horse and Cattle Company; consideration withheld. The land, which is known as the "race-track" property, will be devoted to the raising of stock feed to supply the immense holdings of the Limoneira Company.

Walnut harvest is in full swing in the valley. To this date, thirty-six cars have been shipped of twenty tons each. Careful estimates place the total shipments from Santa Paula and Saticoy at close to one hundred cars. The nuts are of fine quality and size, the meats being especially full, clear and sound. The Limoneira Company's olive land and main orchards alone will ship about twenty-five cars of the above total. Lima beans are being rapidly sacked, and the recent rain has done but slight damage. The crop is only fair, the yield of the Saticoy, Santa Paula and Filmore districts being about 75,000 bags.

HITS THE PIPE.

Train of Freight Is Part of It Ditched Between Perris and Highgrove.

PERRIS, Oct. 17.—A rather bad mixup occurred yesterday afternoon on the Box Springs grade, between this place and Highgrove, when freight train No. 64, bound for San Bernardino, ditched seven cars, five of them going over a high embankment. Of the five cars that were turned over three were loaded with terra-cotta pipes, one with clay, and one with hay. The wreck was caused by a broken flange on a car near the middle of the train, and, fortunately, the speed of the train was only about fifteen miles an hour, or the damage might have been more serious. Traffic was delayed several hours, and passengers and baggage were transferred around the wreck.

The rain of the past few days has been devoid of any very hard storms here, but there has been sufficient downpour to put the ground in excellent condition for fall plowing, which has already started. Some hay which still remained in the field was damaged, but by far the larger part of the crop has either been shipped or stored.

Miss Florence Billings, assistant teacher in the High School, received word Monday of the serious illness of her mother, in San Diego, and left at once for that place.

ONTARIO CLOUDBURST.

Three-fourths of an Inch of Rain Falls There Within Fifteen Minutes.

ONTARIO, Oct. 17.—There was a cloudburst here last night a few minutes after it began raining, about 9:30 o'clock. It was accompanied by a terrific thunderstorm.

The precipitation from the cloudburst in fifteen minutes amounted to .75 inch. The fall for the storm was .90 inch. The total for the season here is 1.78 inches. No damage was done here except in cutting fissures in Euclid avenue.

Help For Nervous Women.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Cured This Woman, and She and Her Husband Both Recommend Them to Others.

When the nervous system is broken down from overwork, or whatever cause, life loses its joys. Not only is the nervous victim a sufferer himself but he is usually a trial to the whole family. Nervous breakdown is often gradual, appearing at first to be merely an unusual fretfulness. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills tone up the nerves in the most direct way, and not only cure minor troubles but serious disorders as well.

Mrs. L. C. Jenks, who lives about three miles from Sheridan, Mich., and whose address is Box 13, R. F. D. No. 4, Sheridan, is enthusiastic in praise of this remedy. She says:

"I was cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills of nervous trouble brought on by overwork and worry. For several years I had been sick and was completely discouraged. I had severe headaches and such a pressure on the brain that I couldn't sleep, and I thought it would make me insane. My appetite failed and my food did not digest properly. I had a very bad cough at one time and would often have to go to bed for three or four days.

"I doctored with several physicians and although they helped me at times, I grew gradually worse. I read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and began to get better after I had taken them only a short time. I took several boxes of the pills and never felt so well in my life as I do now. My husband is also a great believer in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as he finds that they give prompt relief in bilious attacks. We recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to all who suffer."

Dr. Willims' Pink Pills cure general and nervous debility because they make new blood. They strike at the root of these and other diseases, such as rheumatism, anaemia, indigestion and nervous troubles, such as neuralgia, nervousness and spinal weakness.

A helpful booklet, "Nervous Disorders," will be sent free on request.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50c per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

EXPULSION.

READS TWO OFFICERS OUT.

CITY CENTRAL COMMITTEE ACTS IN SAN BERNARDINO.

Chairman and Secretary of Republican Body Are Declared to Have Hastily Retired from Last Previous Meeting Without Giving an Extended Reason Therefor.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN BERNARDINO, Oct. 17.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] "Whereas, Chairman F. B. Daley, and Secretary Warren Weaver hastily retired from the last meeting of this committee without giving any extended reason therefor; resolved, that the said Daley and Weaver be and they are respectively notified that the olive branch of peace always hangs on the outer door of this chamber and; further, be it resolved, that until they return C. N. Damron and T. J. Peters act as chairman and secretary of this committee respectively."

The foregoing resolution was unanimously adopted at a special meeting of the Republican City Central Committee this evening, called for the purpose of reading Daley and Weaver from the committee, owing to their determined opposition to Mayor Hanford's appointment of E. A. Rasor as City Engineer.

Previous to the passage of the foregoing, a first resolution was adopted indorsing the Mayor's stand for Rasor. Neither Daley, Weaver nor any one friendly to them was present. The resolution is interpreted here as victory for the Daley faction, in that the Hanford workers showed their fear to take measures. Tonight Daley, commenting on the meeting, declared the whole affair a farce and without legal weight.

COLTON.

COLTON, Oct. 17.—Miss Bessie Brown and August Ambuehl were married this morning at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Brown, of West I street. Rev. J. H. Sampson of Riverside performed the ceremony.

HERINGTON

Will Hereafter Be An Exclusive Clothier.

His Explanation to a Representative of This Paper Is That a Man Cannot Do Two Things at Once and Do Them Well.

Herington's reputation for handling the best-made clothing in the city at the price has increased his clothing business to such a great extent that he is compelled to discontinue selling men's furnishings and devote his entire floor space to the exclusive selling of men's clothing. Direct supervision in the manufacture of his famous lines of clothing has made him one of the most prominent clothiers on the Pacific coast. Thus the cause of the enlargement of his clothing department.

In order to close out his stock of furnishings and hats at once he will, commencing today, October 18, place the entire stock on sale at cost.

The stock consists of all the best grades of furnishings, such as Cluett, Monarch, Silver, Unique, and many other fine grades of shirts. Cooper, Wright's and Glastenbury underwear; Arrow and Barker brand collars; the famous Kingsbury brand of hats; also hundreds of other accessories to complete a man's wardrobe.

Today, October 18, will be a busy day at

THE MAN With Disease

DR. TAYLOR
The Leading Specialist.

Should learn—and the sooner the better—that what may seem a trivial disease very often has more serious and far-reaching effects. The man who tries to be his own doctor is always the patient that later comes to the specialist with the chronic, stubborn, deep-seated case, which is the hardest kind to cure. I cannot hope that all men will accept my statement that the quickest, the safest and the cheapest cure is had by consulting an expert specialist in Men's Diseases at once, but the intelligent man will readily be convinced of the value of this advice upon investigation.

I Cure Diseases

Especially affections of the BLADDER and PROSTATE. I have my offices fitted with all the necessary equipment and appliances of the most modern design. Acute cases cured in a few days. I recognize all complications immediately, and my patients are cured absolutely, and to stay cured.

I ALSO CURE VARICOCELE AND HYDROCELE. To prove my confidence in my ability, I make this fair proposition:

Pay When You Are Cured

Yesterday's Forecast and Report.

U. S. WEATHER BUREAU, Los Angeles, Oct. 17.—[Reported by A. H. Wollaber, Local Forecaster.] At 5 o'clock a.m. the barometer registered 29.99; at 5 p.m., 29.97. Thermometer for the corresponding hours showed 62 deg. and 69 deg. Relative humidity, 5 a.m., 86 per cent.; 5 p.m., 32 per cent. Wind, 5 a.m., southwest, velocity 1 mile; 5 p.m., west, velocity 6 miles. Maximum temperature, 74 deg.; minimum, 60 deg. Rainfall past twenty-four hours, .38 of an inch; rainfall for season, .72 of an inch. Barometer reduced to sea level.

Weather Conditions.—The weather conditions over the Southwest are becoming more settled, and the indications this morning point to clearing weather in Los Angeles and vicinity. Good rains fell in Southern California during the last twenty-four hours, also in Arizona and Southern Utah. Some precipitation is reported in Texas, while elsewhere in the United States fair weather has prevailed. A marked storm area is central over the upper lake region, while a high-pressure area is moving southeastward over the Middle West. The pressure continues high over the Atlantic seaboard.

Forecasts.—Local forecast for Los Angeles and vicinity: Clearing this afternoon or tonight; Friday, generally fair; winds becoming westerly.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 17.—A shallow depression extends northward through the great valley of California, from Mexico to Oregon, while an area of high pressure overlies the Northern Rocky Mountain region. This has caused generally cloudy weather in Southern California, Arizona, Southern Nevada and Utah, with light showers and thunderstorms. Fair weather prevails over the northern portion of the Pacific Slope, and fog along the Central California coast. Indications are favorable for fair weather in Northern California Friday, and cloudy weather with scattered showers in Southern California. Forecast:

Sacramento Valley: Fair Friday; light south wind.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKET.

There was practically no change in the market Thursday from the day previous. The only advances made were in eggs and sugar. The demand was more brisk than on the day previous for fruits and vegetables and there was not very much stock left by noon for a day's holdover. On the Produce Exchange the bidding was very light and dealers were unable to get together on a few cents difference in two or three instances. The general trend of all things was firm.

Eggs—Day's receipts, 45 cases. The demand for them was large on the outside and with the few arrivals prices were boosted a cent. This brings the selling price as high as 42 cents for ranch candled eggs in many instances. A few dealers are making a concession of a cent on their fresh ranch candled stock. Case-count also jumped as high as 39 cents. There were several cars of eastern offered at considerably lower figures. One was from Minnesota, and the other from Iowa. The former were considerably higher than the latter because there was a month's difference in the time of packing.

Butter—Receipts, 10,005 pounds. There was a very fair demand for this, but only 1 cases of creamery firsts were sold at half a cent lower than the quoted prices. This was done merely as a concession and there was no more offered at that sum. Quite a lot of ladeled butter, both in the bulk and in cubes, was offered, but found no buyers. Considerable butter is moving from storage on account of the decreasing arrivals from the East.

Cheese—Receipts, 2280 pounds. There was a slight easing off on the advanced prices and the offerings along all lines were very fair. Cheddars, longhorns and twins were full on, but remained unsold. Domestic Swiss and limburger were offered without any result.

Potatoes—Receipts, 132 sacks. This was a large falling off from the day previous and helped considerably in steadying a weak market. Salinas were offered in any quantities up to a carload, but were not taken. Anaheim and Burbanks were called for, but none were put up at the bid prices.

Onions—Receipts, 15 sacks. They were strong in the bidding and twenty sacks of Australian Browns were sold at the current quotations. Yellow Danvers were very much in demand, but the bid prices were not sufficiently alluring to be taken up. Some offerings were way up in the air, indicating the prevailing condition of the onion market.

Beans—Receipts, 2 sacks. Old stock of pinks was boosted 25 cents, owing to their scarcity and the prevailing large demand. They are now bringing from $1.75 to 4.00 a sack, while the bulk of the stock is being held from 4.00 up. Limas are selling at 5.75 to 6.00 a sack, which is much higher than they were at this time last year.

Sweet potatoes—Receipts, 62 sacks. The influx of northern sweets has broken the very firm stand of the market and prices just at present are very uncertain. As an example, one dealer offers fancy yellow sweets at 1.60, while another man handling exactly the same grade is asking 15 cents more.

Vegetables were sufficient to supply all demands. Sweet corn is still arriving in fair quantities, but the demand has fallen so low that many dealers will not carry any of this commodity. The price of the best grade is only 60 cents a box. A large shipment of celery from the Santa Ana district arrived Thursday morning and was distributed among the stalls and the general produce handlers. It was of excellent color, far more yellow than any that has as yet arrived, and having a splendid top. The offer potatoes were all firm and pretty well cleaned up by noon.

The fruit situation remains almost the same. Pineapples were well represented, a shipment having arrived from Hilo that. They are selling up to 12½ cents a pound, an increase over a week ago of 2 cents. Bananas remain very firm at 3 cents and the demand is increasing. There were very many persimmons for sale and the price was lowered from 10 to 25 cents a box. Tokay grapes advanced from 10 cents to 25 cents a box, while all other grapes were very solid. Strawberries remained at their advanced prices, while blackberries were a cent lower. They were overstocked and several dealers were left with a good supply for holdovers. Casaba melons were also extremely plentiful and for the first time in many weeks the nuisance was a trifle glutted with cantaloupes. Apples are all very firm.

Sugar made another advance yesterday of 10 points. Producers say this rise is natural because the season demands a larger amount for general consumption. Last year the wholesale price went as high as 6.00 and then only did the demand fall off a trifle. The situation at present points to another rise in the near future.

ORANGES ABOUT GONE.

Only a Few Valencias Left—Lemons Quiet, but Early Activity and Higher Prices Probable.

The citrus fruit market is pretty well cleaned up, but few Valencia oranges are still held for the holidays, when the highest prices are obtainable. The quality of the fruit has been much better this year than last, and so far there have been no complaints of rot or decay.

The outlook for the ensuing year is very encouraging, and indications point to the largest harvest ever made in California. The Santa Fe Railroad Company, when asked to give the probable number of cars needed for the ensuing year, estimated at 31,000 cars for oranges alone. Up to date this year, 22,991 cars of oranges have been shipped. Besides this there were 2398 cars of lemons. The two together, therefore, would not reach the estimate given by the railroad.

The California Fruit Growers' Exchange, which has reports from many of the smaller exchanges throughout the State, made an estimate of 32,000 cars of oranges and lemons together, and this no doubt, will prove nearer correct. Up to date, the year 1907 has proven itself a winner in production. Last year at this time there were only 25,780 carloads of citrus fruits distributed.

The lemon market is at present very quiet, but is expected to pick up, since the Sicily shipments are rapidly decreasing. The total supply of foreign lemons on hand this year amounts to 42,000 boxes, against 13,000 a year ago, when the supply was very short. The best grade of Sicily is selling now in preference to the Sicilians at an average of $5.50 a box. The greatest demand is still to come, and 16 may be expected before the end of the month.

FIGS HAVE FINE YEAR.

Buyers Prefer California Product to Imported Varieties—Crop Is Heavier This Year.

Figs have had an excellent year. The crop was larger, the fruit better and the variety greater than at any time since fig culture has been introduced into the State. Drying has almost been completed, and those remaining on the trees will be sold for ripe fruit to the commission houses. Few have been placed in storage.

Unlike the raisin growers, the fig producers are not suffering from car shortages. The great amount of their fruit was shipped several weeks ago. In addition to this fact, the growers were able to dispose of all of it by contract long before it was cured.

There was a strange feature in the ripening of the fruit this year. The Adriatic fig is usually at least two weeks earlier than the Smyrna or Calimyrna in maturing. This year cool weather retarded the Adriatic fig, and instead of being the first ready for picking it turned out last, the Calimyrna, being hardier and able to withstand the coolness, was almost entirely packed ere the other was ripe. As the fig industry in California is still in its infancy, it is rather hard to make comparisons with former years. This year, according to a prominent dealer, there will be about 20 carloads of figs to be shipped from the southern portion of the State, against 27 last year. The holiday buyers and all the lovers of figs are finding that the California product reaches them in far better condition than the imported, and are buying them in preference.

GIRL ALLEGED VICTIM.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

SANTA BARBARA, Oct. 17.—What is pronounced a diabolical attempt to assault an eighteen-year-old Spanish girl, within a few feet of her home here last night, was the subject of an investigation by the grand jury here this morning. The girl is Lottie Borgo. One man is now in jail, while another is held in connection with the same case, on a charge of disturbing the peace.

Lottie Borgo is a pretty girl, large and well developed. She has a beautiful olive complexion and a pair of talkative black eyes and a shapely form. She lives with her mother in a little house in the rear of a livery stable on Anacapa street.

Early last evening, after dusk, accompanied by her little brother, she started toward the street. She had gone but a few steps when she was intercepted, she declares, by two men. One of them, Joe Elizalde, a brother of a merchant here. The other was Oscar Ruiz, and both work in or about the stable. Both are young men. Ruiz, it is claimed, separated the little boy from his sister and led him away, while Elizalde, the girl alleges, attacked her, dragging her to the ground and attempting to assault her.

In the struggle the girl's clothing was badly torn and she was scratched and bruised. But she is a strong young woman, and managed after a desperate battle to free herself from the clutches of the man, and rushing around the corner to police headquarters, sobbed out her story to Police Chief James Ross. She promised to make a complaint, which she subsequently did.

Capt. Wylie arrested Elizalde this morning. He refused to admit the charge of attempted criminal assault against him, and was locked up. Later he was held before Justice Price and, pleading not guilty, was held for examination in $1500 bonds. Ruiz, meantime, had been arrested on a charge of disturbing the peace in having assailed the girl's mother with vile epithets after the assault upon the girl. Efforts were made to have the Borgo girl withdraw her complaint, but to no purpose. There have been a number of these assaults in this city and vicinity lately, and the police are determined to make an example of somebody.

This morning, when the grand jury met, the case was brought to the notice of the body and the Borgo girl was called before the jury. She told the

GRAND JURY INDICTMENT MAY HAVE THAT EFFECT.

Action of Inquisitorial Body Against Disorderly Women of Phoenix—Normal School Not to Be Curtailed in Its Rights—Phoenix Bars Exhorters from Main Streets.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) Oct. 16.—The United State grand jury now in session here has returned an indictment which may have the effect of driving disorderly women from the city, and which will be in line with the moral crusade which has been waged here for the past year. Inasmuch as the keeping of a disorderly house is a crime both in the United States and Territorial laws, the unfortunate women may be chased from the municipality.

The jury failed to find the true bill against the Peoples' Ice and Fuel Company, which was one of the concerns indicted at the last term of court, for unlawful restriction of trade. The Phoenix Ice Company is to be tried this week.

DECISION BENEFITS NORMAL.

About twenty years ago the Territorial Legislature granted to the Territorial Normal School the use and benefit of a section of school land adjacent to the town of Tempe, it being understood at the time that the grant would be of value only when the Territory should become a State, and when the school lands should be disposed of. Later the Legislature passed an act giving the county the right of rental of school lands. The two acts clashed, but following a decision of Atty.-Gen. Clark, lately made, the Normal School has been confirmed in its possession of the land referred to, and will enjoy all rentals therefrom in the future.

MUST USE SIDE STREETS.

The city authorities have become tired of the continuous use of the main thoroughfare by the Salvation Army and evangelistic preachers. Hereafter no crowds will be allowed to collect on Washington street, and exhorters will be compelled to take to the side streets or to the woods. One individual, who has been preaching his own ideas of the gospel nightly, accompanied by his wife and three or four small children, refused to move on last night, and struck at an officer who instructed him concerning the decree of the City Council. As a result the preacher was taken to jail.

ARIZONA NOTES.

At Kelvin yesterday about $500 damage was caused by the destruction by fire of the school building just completed. It is believed that the fire was incendiary.

Yuma is to erect a new school building at a cost of $34,000, from plans submitted by F. S. Allen of Pasadena.

The nineteenth annual convention of the Arizona Womens' Christian Temperance Union will be held in Mesa October 17 and 18.

A building boom is promised to Phoenix by a new lumber dealer, who has cut the prices of the local lumber trust from $5 to $10 per 1000 feet.

Clayton Shipman and family are badly wanted by the police of Phoenix, for a wholesale line of frauds, involving horses and wagons bought for notes and traded off for cash. The Chipmans are understood to have left Phoenix, bound for Imperial, Cal.

For a few days there seemed to be a chance that all the efforts put into the formation of a Phoenix baseball team had gone for naught, for four players who had been engaged from Hutchinson, Kan., calmly left Manager Goldberg in the lurch, two of the men, Pettigrew and Wilson, announcing that they were going to Bisbee. Perhaps it is all for the best, as word has come that six or seven of the members of the western champions (Wichita, Kan.) team are ready to sign.

Gov. Kibbey will leave in a few days for Vicksburg, Miss., he having accepted an invitation from the President to join him at that point, and to travel with him on his return to Washington. There is much speculation locally concerning the particular business the President has with the Governor. By many it is assumed to be in connection with possible Statehood for the Territory.

Rev. Harold Govette of the Phoenix Methodist Church, South, will preach his last sermon today, and will leave during the week to resume his former charge at Abilene, Kan.

H. C. Gooding of Los Angeles, former Chief Justice of Arizona, is in Phoenix for a short stay.

Antone Martinez was fatally shot at Kelvin yesterday, by Deputy Sheriff Louis Mickey, in self-defense. The Mexican, who had an evil reputation, resisted arrest.
